4th try expected of Rockefeller

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — With three tries for the presidency behind him, politicians read Nelson A. Rockefeller's gubernatorial resignation as the first step toward a fourth and final presidential bid.

Rockefeller announced at a news conference Tuesday he would step down in a week from the New York governor's office he was first elected to in 1958. He said he would spend his time working with two bipartisan national commissions which he heads.

"My only regret is that my undertaking these tasks has been interpreted as a political maneuver to seek the presidency or for any other political office," he said as he quit the office he has held for 15 years. "Whether I will become a candidate in the future, I do not know. I should like to keep my options open."

Rockefeller said he would not "face those options" until late in 1975. "This is not a gimmick. This is not a political trick," he said.

Nevertheless, in widely scattered political quarters, the move was seen as a step toward the presidency. And to some Republicans it carried more hope of success than when Rockefeller, once considered the Eastern establishment GOP liberal, ran in 1960, 1964 and 1968.

"I think he has to be considered as a candidate," said Republican state Chairman Clifford L. Jones of Pennsylvania. "It's unquestionably a move in that direction."

A presidential bid by Rockefeller this time would come after he has taken widely publicized actions aimed at stemming welfare chiseling, stiffening terms for drug pushers and improving ties with more conservative elements of the Republican party.

The commissions to which he will devote his time — the National Commission on Critical Choices for America and the National Commission on Water Quality — would give him a platform from which to continue speaking on national issues.

Whatever the decision, 1976 almost certainly would be the 65-year-old Rockefeller's last chance at the presidency. If he won, at inauguration he would be five months older than William Henry Harrison, the age record-holder, was when sworn in at 68 in 1841. Dwight D. Eisenhower, oldest president on leaving the office, was 70 when John F. Kennedy was sworn in in 1961.

A number of Republicans across the country said Rockefeller's chances would be better now than in previous years.

One-fourth less gasoline planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration today proposed a 25 per cent reduction in gasoline production effective Dec. 27, but the pinch on supplies available to individual car owners is likely to be even more severe.

Under regulations proposed by the administration's energy czar, William E. Simon, priority deliveries would go to emergency services, fuel producers, public transportation and agriculture. They would be allowed all the gasoline they did in 1972.

Other commercial users of bulk supplies of gasoline, including nonprofit and government organizations, would receive the same amount of gasoline they did in 1972.

Whatever was left, would go to other distributors — including retail service stations, which supply individual car owners.

Thus, while the regulations deal specifically only with bulk distribution of gasoline, they would have a sharp impact on individual consumers by reducing the amount of gasoline available at the retail level.

Simon also revised an earlier proposal for allocation of home heating oil and diesel and jet fuel.

Under the new proposal, these fuels would go first to a top priority category of users, including fuel production activities and public transportation which would get all of their fuel needs, subject to a ceiling on increases.

Vital community services and medical, dental and nursing services would get 10 per cent more fuel than one year earlier.

Users of fuel for space heating would be required to reduce indoor temperatures by six degrees fahrenheit in homes and by 10 degrees fahrenheit in other buildings.

Industrial and manufacturing users, food producers and processors and cargo, freight and mail haulers would also get 10 per cent more of the middle distillate fuels than one year ago.

All others would be entitled to as much middle distillate oil as in 1972, to the extent it was available.

The regulations would also impose controls on distribution of crude oil among refineries for the first time.

Each refinery would be limited to production based on a ratio between the total crude oil supply and the nation's total refinery capacity.

Refiners receiving more than their share according to that ratio would have to offer their excess supplies for sale and those operating below the ratio could purchase crude oil to increase their production.

Also brought under allocation was residual oil, a heavy oil used mainly in electric power plants and industries.

The proposed regulations would assign top priority for residual oil to those who use it for fuel production, food production, essential community service, marine shipping and heating for health services. These users would get all the fuel they need.

Other space-heating users of residual oil would have to reduce indoor temperatures by six or 10 degrees.

Electric utilities would be allocated residual oil on the basis of a computation by the Federal Energy Office, aimed at equalizing any cutbacks in electrical generation.

Industrial users and all others would get as much residual oil as they need up to the amount they used in 1973.

The proposed regulations would allocate feed stocks of petroleum products to petrochemical plants up to 20 per cent more than the 1972 levels.

Any excess feed stocks would first be allocated to current purchasers in proportion to past purchases and if any feed stocks are left over they could be sold freely.

The proposed regulations would also assign priorities to users of propane gas, propane, butane and propane-butane mixtures.

Priority customers would get either a percentage of past purchases or all of their current needs, while non-priority customers would share the rest.

Aviation fuels would be in a separate category with top priority assigned to emergency and mercy flights. Up to 150 per cent of the 1972 fuel used for such flights would be available under the proposed regulations.

Crude oil prices soar skyward

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The price of Iranian crude oil went out of sight. Venezuela became a new force in the oil war. And informed sources said the United States planned to reduce gasoline production by 20 per cent.

That was Tuesday's agenda on the oil crisis calendar. In addition, there were predictions of more unemployment and of a sharp increase in the American cost of living, including such things as a 30-cent-per-gallon increase in the cost of gasoline.

The Iranian sale of crude oil set a world price record whose impact could play havoc with the economies of nations, industry surges in New York said. The effect of such global maneuverings, they said, eventually would trickle to the bottom of the oil barrel — the consumer.

The Iranian government announced it contracted to sell a relatively small consignment of 80 million barrels of crude oil for $16 to $17.40 a barrel to unidentified American, European and Japanese bidders. It previously had sold barrels at about $3.30.

Venezuela's apparent new president, Carlos Andres Perez, warned that, like the Arabs, he would use oil as a weapon. He said he wanted economic benefits for his country.

The Nixon administration, according to informed sources, planned to cut production of gasoline by about 20 per cent in efforts to control distribution of crude oil and petroleum products.

It also set up a special unit in the federal energy office to deal with the oil shortage's economic impact, which is being felt more keenly with each day's escalating events.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said fuel price increases could raise the cost of living in the United States by $27 billion next year — nearly three per cent.

In other energy-related developments Tuesday:

—The New England Power Pool said severe power shortages may result this winter because New England utilities will get 34 per cent less oil than they need.

—The nation's airlines will be forced by Nixon's allocation program to cancel

2,600 daily departures and lay off more than 25,000 employees, the Air Transport Association says.

—Phillips Petroleum Co. said it was cutting back its refinery output because the Arab embargo is crimping its supply of crude oil.

—And a Nixon cabinet member, Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar, denied the shortage was an oil industry gimmick to raise prices.

"The shortage is honest-to-God real," Brinegar told a Senate Public Works subcommittee. "I wish it were a conspiracy, but it's not." He insisted that information the government is getting is accurate. The administration relies on the oil industry for data relating to the shortage.

The prices for Iranian crude were announced following an auction by the Iranian National Oil company of 80 million barrels for delivery the first half of 1974.

The auctioned oil represents part of the payment to Iran by the consortium of Western oil companies that operate as marketing agents in that country.

"There are very few places in the world today where independent companies can get crude oil," one oil expert observed. "People are grabbing to buy crude anywhere they can," said another. Venezuela is one place, but only conditionally.

President Perez, the unofficial winner in Sunday's elections, said his country's untapped petroleum reserves would be exploited in accordance with a policy of Venezuelan nationalism.

Venezuela produces approximately 3.3 million barrels of crude oil and refined products a day and is the second largest supplier of the United States, which consumes some 17 million barrels daily.

Economic adviser Stein told a congressional committee he based his $27 billion cost-of-living-increase estimate on an expected 35 per cent increase in fuel prices.

He predicted that balancing supply and demand would require a 30-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline prices. He said no decision had been made on rationing or taxes to deal with the crisis, but he said higher consumer prices are certain to be a result.

Pressure seen in tax ruling on Nader group

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge says the inference of White House political intervention has been raised in Internal Revenue Service handling of the tax status of a public interest research group.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey said the IRS "did not have clean hands in their dealings" with the group, the Center on Corporate Responsibility Inc.

He ordered on Tuesday that the center be considered an organization exempt from federal income taxes and qualified to receive deductible charitable contributions.

The group, founded by former researchers for consumer advocate Ralph Nader, "was singled out for selective treatment for political, ideological and other improper reasons," Richey said in a 31-page memorandum accompanying his order.

The center was disbanded in July when its contributions dried up.

"A looming issue in this case has been whether political interference or intrusion has played a role in the Internal Revenue Service's consideration of the plaintiff's exemption application," the judge said.

"...The inference of political intervention has been unmistakably raised," he said.

However, Richey said he was unable to make an informed evaluation of the center's claims that White House political pressure resulted in the adverse ruling because the IRS failed to supply all the materials he ordered produced. These included "all White House files plus the Treasury and IRS files regarding tax-exempt organization since Jan. 20, 1969, and certain tape recordings" now before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

The center was incorporated as a nonprofit corporation in February 1970 and, in September that year, asked exemption from federal income laws. It listed its purpose as the promotion of increased responsibility on the part of corporations.

When there was no IRS ruling by last May 2, the center filed suit. Two weeks later, on May 16, the IRS ruled the group was not exempt from taxes nor qualified to receive deductible charitable contributions.

Richey said that in the IRS files was found a seven-page handwritten note by IRS official Richard Cox with the notation "perhaps White House pressure." The judge said the files also disclosed "certain unusual procedures" in the final processing of the application.

For instance, the judge noted that internal memorandums all showed approval of the application and not until Deputy Chief Counsel Roger V. Barth turned over the file to a Mrs. June Norris was there any draft of an adverse ruling.

The judge referred to Barth as a political appointee and to Mrs. Norris as having "neither direct nor indirect responsibility to the chief counsel nor any prior involvement regarding the application."

He said the White House submitted only four documents as falling within the scope of the court's order and that the defendants said a further search of all Treasury and IRS files "would be burdensome."

Weicker says Nixon missed date for tax break

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he gave $570,000 worth of pre-presidential papers to the National Archives in time to claim them as an income tax deduction. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., says an exhaustive investigation shows Nixon is wrong.

Weicker's 11-page legal memorandum turned over to the Internal Revenue Service on Tuesday with 26 supporting documents raises new questions concerning the deduction, which the White House detailed in an extraordinary disclosure of the President's finances last weekend.

The documents clearly indicate the defense of the deduction the White House is making now is not the one intended by the presidential lawyers who handled the transaction and tax return in 1969. Weicker said neither defense can stand the tests required by federal tax laws.

The Weicker memorandum points out there were two ways the gift could have been made in order to have met the legal requirements for claiming it as an income tax deduction. Because Congress in December 1968 abolished the deduction for the appraised value of such papers made after July 25, 1969, the President would have had to have met either requirement by the deadline, Weicker said.

Nixon's two choices were:

—To deed the papers to the National Archives with a legally authorized agent, delivery of the deed to the archives with a legally sufficient description of the gift and acceptance of the deed by the archivist.

—Actual delivery of the gift. The senator said this would require that the papers be physically turned over to the archives, that they be specifically identified and accepted as a gift with the President surrendering "dominion and control" of the documents to the recipient.

The White House financial statement on Saturday said, "President Nixon was and is advised by his attorneys that the gift met the deductibility requirements of the law" because the papers were delivered, identified and surrendered before the July 25, 1969, deadline. Weicker disputed that statement, charging that the papers were delivered as part of a much larger shipment and were not selected, identified and separated from other documents until December 1969, five months after the deadline. And Nixon did not give up dominion and control until at least April 10, 1970, Weicker said.

The documents show that the attorneys working on the gift and deduction in 1969, deputy White House counsel Edward L. Morgan and Los Angeles lawyer Frank DeMarco Jr., sought to meet the deed requirements.

Morgan signed a "Chattel Deed from Richard M. Nixon to the United States of America." The deed bears the date March 27, 1969, the day the bulk shipment was delivered to the archives.

Nixon had signed a similar deed for a 1968 gift three months earlier but did not sign the 1969 document. Instead, Morgan attached an affidavit in which he swore he was Nixon's legal agent, and DeMarco notarized it, ostensibly on April 21, 1969.

The affidavit says the materials covered by the deed are "specifically set forth in Schedule A attached hereto."

Schedule A, designating 1,176 boxes covered by the deed, was not written, however, until the following year, after Chicago appraiser Ralph G. Newman picked out which of Nixon's voluminous files were to be included in the 1969 gift.

And an archives consultant's status report on May 27, 1969 — two months after the deed reportedly was written — said the papers involved "are not yet deeded to the United States."

In his memorandum, Weicker concluded: "The March 27, 1969, deed fails on all counts."

Nixon has said he would permit the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation to review the gift and would pay the back taxes if the House-Senate panel finds the deduction unauthorized.

The congressional committee has agreed to review the transaction, but Weicker said he turned his material over to the IRS because it is the "one agency responsible for enforcement of tax laws in this country."

"If any of us has problems," the senator added, "we don't get congressional hearings. There is only one authority... and that's IRS."

Extra tax proposed on oil company profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation that would levy an 85 per cent excess profits tax on oil companies was to be introduced today in Congress by a pair of Upper Midwest Democrats.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said the proposal would tax at 85 per cent all profits that exceed each oil company's average profit level during the past four years.

"The major oil companies must share the burden and economic fallout of the current shortage," they said in a joint statement.

A special deduction would be allowed for any increase in total investment as an incentive to escape the tax, they said.

"Big oil companies could avoid paying this excess profits tax if they plowed their substantially increased earnings into investments designed to increase refining capacity, to explore for new oil or develop alternative energy sources," McGovern and Aspin said.

They said the profits of the 20 largest oil companies have climbed $2.1 billion, or 51.2 per cent, during the first three quarters of 1973 compared with the same period in 1972.

If the excess profits tax were paid on the entire gain, they said, $1.6 billion in new tax revenue already would have been raised this year. The revenue generated could be earmarked to help develop clean alternative sources of energy, they said.

Their statement said an excess profits tax is necessary because "the oil industry is fundamentally monopolistic and, therefore, delighted to live through a shortage as long as they can enjoy windfall profits."

Aspin, meanwhile, also asked all Wisconsin reserve and National Guard units to conduct their 1974 summer training exercises at their local armory or at Camp McCoy near Sparta, Wis., in an effort to conserve fuel.

"Wholesale movements of entire units along with their military and private vehicles should be curtailed during the fuel shortage," Aspin said.

Dick Van Dyke playing real-life alcoholic role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dick Van Dyke plays an alcoholic sliding toward self-destruction in the television movie "The Morning After." He says the role is a familiar one for him.

"I call myself an alcoholic," he said Tuesday. "For a large number of years

In the ABC Movie of the Week, to be aired later this season, Van Dyke plays an executive whose drinking destroys his marriage and his career. There is no happy ending, only a last minute resolve to quit drinking. He ends up a helpless drunk who has lost all self-esteem.

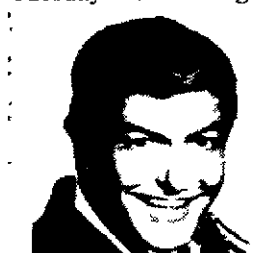

When he was cast for the role, Van Dyke said it was not known that he was an alcoholic.

"This movie is a catharsis for me in many ways," he said. "Some scenes almost did me in because I lived them. I hope a lot of kids see this. We've got a lot of 10- and 11-year-old alcoholics in this country."

Van Dyke said he was a moderate social drinker for a number of years. "But at some point I went over the line."

He said drinking had interfered with his home life to some extent. "Fortunately, my drinking time was when the kids had gone to bed," he said. "But my wife got sick and tired of it."

After he stopped drinking, Van Dyke said, he went to an Arizona hospital. "It's not a place where you go to dry out," he said. "It's an educational thing to let you know what alcohol does to you. I learned things I wish I'd known 20 years ago."

Van Dyke

I said I had a drinking problem. Alcoholic is harder to say."

Van Dyke, who has his own TV series, said he stopped drinking in August 1972. "It's not a thing that can be cured," he said. "You can't take a social drink. You're an alcoholic the rest of your life."

"It never interfered with my work," he said in an interview. "I never drank before or during work. I never gave a drunken performance. I never drank publicly. I went home and did my drinking there. I drank until I was drunk."

Experts disagree on trucks' efficient speed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fifty or fifty-five? That's one of the questions the experts are asking in trying to unravel the confusion surrounding new proposed speed limits for trucks.

In his Nov. 25 energy message, President Nixon called for lower speed limits to cut fuel consumption. He suggested 50 miles per hour for cars and 55 for trucks and buses.

Administration officials said the higher speed for the larger vehicles was proposed because trucks and buses "are geared, on balance, to run more efficiently at 55 m.p.h. than at 50 m.p.h. and therefore will save more fuel at the higher speed."

That view might be changing. Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar said this week the administration believes "that between 50 and 55 m.p.h., the fuel efficiencies of trucks and buses, in total, are essentially unchanged. But, as you push to 60 m.p.h., with its increased wind resistance, we believe over-all efficiencies decline."

Automotive experts disagree among themselves.

"There's no way you're going to get better fuel mileage at 55 than at 50," said Allen H. Glasenapp, a staff engineer at GMC Truck and Coach in Pontiac, Mich.

Glasenapp said truck drivers could cut fuel consumption by about five per cent by switching from 55 to 50 m.p.h. He added, however, that the lower speeds could increase other costs by as much as 15 per cent. The chief new cost is the additional road time driving at lower speeds.

Other GMC engineers agreed that, under most highway conditions, the trucks can cruise efficiently at 50 m.p.h. But, they warned: "If you started going down any further than 50 m.p.h., you'd really be getting into a less efficient range."

Most of the experts seem to agree that determining which speed is best involves a variety of factors, including transmission systems. The key to the question seems to be figuring out at what speed a truck can get into top gear.

That's the gear at which a truck — or car — operates most efficiently. It's the gear used for cruising speed. In top gear, the engine has to work less hard, making fewer revolutions per unit of distance traveled than in lower gears.

"A reduction in speed would result in more fuel economy as long as a truck doesn't have to downshift from top gear," said Naem A. Henein, a professor of mechanical engineering at Wayne State University in Michigan.

"If a truck can't get into top gear at 50 m.p.h., there could be a loss in mileage," said Henein.

Robert McHale, a spokesman for the American Trucking Association, said the huge rigs generally reach peak efficiency at 55 m.p.h. because that's where the driver hits his top gear.

Another industry spokesman agreed, adding that most trucks have 10 gears and the driver "has to shift back to ninth gear when his speed drops to about 52 m.p.h."

A Pennsylvania official contended, however, that there is a clear saving of fuel at lower speeds.

A report prepared by Edward Simon, director of the Office of State Planning and Development, concluded that, if a 45,000-pound diesel truck reduces its speed from 60 to 55 miles per hour, it will cut fuel consumption by 11.5 per cent. If it reduces its speed from 60 to 50 m.p.h., fuel consumption will be cut by 22.3 per cent, the report said.

Industry spokesmen stress that there are a variety of transmission systems available.

"Customers have the option to choose a number of components that go along with the engine," said Warren Moody, an engineer in Detroit with the Diesel Allison Division of General Motors. "In some cases," he said, "lower speeds can increase fuel consumption."

Truck drivers, some of whom blocked highways in recent days to dramatize their protests, say that even 55 m.p.h. is too low. They contend trucks operate more efficiently at 60 or 65 miles an hour.

Many states still have daytime speed limits of over 55 miles an hour for trucks on interstate highways or other major roads. An Associated Press spot check showed 22 of 47 states checked have speed limits over 55 m.p.h. In seven other states, the 55 m.p.h. limit was set before the current energy crisis and is not a result of any attempt to save fuel.

Still another argument over the speed limits centers on the difference between speeds for cars and larger vehicles.

Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington, chairman of the National Governors' Conference, is polling the state executives to find out if they favor the dual system. He reported shortly after starting his study that eight of nine governors who responded favored a single limit.

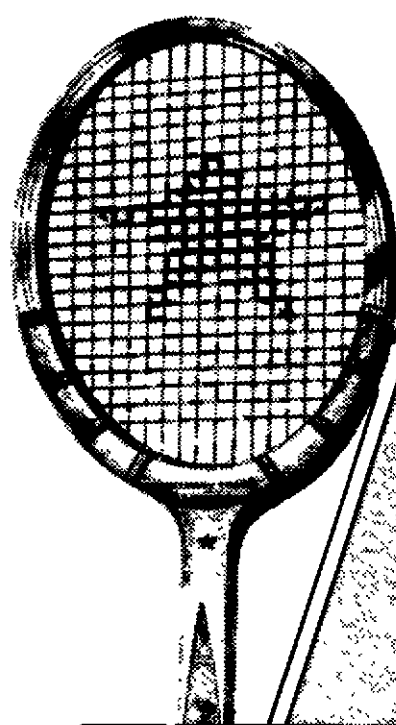

The recommendation for two speed limits was just that — a recommendation. A bill pending in Congress and aimed at cutting speed limits sets a single, 55 mile per hour limit for all vehicles. The bill would authorize the secretary of transportation to withhold approval of highway projects within any state that fails to comply with the act.

Elevator recycled

Since grain elevators are not noted for their mobility, this one caused a bit of a stir around Kolin, Mont., when it took a trip. The 60-year-old elevator outlived its usefulness but rather than consign it to the usual fate of obsolete equipment, its owners decided to recycle it by moving it some 21 miles to be incorporated into a fertilizer plant they were building. ### News in brief

Spending authority of President in question

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon may lose much of the authority he claims over federal spending, an administration source says. The reason is a series of cases challenging administration impoundment of funds voted by Congress. The administration has lost virtually all of about 65 lower court decisions on impoundment.

Air Force One flies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is considering travel by train but the crew of Air Force One is still flying regularly. Air Force Col. Ralph Albertazzi, pilot of Air Force One, said that weekly flying is essential to maintain crew proficiency and to detect any minor problems with the plane.

Kissinger in Britain

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger continued his diplomatic fence-mending with calls on Prime Minister Edward Heath and Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home and a major address on American policy toward oil-conscious Western Europe. Kissinger, who heads Thursday for a new round of talks in the Middle East, hoped to convince the British that their interests would be protected at the Arab-Israeli peace conference scheduled to open Dec. 18 in Geneva.

Optimistic about truce

CAIRO (AP) — The Finnish commander of the United Nations peacekeeping force blames "misunderstanding and trigger-happiness" for the daily shooting along the Suez Canal cease-fire lines. But Lt. Gen. Ensis Sulasvuo said in an interview he is optimistic about the truce holding up because the Arabs and Israelis are talking publicly about a peace conference — "something that has not happened for 25 years."

Venezuelan oil

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela's apparent president-elect, Carlos Andres Perez, says the United States and other developed countries are going to have to lower their tariff barriers against Latin American manufactured products if they want to keep on getting Venezuelan oil. He also told a news conference Venezuela's interests, not those of the industrial countries that need oil, will govern development of the untouched oil reserves in the Orinoco tar belt in eastern Venezuela.

Lon Nol names premier

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — President Lon Nol has named Foreign Minister Long Boret to be Cambodia's new premier, and the High Political Council has approved the nomination, high-ranking government sources report. Long Boret replaces Premier In Tam, who resigned last Friday, and the High Political Council also reduced the cabinet from 25 to 16 members in an attempt to streamline it. But most observers do not expect the shakeup to produce any major changes. They assume that Lon Nol will continue to run everything.

Drilling to resume

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California has lifted its moratorium on oil drilling in the Santa Barbara Channel, where a 1969 petroleum spill helped make ecology a household word.

Acting over protests from environmentalists, the State Lands Commission said Tuesday it would allow oil companies to drill again in the channel and elsewhere along California's coastline from existing offshore platforms. The three-man commission said each drilling application would be considered separately to insure protection of the environment.

A drilling shutdown for the entire 1,000-mile California coast was ordered on state-owned oil lands after a January 1969 blowout in the channel spewed thousands of gallons of oil.

Power pool shortage

BOSTON (AP) — The New England Power Pool has warned of possible severe shortages of electricity in the area this winter, with utilities receiving 34 per cent less oil than anticipated.

Governors of three Northeast states announced, meanwhile, that they will seek relief from Washington for the oil-short area.

New England depends upon oil to supply 72.9 per cent of its electric power, and a spokesman for the pool predicted Tuesday that shortages are inevitable, despite a six per cent reduction in energy consumption.

Man's body is found

ASHLAND, Wis. (AP) — The body of Curtis Hagstrom, 25, an Ashland native, has been found in mountains near Placitas, N.M., his parents were told Sunday.

Hagstrom was reported missing Oct. 2 after police in Albuquerque found his truck abandoned on a highway.

Police said they have issued warrants for the arrest of two Tennessee men in connection with Hagstrom's death. They said Hagstrom was stabbed to death during a robbery.

mission and conducting flights. No vital functioning equipment was damaged."

The Kitty Hawk left San Diego Nov. 23 with Capt. Robert E. Kirksey in command. It carried a crew of 5,500 and about 100 aircraft. The carrier, commissioned in 1961, suffered a similar fire eight years ago while it was on a Vietnam mission. Two sailors were killed and 28 injured in that incident.

The 80,000-ton ship was converted this year to antisubmarine warfare, in addition to its role as a base for attack planes. The $2.2-million modernization gave the Kitty Hawk "the most potent weapons system ever on a surface warship," including planes capable of shooting down submarine-launched nuclear missiles, the Navy said.

The Navy withheld the names of the dead until relatives were notified.

Auto repair license bill bottled up

By RONALD W. BROWNE
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Joe Smith took his 1966 automobile to a service station for what he thought was about $20 worth of work.

First of two parts

Before leaving the station, Smith told the mechanic to call him if the job was going to cost more than $20.

When Smith picked up his car the bill was more than $100 and he had received no telephone call. Smith claimed he had to postpone paying his rent that month to cover the unexpected bill.

What could Smith do about it? Nothing.

Under Wisconsin law, auto repair shops are covered by a mechanic's lien, that means you pay for work done on the car whether you agree it was needed or not, or the garage can keep your car.

Also, unless the service station has a pattern of similar complaints on file with the Justice Department, trying to take the station to court would be an exercise in futility, Asst. Atty. Gen. William Wolford said.

Although Smith's name is fictitious, the incident allegedly occurred. Wolford said the Office of Consumer Protection has received more than 500 complaints this year about auto repair services.

Department of Transportation rules regulating automobile dealers with repair facilities have been suspended by the Joint Committee for the Review of Administrative Rules.

They were suspended because they did not apply to all auto repair shops.

A bill that would license all auto repair shops, require the shops to give written estimates that may not be exceeded by more than 10 per cent and forbid shops from saying additional work is needed if it is not bottled up in the Joint Finance Committee.

This leaves the car owner with two choices: Doing the maintenance work himself, or going to a garage mechanic he knows and trusts.

If you must go to a repair shop, try to get a written estimate, even though the shop is not required to give you one or abide by it, experts in state government suggest.

James Scott, a staff member on the Wisconsin Council for Consumer Affairs, recommends that an auto owner get an idea of what is to be done to the car before agreeing to have it repaired.

If you know what's wrong with your car, mark the parts that need replacement and ask for them back when the job is completed, Scott said.

"Don't just drive in and say 'fix it,'" he said. "Never give them carte blanche authority to do anything they want."

Scott noted a survey taken last spring where state Transportation Department inspectors took a test car to service stations, mass merchandisers, new car dealers, nationally franchised repair shops and general auto repair garages in the Madison area.

The state inspectors had determined in advance that the test car needed only a front end alignment which should cost about $15.

When the survey had been completed, the shops recommended additional repairs that would have ranged from $18 to $79 more, Scott said.

A policy criticized by both Lt. Gov. Martin Schreiber and the Office of Consumer Protection is the flat rate system used by franchises and many service stations.

Under the system car repairs are based on the cost of the parts, plus a fixed labor charge that does not necessarily reflect the actual time spot fixing the auto.

Wolford recounted an instance where a man was billed for three hours of labor but had his auto back within an hour.

He said the federal government has never tried to determine whether the practice can be considered price fixing.

The proposed auto repair bill, while not addressing itself to pricing, would authorize the Department of Transportation to make checks of stations suspected of unfair practices.

If a state inspector found violations, the shop owner or manager could be fined up to $1,000 and imprisoned for six months for each offense.

"This way, if there is a high school student and a master mechanic working in the shop, you can be sure it's the mechanic doing the major work and the kid changing the oil," Scott said. "Now it doesn't always work that way."

Courts

Gerald Steffens, 25, route 1, Seymour, was charged Tuesday with unlawful possession of another person's deer hunting license, relating to a Nov. 18 arrest by two wardens in the Town of Black Creek.

Steffens pleaded not guilty before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. Schaefer continued the case for a Jan. 21 pretrial conference.

Airlines cut some flights in Fox Valley

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

Air Wisconsin and North Central Airlines will terminate certain flights to and from the Fox Valley for an indefinite period beginning Jan. 7 because of the federally enforced reduction in their jet fuel supplies. However, spokesmen for both airlines said they would continue to serve all Fox Valley communities they have been serving, and that early and firm reservations would keep passenger travel problems to a minimum.

Preston Wilbourne, president and general manager of the Fox Cities based Air Wisconsin, said no flights between Appleton and Chicago O'Hare International Airport would be eliminated, but he added that some service to Minneapolis and Indianapolis would be affected.

Air Wisconsin will terminate indefinitely one midday flight from Appleton to Minneapolis. The flight is 965 departing Appleton at 1:05 p.m. It also is terminating its Minneapolis to Appleton flight No. 964, departing Minneapolis at 2:45 p.m. and arriving in Appleton at 3:53 p.m.

This eliminates the only Saturday flight to Minneapolis, but two weekday flights to Minneapolis will be continued. These are flights 961, leaving Appleton at 7 a.m. and arriving at 8:16 a.m., and 960, leaving Minneapolis at 8:40 a.m. and arriving 9:48 a.m.

The second Minneapolis flight continuing is 967 leaving Appleton at 4:27 p.m. and arriving at 5:43 p.m., and 966 leaving Minneapolis at 6:10 p.m. and arriving at 7:18 p.m.

Wilbourne said the flights from the Indiana cities of Elkhart, Kokomo and LaFayette to Indianapolis will be discontinued, but the flights from O'Hare to the three cities will continue.

North Central will discontinue flights from Green Bay and Oshkosh to O'Hare and flights from Chicago back, said Dennis E. Lutzwick, assistant manager-cargo administration of the Minneapolis-based airline.

The flights being cancelled from Oshkosh's Wittman Field will be Oshkosh to O'Hare flights 214 departing at 12:25 p.m., 216 departing at 1:05 p.m. and 456 departing at 7:55 p.m., and from O'Hare to Oshkosh, Flight 217 arriving at Oshkosh at 12:10 p.m.

Lutzwick said that leaves five of the eight Oshkosh to Chicago flights continuing and eight of the nine Chicago to Oshkosh flights continuing.

The flights cancelled from Green Bay's Austin Straubel Field are flights 206 and 216 Green Bay to O'Hare, and flights 211 and 203 returning, and through flights 345 and 346 to and from Green Bay.

Lutzwick said also that the North Central flight from New York to Milwaukee to Oshkosh would be diverted from Oshkosh to Madison. Persons

OK given to hire landfill consultants

Authority has been given to the zoning committee to hire consultants to engineer a landfill site for the county's solid waste disposal program.

The committee will be able to spend up to $30,000 to have the project done. Supv. Joseph DeBruin, chairman of the zoning committee, told the county board Tuesday that the committee has two sites under consideration and the engineering tests will determine which is the best one.

Opponents of the county program again tried to block further program development. Supv. Fred Rehfeldt, the most vocal objector, contended that a two-thirds vote was needed to appropriate the funds. County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, however, ruled that only a majority was necessary.

Frank Charlesworth, coordinator of public services, said the engineering study was required by the state Department of Natural Resources before a site could be licensed. "We have two sites in mind and we want cost comparisons," he said. The first step is aerial mapping of the two sites and that must be done before there is a heavy snow cover, Charlesworth added.

The engineering work ranges from the initial mapping to a final use plan for the site after it no longer is used for a landfill, he said.

DeBruin said the cost could be considerably less than the $30,000 if one of the two sites is eliminated early in the study.

Opponents of the solid waste program, led by Supvs. Eugene Kloes, R. Clayton Van Dyke and Rehfeldt, had attempted to stop Charlesworth from providing the information to the board, but were overridden on a two-thirds vote.

Supv. John Hennessy said he couldn't accept the need for approval of the engineering study as a "do or die" proposal for the shredding program. He suggested that tests be conducted at the Appleton landfill site near Mackville to see if that is suitable. "I am sure the people of the Town of Center will go along with it," Hennessy said.

DeBruin said the DNR "would never approve" the Mackville site. Charlesworth added that it could be used as long as it is licensed and as long as they would cover the refuse daily.

Appleton's license for the Mackville site expires next Oct. 1 and the DNR has already notified the city that the license will not be renewed because the site is in a floodplain.

Charlesworth said that time was important and he doubted if a new site would be ready by next June 1 even with engineering work starting now. June 1 is the projected start-up date for the shredder.

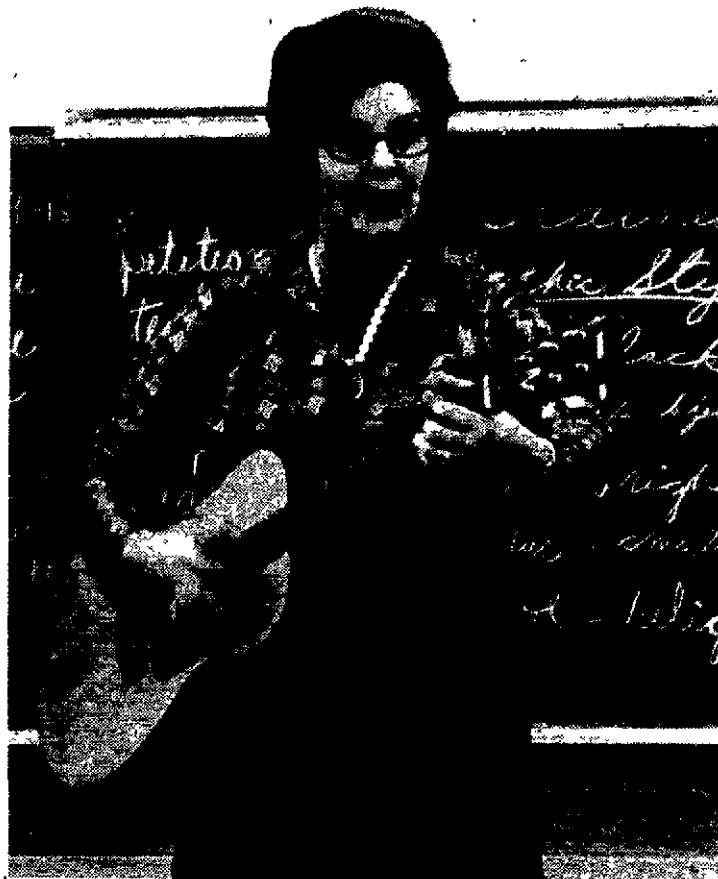

You've got only 13 shopping days left! Charlie Brown... and here's what I want!

Strumming along

Pupils make music, fun at school guitar lessons

BY MAIJA PENIKIS
Post-Crescent staff writer

Nancy Van Den Elsen is a modern minstrel. With her guitar case, she travels from school to school, stopping in various classrooms to accompany the pupils during their music lessons.

She is a choral music teacher with the Appleton School System, serving three schools. Wherever she goes, she takes her guitar along. "That way we can make one classroom a self-contained chorus," she explained.

In addition, she has also taught the guitar to children who want to learn to strum in their spare time.

"I feel that they should be allowed to play the instrument they want to play and the guitar is 'in' right now," Mrs. Van Den Elsen explained.

The response to this philosophy has been overwhelming and the elementary children have responded with fervor.

There are many advantages to the guitar. It is not difficult to learn, it is portable and it is good for rhythm.

"Music should and can be fun," the teacher said.

If the Intermediate II class at Lincoln School is any barometer, that's what music is. With eight young guitarists for backup, the pupils can break into song whenever they want to.

The difference between a group's being forced to learn folk songs and one accompanied by the rhythms of a guitar is enormous and very audible.

Even the voices of the boys who apparently would rather be outside playing football get caught up in the tunes. The strings zing along, sending the Titanic to its icy grave or Casey Jones to his speedy death, and bringing in the holiday spirit with a spiritual.

All that is necessary is for Mrs. Van Den Elsen to come into the room, and eight pupils rise, strap up their guitars, position their feet on the stools, and music fills the room.

Besides those in Mrs. Gloria Johnson's room, there are about 65 others in the rest of the school doing the same thing.

All of those calloused strumming fingers that help others sing on key also helped sing in the proclamation from the governor's office, making this the official choral music month in Wisconsin.

Indians attack Social Services

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

ONEIDA —Some Indians here aren't too fond of the Outagamie County Department of Social Services.

It is, they complain, stingy and discriminatory. It's where they get a lot of double talk and run-around and not enough money.

Oneidas living in Brown County have it a lot better, they insist.

Purcell Powless, Oneida tribal chairman, said it's been that way for years and it's not getting any better.

But Outagamie Welfare Director James E. Stampp, who weathered a hail of criticism here Tuesday, unveiled a plan that could improve relations and services.

Conceding that it is often a major inconvenience for needy Indians to travel 20 miles to his department for help, Stampp offered to bring part of his department to the Indians — if it meets with their approval next week.

If that doesn't work, Powless said, Indians might start their own welfare department of sorts. They've already talked seriously about it.

Years of broken promises for better services had, Powless explained, driven the tribal business committee to schedule the Tuesday meeting with a dozen representatives from the community, the Brown and Outagamie county welfare departments, the state Department of Social Services, the Social Security Administration and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

It was a last resort, Powless said.

His people were having trouble getting Indian relief money, Powless told delegates. Indian relief is a state funded program similar to the system of general or emergency relief administered by towns, villages and cities.

When an Indian living on tax-free land faces the sudden need for help in getting such things as food, shelter, clothing, medical care and fuel oil, he applies for Indian relief through his county welfare department.

He also has access to the same, longer term aid programs available to non-Indians, such as medical assistance, disabled aid, food stamps and the full range of ADC.

The 2,700 Oneidas living in this area are about equally divided between Brown and Outagamie counties, Powless said, but the last fiscal year Brown County granted $31,900 in Indian relief and averaged 20 cases per month while Outagamie paid $8,000 and averaged 5.5 cases per month.

The imbalance itself indicates something is wrong, the Oneidas believe.

Powless, Anna John and Sandra Ninham told about Oneidas who weren't satisfied with the service from the Outagamie agency.

Powless said he had a bad experience. "I don't know if it was because I was an Indian or what," he told officials.

"Indian people have a certain amount of pride," Powless said. "They tend to suffer rather than go through harassment."

Powless said he went to his county supervisor, the welfare board and even to County Executive Alvin Woehler. They all said there wouldn't be any more problems, he recalled.

Oneidas can't get help from their towns (Oneida and Hobart) either, Powless complained. "We get excuses and get downgraded."

About three months ago the tribal business committee unanimously agreed to explore the

Appeal set for order on detachment

BY ED VAN BERKEL
Post-Crescent staff writer

KAUKAUNA — The board of education Tuesday voted to appeal the Nov. 29 action of the Cooperative Educational Service Agency No. 8 school committee detaching a portion of the Kaukauna school district for attachment to the Little Chute district.

The board had indicated at the time of the ruling that a formal appeal would be made to the appeals board of the state Department of Public Instruction. That board is made up of presidents of four school agencies and the state superintendent of schools or a person delegated by the state superintendent as his representative.

After receiving the appeal, the state will set a date for a public hearing, probably six to eight weeks after receipt of the appeal, and then will review the matter much the same as was done by the local agency school committee.

School board members agreed to have a special meeting to discuss presentations to be made at the state level concerning why the detachment is being contested. The meeting date will be selected after the state sets a hearing date.

It was agreed that City and School Atty. Donald Green and board members should attend the public hearing. School Supt. Julian Bichler reported that he had received a petition signed by 66 persons within the area ordered detached favoring the appeal to the state. He also said 31 of those who signed resided in a mobile home park where proponents of the change had said they had 100 per cent support for detachment from Kaukauna and reassignment to Little Chute.

The area in dispute is in the village and portions of the Town of Vandenberg, where over 200 persons signed a request for district change. Three years ago, the local school agency authorized a change in district lines, but an appeal was made and its action overturned on the state level.

The state appeals board may accept the detachment order of the local agency, reject the order or alter school district lines in an effort to settle the matter. Included in the area being contested is the Little Chute industrial park which both school districts would like to have as a property tax base, but in previous hearings and discussions this has never been brought out as an issue. Debate has centered on distance from the schools and quality of education.

In other school board action Tuesday: — Four bids were received for lighting renovation of the high school auditorium with the low bid of $14,100 by Langstad Electric, Appleton, accepted by the board. High bid was $15,762.

Board members noted that the bid was within the $16,000 budgeted for the purpose and even after design and engineering costs are computed, it should still be within the budget figure.

— Board members were informed by Bichler that the Kaukauna school system was one of 25 in the nation and the only one in Wisconsin selected by the American Institute for Research for inclusion in a study on its reading programs.

Board limits pay range for director

By DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

A new search will start for a program director under the unified mental health services board, this time within the existing salary structure of Outagamie County.

John Wiley, chairman of the unified board, told the county board Tuesday that he did not think a qualified person could be hired within the given salary range, but said he was willing to try.

The county board approved a pay grade of 26 for the program director which has a range from $16,500 to $20,016 a year. Unanswered was whether the unified board could hire anywhere within that range or if it had to hire at the starting base.

The county has a policy that all new employees must start at the lowest step of the pay range.

Approval came after an argument over the resolution directing the personnel committee to readvertise for the position in cooperation with the personnel committee of the unified board.

Supv. Ted LaPin, a member of the unified board, successfully argued that the resolution language no longer represented the feeling of the unified board and got the wording changed to give the unified board's personnel committee the primary responsibility for the hiring.

The resolution also sets the pay grades for the four program coordinators, but Wiley said the only person to be hired now is the program director. "If that ever happens," Wiley said, "we will then make a decision on what else we need."

Supv. Fred Rehfeldt said the county "shouldn't quibble about a few thousand dollars" and let the unified board hire whoever it wants. The unified board had previously wanted to hire a director at $23,000.

Supv. Marvin Babbitt, chairman of the county board's personnel committee, retorted that "the same people who wanted to cut the unified board from 15 to 9 members now want to give them a free hand."

Funds to pay the director will be taken from "settling up" account of the health center. In doing so, the board amended an earlier resolution that would have set aside $500,000 from that fund to cover program and personnel adjustments from the unified board and also a countywide health department.

That resolution had been tabled in November and one effort Tuesday morning to take it off the table failed.

A second effort in the afternoon succeeded and the resolution was then amended to eliminate mention of a countywide health department and the dollar amount was taken out.

Another effort to table the resolution until the legality of using the money was determined failed on a tie vote.

Supv. Richard Jahnke, who led the movement to act on the resolution, charged the opponents with being afraid to vote on the issue. "The resolution is clear," he said. Any excuse for not acting on it "is only a delaying tactic."

The board also approved increasing the pay grades for all nursing positions at the health center on the warning that there soon would be no nurses at the facility.

Babbitt said the center "is down to three nurses because of the salaries and we can't hire new ones at the present pay grades."

The grade changes affect 12 full-time positions and five part-time positions.

Babbitt said all the nurses are now in pay grade 18. The new pay grades

Petri has eyes on possible '74 race for Nelson's seat in Senate

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

State Sen. Thomas Petri, R-Fond du Lac, has an aide exploring the possibilities for a campaign for the U.S. Senate in 1974.

Rumors of a possible Petri candidacy against U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson have been circulating for months, but the senator's own move to get an aide out on the trail shows more than passing interest.

"Yes, I guess you could say I'm seriously interested," said the first term Republican from the state's Second Senate District.

Petri said he has already received "encouraging reactions" from four of the state's nine district party chairmen. He plans to make up his mind on a candidacy after the party's special state convention in January.

"Someone is going to have to end up running against Gaylord Nelson next year," said Petri. Nelson, elected convincingly in 1962 and 1968, is considered a strong contender for re-election. Financial and other troubles in the state Republican party, and national GOP woes caused by Watergate, could add to more problems for a Republican candidate.

Petri himself admits it is "very improbable" that Nelson can be defeated in 1974, but the Watergate scandal and other troubles at the federal level make him feel that a newcomer might benefit from the fallout as much as a Democrat incumbent.

"I sense there is a general spirit of unhappiness, not just about Watergate, but with inflation and unemployment, increasing taxes and big government in general," said Petri.

Republican candidates might suffer from Watergate in 1974, he said, but there might be the "same kind of guilt by association for long-term, experienced politicians who are wise in the ways of Washington, like Gaylord Nelson."

At 33, Petri is one of the youngest members of the state Senate. He is among several possible GOP Senate candidates, including State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek.

His new aide is Van Hefflin Schwartz, a graduate in sculpture and government from Harvard who joins Petri on a volunteer basis after running a small newspaper in Iowa for two years.

Schwartz will be out looking for reactions to a Petri candidacy in the weeks ahead.

Petri won over four other Republicans in the 1972 primary for the Second District seat before winning the general election. He is considered by fellow Republicans to have a bright future in politics.

Petri himself said it "makes sense" for the GOP to run a young candidate against Nelson in 1974. The exposure would help him in the future, even if he does lose to the strong Democrat in 1974.

No water tower beacon for lake snowmobilers

NEENAH — In past winters, Sgt. Duane Nelson of the city police, switched on a warning light at the S. Park Avenue water tower when he felt the ice on Lake Winnebago was safe for snowmobiling.

This year, the city water commission decided that the light shouldn't be turned on. The commission and water works director John Jurgenson feel that the location of the light might steer snowmobilers toward the river, or other thin ice in back of the water plant. In case of an accident, Jurgenson said, the commission could be liable.

The light is mounted on the railing of the water tank, which is located between the river and the boat-snowmobile landing at Recreation Park (south of the swimming pool). The light faces the lake side and was installed by a boat club as a storm warning light for the summer boating seasons. In the winter, it served as a navigational guide for snowmobilers.

Nelson feels the light is a good idea, because in a snowstorm over the lake, a snowmobiler on the east side can't see the west shore. A snowmobiler who misreads the warning light would have to "go quite a bit north" to hit the river, Nelson said, adding that it was intended mainly for local snowmobilers.

Jurgenson said a better location would be nearer the landing, south of the water plant, and in any case, it would be safer for snowmobilers to follow marked trails on the lake.

In other action this week, the water commission decided to move ahead with purchasing an underground liability policy. The city cancelled its underground policy several years ago, which covered the water department and other city departments, because the number of claims didn't justify the premiums. Jurgenson said, however, "The commission and I feel strongly that we need this policy." The commission has been getting estimates from insurers.

Jurgenson said the department had been lucky the past two years, because the two claims it had to pay were small. One was for cutting a telephone line, and another was for disturbing a gas pipe.

"But you could get into a larger amount," Jurgenson said. "Suppose you cut a gas main and blew up the Ramada Inn — now I would imagine you're talking about a pretty big

Oshkosh man's case dismissed on drug charge

OSHKOSH — A 24-year-old Oshkosh man, who was arrested in early November along with 10 other young men on drug trafficking charges, had his case dismissed in County Court Tuesday.

Curtis D. Morrow, 3286 Shorewood Drive, was charged with the sale of methamphetamine crystal. The case was dismissed, according to Asst. Dist. Atty. Henry Matthewson, for several reasons.

Matthewson said the state chemist testified that the alleged methamphetamine that was confiscated did not match up exactly when tested with the standard sample of that drug.

Matthewson had asked Judge James V. Sitter for an adjournment to give him time to bring in another witness from the state crime laboratory who could verify through further testing that the confiscated drug was methamphetamine.

However the case was instead dismissed, partially because the chemist is not available for further testimony for several weeks. Other reasons figuring into the dismissal are that the case would have to be dropped and started anew anyhow in a couple of weeks since a new judge will take Sitter's position and a new district attorney will be in office in January. The judge who starts a case is required to finish it.

Matthewson predicted, however, that the state Department of Justice will file new charges once the new judge and DA are in office.

Morrow is the fifth person to appear in court, thus far. The first four have already had further proceedings scheduled for them while the other six are still waiting for their preliminary examinations.

The arrests of the 11 were part of a statewide crackdown on hard drug sellers by the Justice Department in which at least 49 persons were arrested throughout the state.

The charges in the Oshkosh cases include the sale and delivery of phenobarbital, amphetamines, cocaine and caffeine. The alleged sales were made to state agents within the last year, some on the UWO campus. Five of those arrested are UWO students.

Christmas bureau wraps it up Friday

The Salvation Army's Christmas Clearance Bureau, which keeps track of needy families and individuals and the donors who have volunteered to help make the holidays a merrier, happier time for them, will close at the end of the working day Friday.

Mrs. Evie Loret, bureau coordinator, said workers expect to have all area residents who have been referred to the bureau for assistance at Christmas matched with donors by that time. However, she said today that there are still many area residents on file at the Salvation Army who need some help —

Fund drive begins for ex-drug-user facility

"New Life, Inc.," Manawa, a re-establishment and training center for young people who have been on drugs, began a fund drive this week to raise $30,000 to help pay for the facility. The drive is for the general public at this time, according to the six ministers who began the center. Any donations may be sent to either the Farmers State Bank, Manawa, or New Life Inc., Box 297, Hortonville, 54944.

The donations will not be used for operating expenses, but for the mortgage on the property. The operating expenses are met through other means. Some of the residents work and pay room and board, it was explained.

There are currently nine people taking advantage of the program. The capacity is 70.

The center handles any youths who have been on any types of drugs, but have received the medical treatment necessary after they have gone off the drug.

That is necessary because neither the center nor the personnel are equipped or competent to handle the medical problems.

The residents are accepted from many and almost any sources — via references from other agencies or other ministers, as well as those who simply walk in off the street.

Making up the corporation are the possibility of taking over their own Indian relief.

David Swanson, Fox River Baptist, all of Appleton, plus the Rev. Arthur Gregg, Evangel Community Church, Menasha, and the Rev. Ross Pace, Community Baptist Church, Hortonville.

The group purchased the old Waupaca County Home, which had been vacant for a year, located about three miles north of Royalton and about 10 miles northwest of New London.

According to Brunner, the purpose of the center is twofold: to provide a training ground under controlled circumstance, and to help build character.

"Eventually we hope to administer all our own affairs," Powless said. "We're becoming more capable of taking care of our own business," he later told a reporter.

Duane Campbell of the state Department of Health and Social Services, which the tribal committee had contacted with its proposal, believed a one-year, pilot program could be devised. His agency, Campbell said, probably could contract with the Bureau of Indian Affairs which would subcontract with the tribe.

Powless said that proposal won't be forgotten, but in the meantime the tribal business committee, on Monday, will vote on Stamp's offer to send two of his people to Oneida at least a half day each week to provide the complete system of financial services now available to the Indians at the Appleton office.

He's doing it to make things more convenient for the Oneidas, Stamp said, and to quiet some of their criticism. The tribe will have to supply an office and telephones, he said. He will not have to add to his staff. He could start soon after Jan. 1,

Stamp explained.

Powless thought it sounded like a good plan, but he hoped it was "not another broken promise."

Mrs. Ninham worried that it was "just an attempt to pacify us."

Stamp said he would consider widening the range of programs offered at the Oneida satellite office later.

Powless said a big part of the problem now was with the attitude of some social workers toward Indians. Mrs. John wondered if hiring an Indian social worker might improve conditions.

Oneidas have not applied for jobs in his department, Stamp explained, and even if they do, the state gives him the names of eligible candidates.

Stamp later told a reporter that while he can't know how his people feel toward Indians or other minorities, he is sure there is no outward discrimination shown the Oneidas by his staff.

He hasn't been able to come to grips with the problems caused by Indian relief, Stamp said. "I've been taking a tremendous amount of criticism the past two years."

Simply comparing caseloads and relief grants by Brown and Outagamie counties is not sufficient to draw conclusions, Stamp said, but it appeared the Indian relief program in Brown County is more liberal.

His department has traditionally been conservative in what it gives to meet essential emergency needs, Stamp admitted. It's the way he wants it and it's the way it will stay, he indicated.

He proposed that the state monitor the Indian relief cases in both counties to determine who's right and who's wrong. "I'll live with the results," Stamp said.

His philosophy on granting Indian relief, Stamp explained, was not to deny requests on technical grounds but to make sure applicants met eligibility requirements.

Part of the problem, he said, lies with the state which has not provided clear guidelines to assure Indian relief will be handled uniformly between different counties. State officials at Tuesday's meeting admitted it was a problem and added that changes are planned.

Where will diesel fuel come from?

Corn stubble is sticking through the snow on a 60-acre field on the farm of Floyd Whitmarsh, Omro.

The corn shouldn't be there; instead, plowed furrows should shape the snow in straight lines. But this year Whitmarsh didn't plow the field. He didn't have enough diesel fuel to run his tractor.

Not far away, at Waukau, Donald Bohn is trying to figure out where to get the gasoline he needs for a series of farms operated by his family.

Another farmer, at Oshkosh, planned for a fuel shortage by leasing a diesel tractor. Now he hasn't got a secure fuel supply. Luckily, he's landed a few hundred gallons that will last for a while. But next spring the need will be greater and the supply is uncertain.

The farmers are among those beginning to feel the pinch of a fuel shortage. In Outagamie and Calumet counties fuel suppliers say farmers are getting enough fuel.

But in Winnebago County the shortage is apparent.

The above trio aren't the only farmers short of fuel. When Bohn couldn't get enough gasoline to run the dozen-odd vehicles necessary for the farm operation of his family, he drove the farm bulk truck into Oshkosh to a service station that had promised him gasoline.

When he got there, the station operator said an oil firm representative had found out about an earlier 150-gallon deal with a farmer and reprimanded him. Bohn had to go elsewhere. He got the gas that day by driving from one service station to another. But he isn't sure where he'll get it next.

Whitmarsh can't get No. 2 diesel fuel. Instead, he's burning No. 1 furnace fuel in his tractor and adding oil to make it work.

Gasoline is a problem for him, too, but that can be purchased, at least, from service stations.

Right now he's waiting. He's waiting for the end of the winter and the chance at some fuel so field work can start — if the fuel is available then.

"If we get the fuel we'll do the best we can but if we don't get the fuel we just can't do anything."

Courts

Disposition has been set for Friday in the case of Ronald J. Kalbus, 19, Green Bay, who was found guilty Monday of theft.

Kalbus, appearing before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, admitted taking two bicycles owned by Nathan Ritchie of Shiocton at Shiocton on Sept. 24. A juvenile male also was arrested by county police in connection with the theft.

Carson T. Curtis, 36, 323 E. Winnebago St., was sentenced Monday to 90 days in the county jail for non support, but Family Court Judge R. Thomas Cane stayed the sentence on the condition that the defendant start making $35 per week payments.

Part of the payments are to be applied to an arrearage of $2,897. The payments are for the support of Curtis' five sons, ages 6 to 13, who reside with their mother in Appleton.

The couple was divorced on April 30, 1970.

A 48-year-old Shawano man was ordered to start making $200 per month payments or face a 90-day jail term for non-support after a hearing Monday before Family Court Judge R. Thomas Cane.

William Weinmann was accused of accumulating a $1,715 arrearage in payments between Jan. 1, 1972 and Nov. 8, 1973 for the support of his two sons, ages 3 and 6. The wife and children reside in Appleton, and the couple was divorced on April 14, 1972.

Sentencing has been set for Friday in the case of a 19-year-old Kimberly man found guilty Monday of unlawful possession of a switchblade knife.

Randal Fjellerad, 238 S. Lincoln St., pleaded no contest to that charge before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. A second charge, for marijuana possession, was dismissed upon a prosecution motion.

Both charges stemmed from an early Oct. 1 arrest for an apparent probation curfew violation by Fjellerad in Little Chute.

Police & fire beat

KAUKAUNA — A representative of Murphy Concrete Products, Plank Road, reported to police that a radio microphone valued at about $30 was stolen from a concrete-transport truck Monday night.

KAUKAUNA — Judith Kirkland, 31, 1443 Orchard Drive, was taken by police to her family doctor for treatment of a head bump and bruised knees suffered in a single-car accident about 1:15 p.m. Monday.

According to police, the woman was driving south on Boyd Avenue when the car went into a skid as she attempted to negotiate a curve. The auto hit a tree.

Courts

Four persons were charged Tuesday with conservation violations, relating to a Nov. 24 incident off old 54 south of Shiocton.

Donald R. Lessor Jr., 20, 117 Lorraine Ave., Neenah, was charged with four violations, including unlawful possession and firing of a weapon, shining deer and possession of a deer carcass.

The other three persons were charged with two counts each, for shining deer and possession of the deer carcass.

They included Harold R. Galske, 34, 1443 Orchard Drive, 28, both of Green Bay, and Julie Lessor, also of the Neenah address. Only the latter did not appear in court. A juvenile also was apprehended with the group by a state game warden in the incident.

A Jan. 15 pretrial conference was scheduled for the four by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Christmas bureau wraps it up Friday

The Salvation Army's Christmas Clearance Bureau, which keeps track of needy families and individuals and the donors who have volunteered to help make the holidays a merrier, happier time for them, will close at the end of the working day Friday.

Mrs. Evie Lorei, bureau coordinator, said workers expect to have all area residents who have been referred to the bureau for assistance at Christmas matched with donors by that time. However, she said today that there are still many area residents on file at the Salvation Army who need some help — food, toys, gifts — at Christmas.

Persons or groups interested in brightening the holidays for those families may call the Christmas Clearance Bureau — 731-1296 or 731-1297 — between 10 a.m. and noon and between 1 and 3 p.m. Thursday and Friday to lend a helping hand.

Mrs. Lorei said response of donors so far this week has been "overwhelming. Fantastic people have come right into our office and offered to help families now through the holidays. Some groups even have adopted families for the entire year. It's a beautiful response."

Mrs. Ninham worried that it was "just an attempt to pacify us."

Stamp said he would consider widening the range of programs offered at the Oneida satellite office later.

Powless said a big part of the problem now was with the attitude of some social workers toward Indians. Mrs. John wondered if hiring an Indian social worker might improve conditions.

Oneidas have not applied for jobs in his department, Stamp explained, and even if they do, the state gives him the names of eligible candidates.

Stamp later told a reporter that while he can't know how his people feel toward Indians or other minorities, he is sure there is no outward discrimination shown the Oneidas by his staff.

He hasn't been able to come to grips with the problems caused by Indian relief, Stamp said. "I've been taking a tremendous amount of criticism the past two years."

Simply comparing caseloads and relief grants by Brown and Outagamie counties is not sufficient to draw conclusions, Stamp said, but it appeared the Indian relief program in Brown County is more liberal.

His department has traditionally been conservative in what it gives to meet essential emergency needs, Stamp admitted. It's the way he wants it and it's the way it will stay, he indicated.

He proposed that the state monitor the Indian relief cases in both counties to determine who's right and who's wrong. "I'll live with the results," Stamp said.

His philosophy on granting Indian relief, Stamp explained, was not to deny requests on technical grounds but to make sure applicants met eligibility requirements.

Part of the problem, he said, lies with the state which has not provided clear guidelines to assure Indian relief will be handled uniformly between different counties. State officials at Tuesday's meeting admitted it was a problem and added that changes are planned.

Where will diesel fuel come from?

Corn stubble is sticking through the snow on a 60-acre field on the farm of Floyd Whitmarsh, Omro.

The corn shouldn't be there; instead, plowed furrows should shape the snow in straight lines. But this year Whitmarsh didn't plow the field. He didn't have enough diesel fuel to run his tractor.

Not far away, at Waukau, Donald Bohn is trying to figure out where to get the gasoline he needs for a series of farms operated by his family.

Another farmer, at Oshkosh, planned for a fuel shortage by leasing a diesel tractor. Now he hasn't got a secure fuel supply. Luckily, he's landed a few hundred gallons that will last for a while. But next spring the need will be greater and the supply is uncertain.

The farmers are among those beginning to feel the pinch of a fuel shortage. In Outagamie and Calumet counties fuel suppliers say farmers are getting enough fuel.

But in Winnebago County the shortage is apparent.

The above trio aren't the only farmers short of fuel. When Bohn couldn't get enough gasoline to run the dozen-odd vehicles necessary for the farm operation of his family, he drove the farm bulk truck into Oshkosh to a service station that had promised him gasoline.

When he got there, the station operator said an oil firm representative had found out about an earlier 150-gallon deal with a farmer and reprimanded him. Bohn had to go elsewhere. He got the gas that day by driving from one service station to another. But he isn't sure where he'll get it next.

Whitmarsh can't get No. 2 diesel fuel. Instead, he's burning No. 1 furnace fuel in his tractor and adding oil to make it work.

Gasoline is a problem for him, too, but that can be purchased, at least, from service stations.

Right now he's waiting. He's waiting for the end of the winter and the chance at some fuel so field work can start — if the fuel is available then.

"If we get the fuel we'll do the best we can but if we don't get the fuel we just can't do anything."

Courts

Disposition has been set for Friday in the case of Ronald J. Kalbus, 19, Green Bay, who was found guilty Monday of theft.

Kalbus, appearing before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, admitted taking two bicycles owned by Nathan Ritchie of Shiocton at Shiocton on Sept. 24. A juvenile male also was arrested by county police in connection with the theft.

Carson T. Curtis, 36, 323 E. Winnebago St., was sentenced Monday to 90 days in the county jail for non support, but Family Court Judge R. Thomas Cane stayed the sentence on the condition that the defendant start making $35 per week payments.

Part of the payments are to be applied to an arrearage of $2,897. The payments are for the support of Curtis' five sons, ages 6 to 13, who reside with their mother in Appleton.

The couple was divorced on April 30, 1970.

A 46-year-old Shawano man was ordered to start making $200 per month payments or face a 90-day jail term for non-support after a hearing Monday before Family Court Judge R. Thomas Cane.

William Weinmann was accused of accumulating a $1,715 arrearage in payments between Jan. 1, 1972 and Nov. 8, 1973 for the support of his two sons, ages 3 and 6. The wife and children reside in Appleton, and the couple was divorced on April 14, 1972.

Sentencing has been set for Friday in the case of a 19-year-old Kimberly man found guilty Monday of unlawful possession of a switchblade knife.

Randal Fjellerad, 238 S. Lincoln St., pleaded no contest to that charge before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. A second charge, for marijuana possession, was dismissed upon a prosecution motion.

Both charges stemmed from an early Oct. 1 arrest for an apparent probation curfew violation by Fjellerad in Little Chute.

Sen. Brock confident about 1974

WASHINGTON (AP) —The head of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee says he gave President Nixon an optimistic rundown Tuesday at the first White House strategy session for the 1974 elections.

Despite fears among some Republicans that the party faces loss of up to a half-dozen Senate seats next year because of Watergate and other factors, Sen. Bill Brock says he expects a result between breaking even and gaining two seats in 1974.

"That is pretty good considering the problems we've had," Brock said in an interview following the White House session with Nixon, Vice President Gerald R. Ford, GOP National Chairman George Bush, and his House counterpart, Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill.

A Democratic strategist, however, said that he expects an increase in the party's current 57-43 Senate majority next year, including pickups of some of the states in which GOP senators have announced their retirement or plan to. This list includes Ohio, Utah, Kentucky and New Hampshire.

He said the only Democratic incumbent in difficulty at present appears to be Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska, while Democrats have a chance against GOP senators in Kansas, Colorado, North Dakota and Florida.

Asked the basis of his optimism, Brock said, "Optimism is sort of contagious, and I'm in contact with our candidates. They wouldn't be running if they didn't think they'd win."

He listed Alaska, Connecticut, Iowa and Nevada as good prospects for GOP pickups, and said Nixon had expressed confidence in the ability of GOP Sens. Robert Dole of Kansas and Peter Dominick of Colorado to overcome current problems.

Earlier, talking with reporters at the White House, the Tennessee Republican said the GOP has been "severely wounded" by the Watergate and related scandals.

He added, "The thing that could be devastating for us next year would be an economic downturn."

The GOP strategists said President Nixon expects the economy to be in good shape next fall.

The White House session concentrated on Senate races, with Nixon and the party officials running down a state-by-state list of candidates and prospects.

Truckers get scattered support for stoppage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A threatened two-day work stoppage by independent truck drivers to protest higher fuel costs and lower speed limits appeared to have only scattered support today.

Leaders of the protest said they wanted independent drivers to vacate the nation's highways by 11:59 p.m. EDT tonight. But Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons told a Senate subcommittee Tuesday he doubted a shutdown would take place.

A check of truck lines, truck stops and truck union officials across the nation showed mixed reaction to the call for a shutdown.

Truckers, particularly independent drivers, want assurances that actions such as lower speeds, higher fuel costs and reduced supplies of fuel will not impair their ability to make a living. Most of them are paid by the mile and pay their own expenses.

In what appeared to be the most significant action, some 200 trucks remained parked today at a truck stop in Batonsville, Pa. The manager of the stop said the truckers were calling for an immediate stoppage rather than wait for the announced shutdown. There were no reports of truck blockades or any other work stoppage.

Robert Jasmon of Springfield, Ill., manager of the Midwest Truckers Association, which claims to represent 2,000 companies in the Midwest, supported the call for a shutdown on Thursday and Friday.

"We're asking all our members to park their rigs ... on their own lots," Jasmon said. He said member companies own about 20,000 trucks and estimated about 70 to 80 per cent would join a stoppage.

In Lamar, Pa., where truckers holed up last week for five days, a protest spokesman said drivers would go off the road today.

But checks in other areas produced no

Kempe gets BBC post

LONDON (AP) —The British Broadcasting Corp. has named German Maestro Rudolf Kempe as principal conductor of the BBC symphony orchestra. Kempe will succeed France's Pierre Boulez in September 1975.

A tall, commanding figure with gray hair, the 63-year-old Kempe is one of the most loved figures in London music circles. He resigned only two months ago from the Royal Philharmonic, after 12 years.

evidence of pending actions.
"There ain't no way Southeastern will stop hauling," said a spokesman for Southeastern Freight Lines in Atlanta. "As long as we've got fuel to run, we're going to carry freight."

"Our people don't participate in this," said Leonard Tose, owner of Tose Trucking Co. in Philadelphia, one of the East's largest.

In New Orleans, local Teamsters leader Charles Winters said his union is not encouraging or supporting any strikes. "We will not tolerate such a means of protest," he said.

In Bartonsville, an estimated 200 independent truck drivers had rolled to a halt at the "Stop 76" truck stop by early today. The drivers began pulling into the stop near Interstate 80 in northeastern Pennsylvania early Tuesday afternoon.

Protest leaders said they want all trucks off the highways by midnight tonight. They said they asked fellow drivers to either make their deliveries and shut down or shut down immediately.

John Sassi of Newark, Del., one of the drivers involved in the blocking of the Delaware Memorial Bridge last week, said in Washington Tuesday that up to 10,000 truckers would stop work in a Tuesday night protest. That did not develop.

Blind teacher insists he can do adequate job

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (AP) — Richard Fischer, 38, of Merrillan, who is blind, testified Tuesday he could not only teach, but also cook, change diapers, and play golf, basketball and volleyball.

The Wisconsin Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations is holding a hearing on whether he should be reinstated as a high school teacher in the Alma Center School District. He was notified in February, 1972, that his contract would not be renewed after he had become blind due to a disease following eight years as a physical education and biology teacher.

Fischer said he could still teach biology, an outdoor recreation course and driver's education. He said he would only need the assistance of a student tutor, his family or a friend at specific times.

Eban says Israel will be at talks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Foreign Minister Abba Eban has reaffirmed that Israel will attend the Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva next week despite the threat of an Israeli boycott from Defense Minister Moshe Dayan.

Dayan told newsmen Tuesday that Israel's delegates would not attend the conference if Syria was on hand and had not handed over a list of the Israeli prisoners of war it is holding. He also demanded that Red Cross representatives be allowed to visit the POWs.

Later, Eban softened Dayan's threat, telling an election rally that Premier Golda Meir's government has no objection to negotiating in Geneva with Egypt, Jordan and Lebanon. But he said the Israeli delegates would not deal with Syria at the conference until the POW issue is settled.

different from his earlier record and shows a much closer alliance to the principles of the Republican party," said Clarence Warner, the Oklahoma GOP chairman. "He would be the type of candidate I could vigorously support."

James Royce, Republican leader in Louisiana, said a Rockefeller candidacy in his state "would be far better received now than in 1972 or 1968. The governor has moved nearer the center, and the American people are nearer the center."

Wisconsin GOP National Committeeman Ody Fish said Rockefeller would have a "broad base of support ... and will be a factor in 1976."

"His final decision has to depend on several factors, including Gerald Ford's plans, President Nixon's problems, other potential candidates and his own soundings of his chances," Fish said.

Rockefeller's resignation turns the governorship over to Republican Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson, New York's No. 2 man during Rockefeller's 15-year tenure.

Ford congratulated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin has congratulated Vice President Gerald R. Ford and extended his government's "best wishes" for Ford's success in office.

A spokesman for the vice president said Dobrynin and Ford discussed "relations between the two countries in a general way" during the Soviet diplomat's 30-minute visit to Ford's office Tuesday.

Hamishmar commented that Dayan should "understand cabinet decisions correctly ... and not give his own interpretations of them."

Israeli border troops patrolled parts of occupied West Jordan today as dozens of Arabs demonstrated against the expulsion of eight of their neighbors. Security forces broke up demonstrations in two towns on the West Bank, where Arab saboteurs have gone back into action after almost four years of peaceful Arab-Jewish coexistence.

The demonstrators were shouting against the expulsion to Jordan of the mayor of the village of Bira and seven others accused of supporting the Palestine guerrillas and inciting resistance to the Israeli occupation.

Since the October war, saboteurs in the area have been throwing grenades, planting bombs and circulating leaflets advising Arab residents to quit their well-paying jobs in Israel. In addition to the deportations, Israeli security forces have blown up five houses and rounded up an undisclosed number of Arabs for questioning.

Israeli analysts say the guerrillas are making a show of strength before the Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva next week.

In Jordan, King Hussein said that he probably would not announce his government's official agreement to attend the conference until after Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger visits him Dec. 15 during his Middle East tour.

Egypt is expected to appear at the conference despite recent threats from some Cairo officials not to show up if Israel continues to refuse to withdraw its troops on the Suez front. Egypt and Israel already have exchanged their prisoners of war.

Hussein said in an interview with The Associated Press that he would insist on Egypt's and Syria's joining him in a commitment to demand Israeli withdrawal from all Arab lands occupied in the 1967 and October wars.

The king, who is at odds with Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization over which of them should represent Palestinians on Jordanian territory, added that Palestinians "in the occupied territories and elsewhere" must be given the right to self-determination after Israel withdraws from the West Bank of the Jordan river and the Gaza Strip.

Hussein also warned that fighting could resume at any time in the Middle East.

"Both sides are mobilized to such an extent," he said. "I don't think this situation can last indefinitely or for a long period without an eruption being a real factor, a real threat."

Alternate park sites to be studied

A committee of Appleton Jaycees, members of the Park and Recreation Commission and the city's new park supervisor will study alternate sites for the civic group's annual July 4 celebration, the commission decided Tuesday.

Area residents of Pierce Park have voiced strong opposition to continuing the annual event there, citing problems like traffic congestion, noise and litter. Most of those opponents have surfaced along the 600, 700 and 800 blocks of S. Summit Street.

Commission Chairman John Olson, one of two commissioners who will serve on the study committee, said work should begin soon after the first of the year. He indicated there was little likelihood of the celebration's being moved from Pierce in 1974, however.

Since the onslaught of criticism against continuing the celebration at Pierce, several petitions have been turned in by city residents who support continuing it there. At the commission's meeting Tuesday, another 103 signatures were turned in.

A total of 34 signatures appeared on petitions turned in this month. Some 31 have signed a petition opposing Pierce Park as a site for the July 4 affair.

Along with Olson and newly appointed Park Supv. Floyd Roberts, Commissioner Karl Becker and two or three Jaycees serve on the study committee. In addition to alternate sites, the committee will explore present needs for additional sanitary facilities, a requirement that parking be allowed only on one side of the street around Pierce Park next year and other measures that could make the event safer and less troublesome to neighbors.

In other action Tuesday, the commission tentatively authorized the park department to seek bids for cutting down 55 diseased elm trees. It will be the start of the city's concerted drive to eliminate them.

Bid specifications from Public Works Director Robert Miller were approved by commissioners without careful examination, so they reserved the right to allow to their tentative approval if they found problems with them. They wanted to give approval for bidding Tuesday, however, in order to get contractors started on the 55 trees by mid January. That would allow them enough time to finish before spring.

The 55 trees have been catalogued by the city in the past. Some of them have been on the list for several years. The commission felt that the 55 trees were the most the city could get in 1974, but it plans to begin cataloguing diseased trees throughout the city next spring in anticipation of a more ambitious cutting program next winter.

The total tree-cutting contract will be divided among property owners on the basis of the circumference of the trees that are cut.

In other action Tuesday, the board: — Approved a plan to allow the city's Finance Department to take over accounting procedures for the two departments. This, Finance Director Reynold Running said, would allow the department and other city officials to keep better tabs on expenditures and revenues for the various park and recreation programs.

— Instructed Recreation Supv. Lloyd Koehnke to seek a consultant for the Langedyke Park development project.

— Instructed Olson to appoint a committee to interview architects for the proposed northwest side swimming pool that was included in the 1974 budget at a cost of $850,000.

— Authorized appraisals for the proposed Mason Street park site bounded by Mason, Summit, Lindbergh, Whittier and Browning streets and the McKinley Park site.

Airline cutbacks...

taking that flight can change planes at Milwaukee, taking flight 201 arriving in Oshkosh at 9:42 a.m.

In total, North Central is eliminating departures from 40 cities, but is still providing service to the approximately 60 airports and 80 cities on its routes.

Wilbourne and Lutzwick said they were forced to cut back on flights because of the reduction in their fuel allocation, based on their 1972 jet fuel usage. North Central is being reduced from anticipated needs of 82 million gallons to 72-75 million gallons, and Air Wisconsin, from its anticipated 175,000 gallons per month to about 150,000 gallons.

North Central is taking 10 planes out of use, including two DC9s and eight Convairs, and Air Wisconsin one Beech-99, leaving it with six planes in service.

Both airlines have been working to conserve fuel through internal efficiency measures, but both spokesmen said the required reductions are too great to be handled totally in this manner.

Lutzwick said North Central had reduced flying speeds, stopped using auxiliary power for comforts, such as heating and air conditioning, and minimized unnecessary engine operating time on the ground.

Air Wisconsin had taken some similar measures, although Wilbourne said he didn't call for a speed reduction because he questioned the savings.

In both cases, the flights that had the lowest number of passengers were the ones to be eliminated, but with the consideration of not depriving any area of some service.

Wilbourne said Air Wisconsin avoided cutting flights affecting a large number of people, such as the Appleton to O'Hare flights. He said he didn't believe the airline could cut any more flights even if pressured by further fuel cutbacks.

But with the current situation, he added: "We think basically we'll be able to look after people. With a little planning, I think that people can get where they're going."

He said Air Wisconsin was cut 10 per cent in fuel allocation in November and another 15 per cent effective Jan. 7. The airline was given some consideration of its newly added flights to Battle Creek, Mich., which wasn't on the service route in base year 1972.

Lutzwick said the schedule change for North Central "is indefinite, but not permanent." He said future moves would be dictated by the fuel situation.

He said the airline still could continue to serve its communities if the passengers took time to plan their flights and secured early and firm reservations. Taking the last flight back from a city might be an undesirable practice now, he said.

Both airlines indicated that staff reductions were likely. Lutzwick said North Central would be reducing, but not in the Fox Valley, and Wilbourne said furloughs for some employees was a possibility.

Projector given

A film projector has been added to the equipment at the Sheltered Activity Center, thanks to the efforts of the Outagamie Association for Retarded Children. Leland Schroeder, president of OARC, makes the presentation to Mrs. Jan Houlihan, center, acting director, and Jackie Shelley, a client at the Center. It will be used for both visual training and enjoyment. (Post-Crescent photo)

FVTI can't accept high schoolers

KIMBERLY — The board of education learned Monday night that Fox Valley Technical Institute is unable to take any high school students for day classes because it has more full-time day students now than anticipated.

William Sirek, FVTI director, told the board that the school had anticipated a full-time day enrollment of 3,000 at the school by 1980 and that this year's enrollment already exceeds that figure. He noted that more than 20,000 students are participating in day and night classes. The present enrollment now for 1980 is 4,500.

The board had been investigating the possibility of having some courses desired by high school students made available at FVTI because potential enrollment in local classes would not warrant the expense.

The board voted to enter into contract with Northeast Processing Laboratory, Green Bay, for one-half time computer use for senior high classes for the 1974-75 school year at a cost of approximately $2,600. The district currently has a contract with the firm for one-quarter time, service, but business education teachers expressed the need for added time to properly train students. Present contract cost is $2,200.

Business Manager Myron Huth was authorized to prepare specifications for installation of an elevator at the senior high school to service all three floors. It was noted that students confined to wheelchairs or injured were unable to negotiate stairs at the school and that an elevator was a necessity as enrollment increased. Use of the elevator would be limited to those students requiring it.

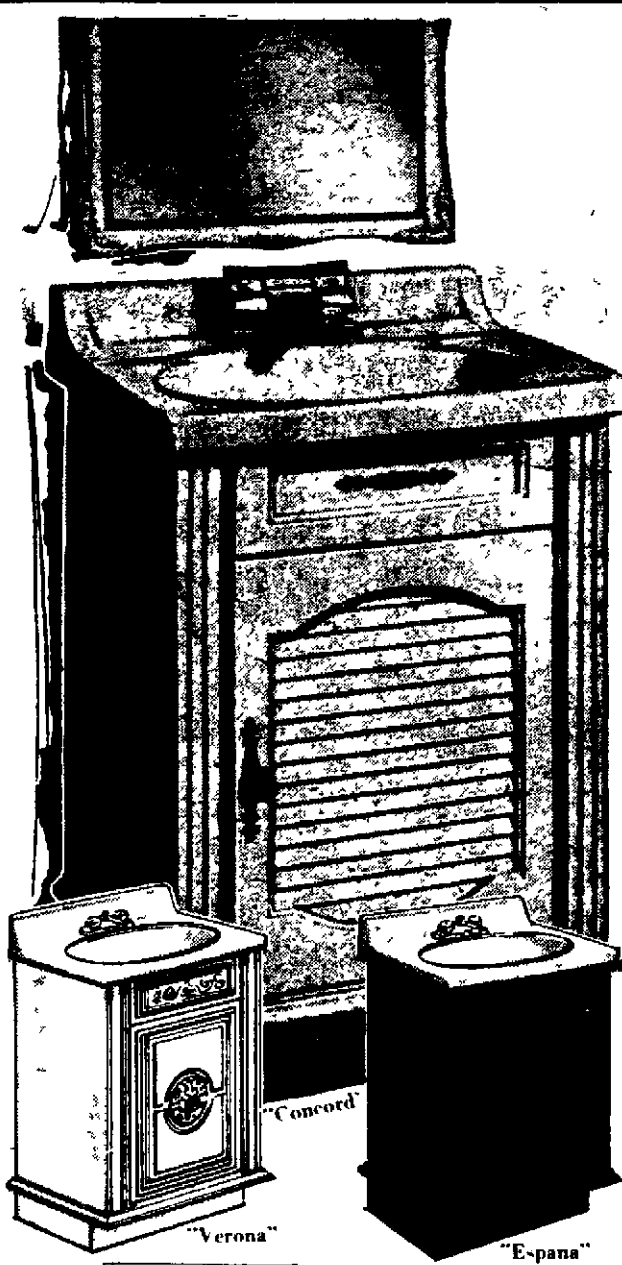

The board authorized Ridgley Schott, French teacher at the high school, to proceed with plans for a summer trip to Paris for interested students and an overnight ski trip for members of the Ski Club. Neither event will involve any expense for the school district.

The board also learned that instructors Thomas Wall and Thomas Galston were planning a four-day trip to Washington, D.C., for eighth and ninth graders at the conclusion of the school year. However, at the recommendation of School Supt. Ray Hamann, the board refused to become involved in the plan.

Board members believed such a trip should not be endorsed by the board and any meetings on the subject or plans should be entirely divorced from the school program.

Board members agreed to attend the Wisconsin Association of School Boards convention Jan. 18-19 in Milwaukee and authorized board member Joseph Van Daalwyk to attend the national convention in April in Houston, Tex.

Police & fire

KAUKAUNA — A representative of Murphy Limestone Co., Black Creek, reported to police that three company-owned homes at Augustine Street and Plank Road had been damaged extensively by vandals. The homes are unoccupied and are being considered for razing. No damage estimate was made but more than 40 windows were reported broken.

Ralph Murphy, 215 1/2 E. College Ave., told police he was struck in the groin by one of three unidentified men who came to his apartment about 2:30 a.m. today.

The men were believed to be in their early 20s and did not harm him further or damage the apartment. Police are investigating the incident.

Heavy smoke spread throughout the basement after a can of contact cement was ignited by a nearby hot water heater at the Thomas H. Sheehy residence, 906 S. Joseph St., about 7:20 p.m. Tuesday.

Firemen said a small amount of smoke spread to the upstairs.

Firemen were summoned to a vacated Appleton Mills building at 614 S. Oneida St., after a frozen sprinkler system head erupted and triggered an alarm about 2:50 p.m. Tuesday. The system was damaged after the heat was turned on in the building. Building attendants cleaned up the water spillage.

of the human resources involved, one of the two committees committed, said the report became available last week and his committee has not had a chance to get together with the finance committee and the trustees.

The resolution to provide $60,000 for the project was amended so that the $31,000 remaining in the provision for structural improvements fund would be earmarked for that project and that the remaining $29,000 would be taken from the health center settling up account.

Rehfeldt opposed the earmarking of the $31,000, shouting "we don't want any tainted money at Riverview!"

Supv. Joseph DeBruin noted that the proposed state 55 expressway right-of-way goes through the old wing of Riverview and suggested the committees consider that in their remodeling study.

A resolution to spend $200,000 remodeling bathrooms at the health center to permit the various wards to be used for both men and women was laid over for the fourth time.

This time, on the motion of Supv. Merritt Kavanaugh, "until the state defines PMI" — public medical institution.

Subpoena power will be sought

Some farmers are experiencing a shortage of fuel and Robert Park, Madison, an agriculture department official working in the Office of Emergency Energy Assistance, is ready to ask the state agriculture board Thursday to approve the subpoenaing of oil company records to find out where fuels are going.

Park is scheduled to present a fuel situation report Thursday before the board and is likely to request powers to subpoena oil company records.

Park, Clare Jackson, administrator of the department's trade division, and Donald Wilkinson, department secretary, serve on the fuel committee.

Arthur Kurtz, Madison, assistant secretary, said the board could immediately make available the power to subpoena oil firm records. Added orders would require hearings, he said.

Right now farm operations are at a minimum and diesel fuels generally are available to those who used such fuel in 1972. But gasoline already is getting hard to buy for farmers, he said.

"They're not getting enough for their bulk tanks."

And Parks wants to know why. Thursday, he probably will ask for three new powers from the agriculture board:

First will be mandatory filing of information by oil companies on a state level revealing availability of petroleum products.

Second will be the power to request information on amounts of product sold directly from firms to users instead of just amounts sold to wholesalers. Additional information on the past sales and supplies will be requested.

Third will be a formal request to farmers to estimate the need for diesel fuels for crop production and submit requests for fuel to suppliers.

Park maintained he needs the powers because some companies have neglected to complete requested reports. He specifically named Mobil, New York; Shell Oil Co., Houston; FS Services Inc., Bloomington, Ill.; CENEX, South Minn.; Northwestern Refining, St. Paul Park, Minn.; Gulf Oil, Houston; and U.S. Oil Co., Combined Locks.

He said most companies are below allocations for December. Those lacking the greatest percentage supply of middle distillates which include diesel and fuel oils, were Clark, 50 per cent allocation; Deep Rock, 55.7 per cent allocation; Texaco, 73 per cent allocation, and CITGO, 60 per cent allocation of No. 1 fuel oil.

Park said five companies listed full allocations of product for December. They were Phillips, Farmers Union, Midland, Coch Refining and Skelly.

"On gasoline the shortage is mild to severe with some particular problems in that we have some uneven distribution of the product. We seem to have quite a bit in service stations but a little light in the farmer's bulk tank."

Diesel fuel supplies will depend greatly on the severity of the winter, he said, since tractors and diesel trucks operate on the same fuel that is burned in most oil furnaces.

Courts

Three Neenah men were fined $300 each and sentenced to 10 days apiece in the Outagamie County jail after they were found guilty Monday of two conservation violations.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer provided Huber Law privileges, but also ordered three-year hunting license revocations and equipment confiscation for the three men, after he found each guilty of being party to unlawful possession of a deer carcass and shining deer.

The arrests stemmed from an early Sept. 8 arrest by a state conservation warden on County Trunk M north of Shiocton.

The three men include Duane R. Lehmann, 21, 1271 Larsen Road; Jeffrey W. Mueller, 19, 304 Torrey St., and Curtis A. Mueller, 21, 2229 Henry St.

Disposition was set Monday for Dec. 28 in the case of Arlene Bleck, 24, route 7, Appleton, after she was found guilty of failing to return a rented item.

She was charged with failing to return a towbar to Sarge's A-1 Rentals, 1931 W. Wisconsin Ave., after the two-day rental period expired on Nov. 2.

Her no contest plea was accepted by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Christmas Cookies

Lillian Mackesy

POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

The date is Dec. 18, next Tuesday to be exact, in the women's parlor of Memorial Presbyterian Church, East College Avenue. This is the day, beginning at 10 a.m., when United Presbyterian Women of the church turn saleswomen for their sixth annual Christmas cookie sale. The way to the parlor is through the back entrance on Meade Street, says Mrs. Fred Burdett, cookie sale chairman, who with association president Mrs. Richard Winslow promises a unique collection of cookies. Two hundred pounds of beautiful homemade cookies will be sold by the pound. Each box — at $2.75 each — will contain one of a kind in gorgeous array. A sampling of the cookie collection is portrayed today by Post-Crescent artist Fred Schmidt in color.

The oversized gingerbread men and ladies will be sold by the piece at 15 cents each. There will be 200 of these big ones from the Douglas Ogilvie family which has been making them for years as a between Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day project. Their recipe is a treasured family one. Then there's the husband and wife cookie team, George and Mary Miotke. George has made the beautiful "portrait" cookies with the Christmas tree, the bell or other multi-toned design the same on both sides of each cookie. Mrs. Miotke's contribution is the bright candy cane cookies. The miniature figures, frosted so carefully with a toothpick, are the work of Mrs. Guy Cook. Mrs. O.C. Boldt made the Maple Nut Wreaths and Mrs. Dwight Lawrence the Candied Fruit Slices with the stained glass window look. The pretty Holly Confections were produced by chairman Mrs. Burdett, who also worked out the Turtle cookies with the help of a Pillsbury prizewinner's recipe and the yeoman service of daughter Christine. The latter painstakingly split the pecan halves with a razor blade to give the "turtles" their realistic legs and head. So the collection grows to produce some uniquely interesting Christmas cookies with the "cookie staff" or committee including Mrs. John Hootman, Mrs. Robert Keeney, Mrs. Robert Allen, Mrs. Gerhardt Willecke and Mrs. Warren Hirsh.

Holiday travel problem looms

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Holiday travel is expected to pose problems for some Wisconsinites as Christmas draws near. The holiday season is normally the busiest period for airline, rail and bus travel, and this year the gasoline crisis is turning more people away from the automobile.

Airline representatives in Milwaukee report many flights are already sold out. Steve Dietrich, Milwaukee sales manager for North Central Airlines, said that as of last week, bookings were running 24 per cent above a year ago. Peter Gould, district sales manager for Ozark Airlines, said the reservation picture was "really bleak" for the Dec. 21-24 period.

Reservations aren't required for bus or train trips of less than 500 miles, and extra buses and cars can be added to help handle the passenger volume.

But prospects aren't as good for longer trips.

On these, says Lee Barrett, district sales manager for Amtrak in Milwaukee, "We've been turning down probably more reservations than we've been taking the last several days."

For local trips, more people have been turning to car pools. To help out, the Appleton Post-Crescent has begun offering free car pool ads for readers in its area. Eugene Hammen, assistant advertising sales manager, said the paper was apparently the first in Wisconsin to offer the service, which attracted 25 ads on Sunday.

Stanley York, who heads Wisconsin's new Office of Emergency Energy Assistance, has been busy keeping track of the situation around the state and getting ready for a special legislative session next week.

York told a legislative committee the lawmakers should consider action on traffic speed limits and issuance of short-term overweight permits for trucks carrying fuel oil. He said there would also be a bill dealing with the powers of his office.

York said he has been having trouble getting information on fuel oil supplies, with response so far from only three of 35 major oil firms.

An emergency conference on the energy crisis as it affects school districts is scheduled next Wednesday in Eau Claire.

With most gasoline stations closed Sundays, there has been a noticeable drop in weekend auto travel, and this has businessmen in Northern Wisconsin worried. They fear that persons who are more than a gas tank away won't be coming north for skiing and other winter recreation.

Shortages of gasoline and heating oil are the most apparent effects of the energy crisis, but there are others. Many industries which need petrochemical products find themselves in a bind.

Thompson Brothers Boat Manufacturing Co. of Peshtigo is troubled by a fiber glass shortage. President Saul Padek said the firm will have "no growth rate for the next couple of years" after growing at 30 to 40 per cent a year in the past. He predicts some newer and smaller firms in the field will go out of business.

Myron J. Krupp, technical director at the PPG Industries, Inc., plant in Milwaukee, said the shortage of petrochemicals is a severe problem in the paint industry. He said larger companies such as PPG have research capacity to put into newer products, but smaller firms have had trouble getting the materials they need.

Phillip Crohn, legal counsel for the Wisconsin Fabricare Center and the Dry Cleaners Guild of Milwaukee, said he heard that some cleaning shops in Northern Wisconsin had to close for a few days when they were unable to get cleaning fluid.

Printing companies, already hit by a paper shortage, now are finding other problems. Some chemicals used in making ink are scarce, as is isopropyl alcohol, used in making printing plates.

Carl Moebius, president of Moebius Printing Co., said printers have had to modify some production operations, pass up certain types of jobs and experiment with substitutes.

The Experimental Aircraft Association has changed the schedule for its fly-in convention at Oshkosh next summer so that it will encompass only one weekend. There will also be less flying during the convention, according to President Paul Poberezny.

At least one Milwaukee area billboard firm said it would reduce hours of sign illumination, and others were making plans. But a billboard salesman had this reaction: "What is needed is equal sacrifice by everyone. When television decides to shut down between 5 and 9 p.m. to save energy and newspapers start limited advertising, then maybe it would be fair to turn off the billboard lights."

In Jefferson County, lighting at the courthouse has been cut about 30 per cent. And County Administrator Robert Baier says night meetings may be shifted from the courthouse to the county home and hospital for further heating and lighting savings.

In Whitewater, police officers are doing less driving and more walking. It's not only saving gasoline, but having other effects.

"Our officers are meeting people face to face and talking with them," said Police Chief Don Simon. "I think this will be an aid to police protection."

Warning given on diet aid

MADISON — George H. Handy, M.D., State Health Officer, has warned Wisconsin consumers that two products sold as special dietary supplements primarily in health food stores contain potentially dangerous levels of hydrogen cyanide.

Derived from apricot kernels, the products are labeled Aprikern and Bee-Seventeen.

The distributor, General Research Laboratories of Van Nuys, California has refused a Food and Drug Administration request to recall the products from the market.

In the interest of public safety, the FDA advised that consumers and retailers destroy any supplies of the two products.

The FDA said it will initiate appropriate legal action to halt future interstate shipments of the products.

In its request for a recall, the FDA said that the Aprikern capsules were found to contain an average of 2 milligrams of hydrogen cyanide per capsule.

According to FDA scientists, ingestion of five such capsules could result in cyanide poisoning — fatal to a child. Twenty capsules could be fatal to an adult.

These figures are supported by oral toxicity studies performed on rats at the University of Arizona School of Pharmacology.

Two packets of the Bee-Seventeen product contain enough hydrogen cyanide to cause cyanide poisoning in a small child, the FDA said.

According to Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt, Commissioner of Food and Drugs, "Complete withdrawal of these products is hampered by two facts: They are sold nationally in thousands of retail outlets and each outlet usually carries small quantities. In addition, the manufacturer has refused to release distribution records. For these reasons, the FDA must rely in great part on public action.

Lake rehabilitation rules debated

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Rules issued by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources to carry out an inland lake rehabilitation program would take effect after their submission to two Senate and Assembly committees under an agreement reached Tuesday by a legislative conference committee.

The panel voted 4-2 to take the stand, although the Assembly version of the bill had called for approval by the committees.

Sen. Robert Knowles, R-New Richmond, said he didn't believe the legislators were equipped to be administrators.

"I can remember debate in the legislature about how many urinals should be required in a depot, a public depot," he said. "Now, that's not the reason I came to Madison."

Assembly Minority Leader John Shabaz, R-New Berlin, expressed dismay at the move.

"I can't imagine why we're afraid of ourselves," he said. "We're going to run in the weeds everytime there is something controversial. I hate backing down so readily. It seems to me that we don't trust ourselves."

The conference committee also agreed to a provision under which lake rehabilitation district could be set up upon agreement by a majority of landowners or the owners of a majority of land. The Assembly proposal would have required both.

Changes in bus routes sought

State losing revenue on gas use cutbacks

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Each five per cent decline in gasoline consumption costs the Wisconsin Highway Fund $8 million, state tax analyst Kenyon Kies said Tuesday.

The Nixon administration has called for a nationwide reduction in gasoline consumption.

Kies said that, before the administration began discouraging gasoline sales on Sundays, consumption in Wisconsin was running three per cent above a year ago, which was still below projections contained in the state budget.

His office originally expected the state's seven cent per gallon gasoline tax to produce $162.7 million in revenue for highway projects during this fiscal year, 4.5 per cent above last year.

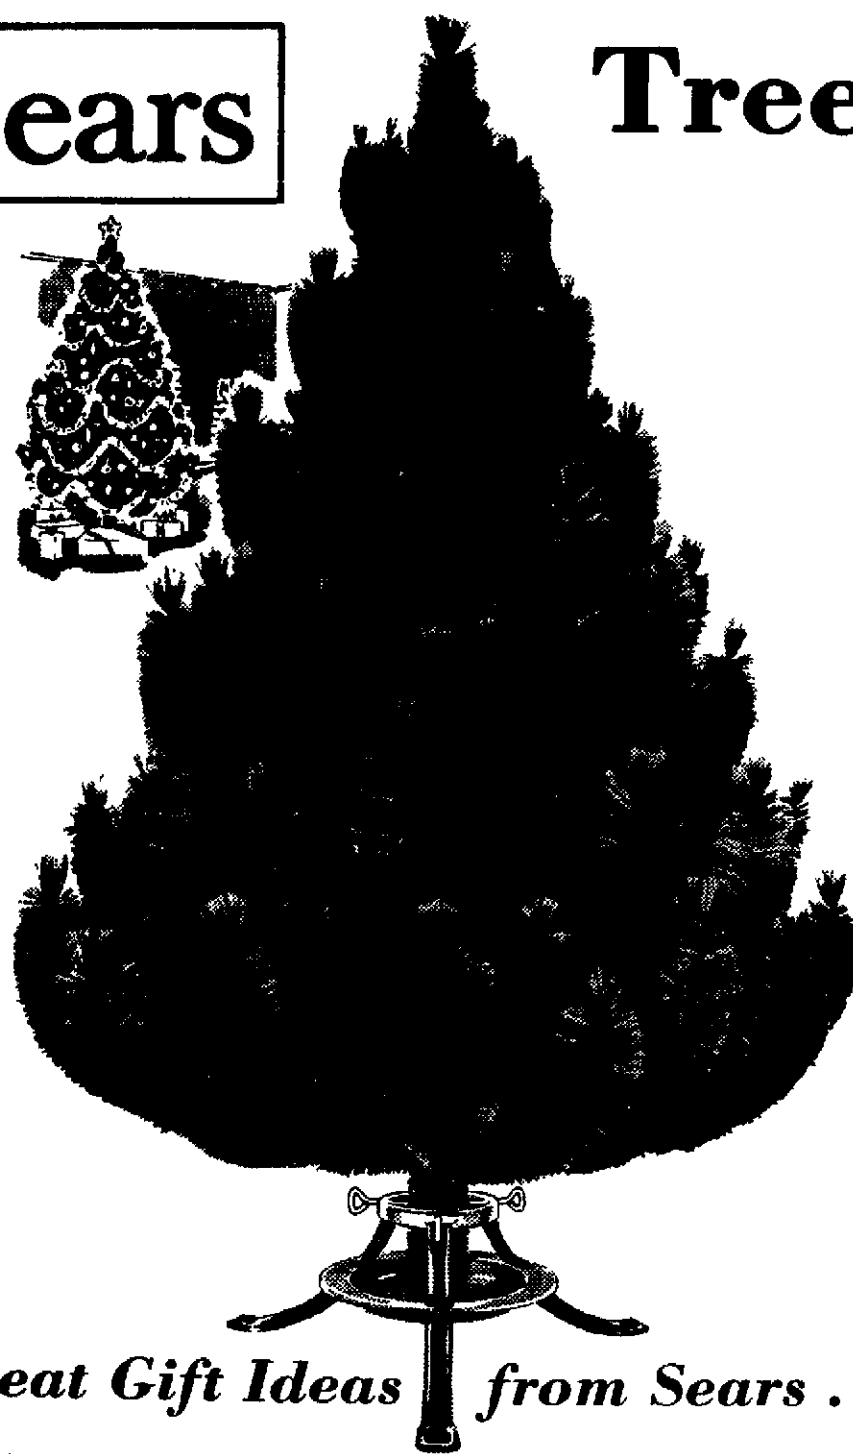

KIMBERLY — Members of the village board's maintenance committee toured the village in a Fox River Bus Lines, Inc., bus Monday afternoon and then voted to recommend that the village board approve a plan for changing existing bus routing in the community.

The route change is a result of a joint study by bus company and village officials to improve bus service within the community and to eliminate bus travel on narrow streets.

Before any change in routing can be made, the village board has to approve the change and the bus company has to seek permission from the state Public Service Commission to make the change. It is expected that the village board will act on the proposal at its January meeting.

The proposed new route would have buses entering the village from Newberry Street in Appleton, turning right onto Roger Street to Third Street, proceeding east on Third to Washington Street, north on Washington to Kimberly Avenue and then west on Kimberly Avenue back to Appleton.

The Ogilvie family cookies to be sold by the piece are one of a kind and represent a softer gingerbread figure than usual. Mrs. Ogilvie enjoys sharing her recipe with others, so here it is:

- ROLLED GINGER COOKIES
1/3 cup soft shortening
1 cup brown sugar, packed
1-1/2 cups molasses
2/3 cup cold water
6 cups all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
- Mix shortening, brown sugar and molasses; cream until blended smooth. Stir in water and blend. Blend dry ingredients together by sifting twice. Heat oven to 350 degrees. Mix dry ingredients into creamed mixture. Chill.

Working with 1/4 portions of dough at a time, roll dough out on floured pastry cloth to about 1/4 to 1/2 inch thickness. Cut into shapes. Grease cookie sheet; place cut-outs far apart on baking sheet. Bake about 15 minutes in 350-degree oven or until no imprint remains when lightly touched with finger. Allow baked cookies to cool on cookie sheet for 1 minute before removing. Decorate when cooled with frosting made by combining powdered sugar mixed with enough water and 1 teaspoon lemon juice to form consistency to force through pastry tube. If heavier cookie desired, use more flour in recipe.

- HOLLY CONFECTIONS
40 marshmallows
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1-1/2 teaspoons green food coloring
2 teaspoons vanilla
4-1/2 cups cornflakes
Red cinnamon candies
Red and gold candles
- Melt marshmallows with butter over low heat or in double boiler over hot water. Beat until smooth; add food coloring and vanilla. Stir in cornflakes, taking care not to break flakes yet coating them evenly and thoroughly. Drop in small clusters with tablespoon, working quickly. Place sheets of waxed paper on table or counter surface while marshmallow and butter is melting. It is better to have two working while forming clusters, one dropping the clusters of prepared cornflakes and the other placing the red candies and the silver or gold candies in place immediately. Time is important here, therefore make only one batch at a time since double portions are too hard to handle. Allow the holly mounds to set, at least 3 hours and better overnight. Then they may be removed from the waxed paper. Use wide spatula and slide each confection off with care. They should look glossy, but they should be dry and relatively easy to handle.

- CANDIED FRUIT SLICES
1 cup butter
1 cup sifted confectioners sugar
1 unbeaten egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2-1/4 cups sifted flour
1 cup pecan halves
2 cups candied cherries, halved
- Cream butter and sifted confectioners sugar until blended. Add egg, vanilla and blend mixture thoroughly. Add sifted flour, mixing well; stir in nuts and cut cherries (use both red and green cherries). Chill dough for 1 hour, then divide into thirds; shape each portion into 12-inch rolls, about 1-1/2 inches across. Wrap in waxed paper and chill for at least 3 hours.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. When cookie dough has chilled long enough, unwrap and cut dough into 1/8-inch slices. Place slices on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake for 13 to 15 minutes or until edges of cookies are delicately browned.

- SNAPPY TURTLE COOKIES
1-1/2 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 whole egg
1 egg, divided
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
1/8 teaspoon maple flavoring (optional)

Chocolate Frosting
Sift together the flour, soda and salt; set aside. Cream shortening, then add brown sugar gradually, creaming mixture well. Add whole egg and extra egg yolk, reserving extra egg white for later use. Beat mixture thoroughly. Blend in vanilla; maple flavoring adds extra touch which is good but not necessary. Add dry ingredients gradually, mixing thoroughly. Dough will be soft. Chill.

Split pecan halves with razor blade to form legs and head of turtles. Arrange in groups of 5, in starlike design on greased cookie sheet. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

- Mold chilled dough into balls, using rounded teaspoon. Dip each ball into egg white; press onto nut arrangements so tips of nuts show to resemble head and legs of turtle. Bake at 350 degrees from 10 to 12 minutes. Cool, then frost with chocolate frosting.
- CHOCOLATE FROSTING
2 ounces baking chocolate
1/4 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup sifted sugar
- Combine baking chocolate, milk, butter in double boiler or heavy pan. Melt mixture; remove from heat, stir to blend and cool. Add sifted sugar. Beat until glossy. While thin, spread over backs of turtle cookies. Allow to set. Recipe makes 2-1/2 dozen cookies.

- MAPLE NUT WREATHS
1 cup butter
3/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2-1/2 cups sifted flour
1 cup finely chopped hickory nuts
1/4 cup pure maple syrup
Candied cherries for trim
- Cream together butter, sugar; add vanilla to egg, then add to creamed mixture, beating well. Add flour, mixing thoroughly.
- Take one-third portion of dough for centers. Add chopped hickory nuts and maple syrup to this portion. Blend well and set aside for centering at proper moment.

Use cookie press with star plate to make the "wreath" rings from regular dough. Make rings about 1 1/2 inches in diameter on cookie sheet. Fill each ring in center with about 3/4 teaspoonful of reserved nut-dough mixture. Trim with candied cherries. Bake in 350-degree oven for 12 minutes or until done. Recipe makes 6 dozen wreath cookies. Let cool before removing from cookie sheet.

Festival Punch

This flavorful hot punch designed for Hanukkah is equally good at other times during the cold weather season. Its spicy warmth will be appreciated after a session of skiing, skating, ice fishing or snowmobiling. Its just as welcome after a brisk winter walk or a stint of snow shoveling.

Hanukkah happy time in Jewish homes

The dreidl is spinning again because it's Hanukkah time! The dreidl is the traditional spinning top made in special shape with each of its sides marked with initials for the Hebrew meaning "a great miracle happened here." It's a Hanukkah custom to spin the top in a game designed for the holiday that focuses on the children.

Hanukkah is a family festival and a time of gaiety in Jewish homes. It celebrates the victory of the Maccabean army over King Antiochus Epiphanes, who was trying to bring the Jews under the Greek religion. It took three years for the Maccabees to recapture the Temple of Jerusalem. When they went inside, they found only a tiny container of sacred oil, scarcely enough to rededicate the Temple. However, a miracle happened. The oil burned for eight days.

Today, Hanukkah often is called the Festival of Lights and goes on for eight days, beginning this year on Dec. 20. The first night of Hanukkah, an extra candle, called the shamash or servant, is lit, and this is used to light the candle further left on the menorah, a special candle holder. Each night another candle is added to the display.

After the family lights the candles, they recite blessings of thanks, and perhaps sing M'Oaz Tzur (Rock of Ages) and other special Hanukkah songs. On the first night of Hanukkah, gifts may be exchanged.

Since each of the nights of Hanukkah is like a little party, special foods are served. This year, homemakers may want to try a new hot fruit drink, appealing to adults and children alike. The base of the beverage is Hawaiian Punch fruit punch, which carries the Kosher "K". In this unusual recipe, the punch is simmered with spices, a sliced orange and a mixture of dried fruit, and lightly sweetened with honey.

- FESTIVAL PUNCH
1 can (46 oz.) fruit juicy-red Hawaiian Punch
1 orange, sliced
2 cinnamon sticks, each 3 inches long
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1/2 teaspoon whole allspice
3 cardamom seeds, shelled
11 ounces mixed dried fruit
3 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon lemon juice
- In large saucepan, combine punch, orange, cinnamon sticks, cloves, allspice, cardamom and dried fruit. Cover and simmer for 20 minutes. Strain. (Reserve fruit. Serve as an unusual breakfast fruit or warmed, over slices of fresh sponge cake.) Add honey and lemon juice to hot punch; stir to blend. Serve in warm mugs. Recipe makes 5 cups.

Wine on the Table

BY WILLIAM CLIFFORD
For more than 2,000 years Italy has been one great lovely disorganized vineyard. Leading the world in sheer quantity (exceeding even France), this land of the good life has recently been modernizing and upgrading the quality of her wine production.

Better-made Italian wines are flowing our way. Just when we need them the most, too, in view of the escalating prices of everything else to drink.

Eggs no longer held health hazard on cholesterol issue

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (AP) — Recent research has absolved eggs of being a health hazard because of high cholesterol, a state poultry industry convention was told last week.

"The medical profession is taking a second look at eggs in light of new research indicating that the brain is composed largely of cholesterol and eggs are not only high in protein but also in essential amino acids," said Lloyd Mowrer of Valders, general manager of an egg cooperative.

Leading in both popularity and quality is the dry ruby wine of the Tuscan hills, Chianti. Maybe you've noticed a vast difference between Chiantis. The fact is, Chianti comes in three separate styles.

If you've visited Italy you probably tasted the new bright-colored wine, low in alcohol, youthfully brash, sometimes harsh. Good enough to wash down the spaghetti but not made for export. Unfortunately this is the wine that comes into our market as cheap Chianti. People try it and wonder what went wrong.

Hopefully they move on to Chianti with a good brand name. It is deeper in color, smoother, more fragrant, more powerful. If you search around and pay considerably more, you get a Chianti Riserva. Bigger in taste, a bit higher in alcohol well aged.

There are several reliable brands of two latter styles. The one that made Chianti famous in America is Ruffino. Recently Ruffino introduced a stylish new bottle, the tall slim-necked Misura Chiantigiana or Chianti Measure. It's a generous super-magnum — 59 ounces vs. the usual 48 ounces of two regular bottles.

For help-yourself parties as well as for quality family drinking, the Ruffino Chianti Misura is a natural. It just pours and pours. And that's a good feeling when you're pouring Chianti.

Correct safety play can guarantee contract

Opening lead — ♦ Q

West opened the queen of diamonds, and South won with the king. Declarer knew that he would have to give up three heart tricks sooner or later, and he therefore concentrated on avoiding the loss of any other trick.

The first step, clearly, was to draw trumps. Should he win the first trump trick in his own hand with the king or queen, or should he lead a low trump to dummy's ace? The fate of the contract hung on his answer to this question. South counted his trumps carefully, noting that he was missing only four, headed by jack-ten. Any line of play would work if the trumps were divided, but he might be in trouble if one opponent had all four trumps.

What could be done if West had all four trumps? Not a thing. West would surely manage to get a trump trick.

What could be done if the four trumps were on the other side of the table? This was a different story, provided that South found out in time.

BAD NEWS REVEALED
South therefore led a low trump to dummy's ace. West discarded a diamond, and the bad news was out in the open. East had all of the trumps. Fortunately, South had found out in time. He returned a low trump from dummy. East put up the ten, and South won with the queen. Declarer could return to dummy with the king of clubs to lead another trump through East. No matter what East played, South could win a finesse with the king-nine.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner deals and bids one spade. The next player bids two diamonds. You hold: S-A 6 2 H-9 6 4 D-7 3 2 C-K 6 5 4. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades. This may be your only cheap chance to show modest values together with trump support for partner's suit.

Cranberry pie dessert from New England

Cranberries combine with raisins and orange juice in this modernized version of an old New England recipe. The result is a tangy dessert, just the right bittersweet ending to a fine meal. It has become a specialty of the chef for the new Crown Center restaurant to open soon in Kansas City, Mo. The restaurant will feature genuine American cuisine.

- TART NEW ENGLAND CRANBERRY PIE
3-1/2 cups fresh cranberries
1/3 cup pecans
1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup seedless raisins
1/4 cup fresh orange juice
1 teaspoon finely grated orange peel
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon milk
- Wash and dry cranberries. Put berries through food grinder, using coarse blade. Combine ground berries, nuts, sugar, flour, raisins, juice and peel, melted butter and salt. Prepare bottom crust and make strips of pastry for top crust. Spoon filling into unbaked pie shell; smooth top with spatula. Lattice top crust with pastry strips and secure to bottom crust by pinching dough together. Mix egg yolk and milk; brush lattice or grill strips with mixture. Bake for about 1 hour in preheated, 350-degree oven.

Freeze before toting

Freeze a frosted cake destined for a bake sale, family gathering or potluck supper. The firm, frozen cake carries well when the time comes and thaws quickly in time for cutting and serving.

Silver polish

The action of a silver polish should be similar to that of soap on soiled hands. It does not go below the discoloration or the dirt.

The slightest pressure is used in application so that the surface of the silver remains intact. Silver can be, and often is, spun or beaten out exceedingly fine. Undue pressure during polishing dents or wears out such silver. Worn silver or silver plate often becomes that way because of improper cleaning techniques rather than wear.

Ann Landers

Teen objects to test

Dear Ann Landers: I am so mad at you I could chew thumbtacks. According to the scoring on your newly up-dated Know Thyself Sex Test, at least half the kids in our school are "Condemned" and the other half are "Damned Fools" or "Messed Up and Heading for Trouble."

A 16-year-old junior girl, an acquaintance of mine, rated a "Normal and Decent." I happen to know she has been busted for drugs and has had an abortion. The questions in that obnoxious test were bad enough, but the scoring was out of sight. Are you sure you've got all your buttons, Annie?

Please take a second look at this generation and stop trying to classify people by what they do or don't do.—84 But Normal And Holding In Denver

Dear Norm: First, spit out those thumbtacks before you swallow one. Now listen to this: That test was not mine. I didn't make it up and I had nothing to do with the scoring. It came from a committee of teen-agers—two boys and two girls, as I said in the column. I made no comment either for the test or against it. I merely printed it as an example of what some teen-agers are thinking about these days.

Dear Ann Landers: I was glad you printed that letter from the mother on welfare who was made to feel like a parasite when she paid for her groceries with stamps. She signed her letter,

"You Could Be Next," and how right she is.

I have some additional figures put out by the League of Women Voters. I hope they will make an impression on those folks who keep saying, "Welfare bums will be the death of this country. If they won't work, let 'em starve. I don't want to support loafers."

Please print these statistics, Ann. They are correct.

Out of every 100 poor people in America today, 34 are children under 14 years of age.

Nineteen are people over 65.

Five are disabled or chronically ill.

This means 58 out of 100 people on welfare in this country are too young, too old or physically unable to work.

The next time someone in your crowd takes a crack at "welfare moochers" please have the courage to cite these figures.—Luckier Than Most Dear Lucky: I have. And I will continue to do so. Those figures are not new to me. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: My parents were happily married for 51 years. Last May mother passed away. Dad went into a depression—for about two weeks. Now he is so busy taking out every widow and divorcee in town we can't keep track of him.

We are concerned about Dad. He doesn't mention his arthritis anymore.

He has had it for years. It can't have suddenly disappeared. He used to ask me to buy him medicine for his sinus trouble, but now he claims he has plenty of medicine and says I should stop worrying about him. We are afraid he is neglecting himself, although everyone says he looks better than he has in years.

Last night I tried to phone Dad and gave up at 11:45. He wasn't at home. I am concerned that he is going into a second childhood and that he might drop dead of a heart attack. He and Mother lived a very quiet life and he is not accustomed to this new pace. What advice can you give us, Ann?—Concerned

Dear C.: Leave your dad alone. It sounds like his second childhood might be better than his first.

Warranty extended

A Wisconsin laundry equipment manufacturer recently announced the first "Full Two-Year Parts and Labor Warranty" ever extended to the consumer on home laundry appliances.

This means the firm pays the labor charges and provides free replacement for any part which fails as a result of a manufacturing defect during the first two years a consumer owns the appliance.

Weather forecast

Rain, turning to snow flurries over the northern Rockies, is forecast Wednesday for most of the West. Snow flurries are expected from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Great Lakes. Rain is forecast for inland regions from the lower Great Lakes to the Carolinas and showers are expected from the central Gulf to the Ohio Valley. (AP wirephoto map)

Winter storm forecast

A winter weather watch has been issued for the southern third of the state, including the Fox Cities, meaning conditions were right for development of rain, freezing rain and possibly heavy snow by morning.

The forecast was based on movement of a low pressure trough from the northwest, preceded by southerly winds expected to bring the precipitation.

The weatherman in Green Bay has also predicted a low temperature in the upper 20s tonight. Thursday should be windy and colder with a high in the upper 20s and a chance of snow. Friday should be variably cloudy with a chance of flurries and temperatures holding the same.

Precipitation probability is 30 per cent tonight and 70 per cent Thursday. Winds will be northwesterly from 10 to 15 miles per hour tonight, becoming northwesterly from 15 to 30 on Thursday.

Appleton recorded a trace of precipitation and a high of 23 and low of 16 in a 24-hour period, according to the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.

At midmorning, the barometer was rising at 30.04 and winds were calm. Relative humidity was 87 per cent and the dew point was 22 degrees.

Sunset today at 4:14 p.m. Sunrise tomorrow at 7:21 a.m. Moonrise tonight at 7:38 p.m. Last Quarter on Dec. 16.

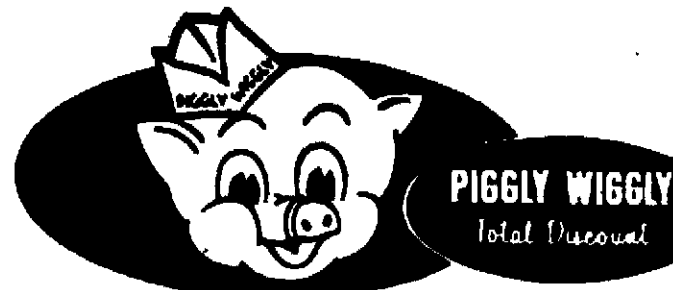

Prominent Constellation; Cassiopeia high in north at moonrise.

Visible Planets; Saturn rises at 5:19 p.m. Venus sets at 7:05 p.m. Jupiter follows Venus. Mars high in south at moonrise.

Courts

Donald Tate, 18, route 1, Hortonville, was placed on the Volunteers in Probation program for one year after he pleaded no contest Tuesday to being party to a theft.

Tate, appearing before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, had been accused of being party to the theft of over $40 from the car of William Zimmerman at Zimmy's Service Station, U.S. 41 and 10, Town of Grand Chute, on Sept. 3. Tate was alleged to have persuaded another person to take the money, which the two then split.

Petri urges group effort to beautify Fox River

GREEN BAY — The continuing success of pollution abatement efforts along the Fox River from Green Bay to Appleton should pave the way for transformation of the stretch into a major recreational area, State Sen. Thomas Petri, R-Fond du Lac, said Monday.

Speaking to a session of the Association of Wisconsin Planners, Petri said if the people of northeastern Wisconsin can recognize such a transformation is possible "but at the same time realize the Fox must continue to be used as an industrial resource, and if legislators and planners are able to respond creatively, then I think we can see the Fox River turn around."

Petri said today that he would probably introduce legislation in January, at the start of the next session, to encourage the transformation. He is now looking for support from the area for such a move.

He envisions a voluntary effort of government, citizens, planners and shoreland property owners.

"There are stretches of the Fox River between Appleton and Green Bay that are even now as beautiful as rivers in other parts of the state far removed from major population centers, and there are stretches that with a little work could be as beautiful," said the Fond du Lac Republican.

"But right now the water is dirty, so much so that there are also stretches where only the most primitive form of life can exist," he continued.

Government pollution abatement efforts, however, have started to have their effect, and "paper mills and KAUKAUNA — Firemen spent more than an hour cleaning smoldering wood dust and chips from I-beams in the woodroom of Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co. about 9:40 a.m. Monday.

Firemen said there was no damage and no flames connected with the fire, which is believed to have been started by flying sparks when a chain on one of the machines snapped.

municipalities along the Fox have begun to clean up their discharges into the river. Life is slowly returning to the Fox."

Money guides if you're in car pool

Okay, you've decided to form or join a car pool to commute to work, shopping centers or schools and thereby to save gas, oil and money. Do you know what to do and not to do about your auto insurance? Are you fully aware of the tax angles?

Almost surely, millions of you who are in car pools are taking unnecessary risks with your insurance protection. Millions of others of you are reluctant to join car pools with neighbors or acquaintances because you fear you might expose yourself to lawsuits that wouldn't be covered by your regular insurance. To guide you, here are vital Do's and Don'ts.

Income taxes and expenses
DO NOT report amounts received from your fellow passengers as income on your tax return unless these amounts exceed your expenses. On the other hand, don't try to deduct the costs of operating your pool cars; these are not deductible expenses.

DO NOT risk losing your insurance by trying to form a car pool for profit. All private car policies prohibit using private cars as a "public livery or conveyance," warns the Insurance Information Institute, and despite a recent court decision in favor of the car-pool organizer and against the balking insurance company, if you try this, you'll jeopardize your insurance.

You'll have no problem if all of you in the pool use your cars an equal amount of time. The problem comes up when one of the members of your car pool does not share in the driving chores and makes up for this by paying a regular fee.

If there is a car pool fee, it should not be more than the member's fair share of the gas, oil and general depreciation on the car. A simpler solution, suggests the Insurance Institute, is for the non-driving passengers to reimburse the pool drivers with a gift to each some time during the year. This will separate the concept of fee from the privilege of riding in your car pool and your insurance protection will be preserved.

Bodily injury liability
DO consider raising your limits on your bodily injury liability coverage to protect yourself as much as possible against claims from others (including your pool members) should you be involved in an accident. A typical car owner carries at least a minimum "10-20-5" auto liability insurance policy. In this instance, the 10 means $10,000 would be available to one person injured in an accident; $20,000 would be available to all people injured in a single accident; $5,000 would be available to pay for property damage. But if you should be found responsible for a fatal accident, the jury verdict easily could amount to $50,000, $100,000 and up.

If you raised your limits to $100,000/$300,000, you'd have $100,000 coverage for one injury in an accident, with a $300,000 per accident limit. And it would cost you ridiculously little to multiply your liability coverage. Specifically:

For a $10,000-$20,000 coverage, a typical yearly premium is $50; for $25,000 - $50,000, it is $59.50; for $50,000-$100,000, it is $65; for $100,000-$300,000, it is $70.50.

DO offset the cost of a higher upper range of liability coverage by increasing all your auto insurance deductibles and thereby slashing your auto insurance premiums on your own. For example, a $500 deductible will cost you less than half $100 deductible collision coverage.

DO NOT, though, unnecessarily expand your medical payments coverage. If your policy has limits of $1,000, each person in your car can receive up to $1,000 for medical expenses incurred within one year of an accident, no matter who is at fault. Since the dollar limits apply to each of your passengers separately, there is no need for you to increase the limits to cover additional passengers riding in your car pool.

About property damage
DO NOT expand your property damage liability coverage needlessly, either. This coverage protects you against claims resulting from damage to other people's property. It is not likely to be affected by your car pool, for the number of passengers in your car wouldn't ordinarily contribute to the amount of property damage done by your car in an accident.

DO check at once whether you can get low-cost group auto insurance through the company for which you work, your union or a social or professional group. Some of the largest corporations and unions in the country are sponsoring group plans now. In addition to lower premiums and the convenience of pay-as-you-go instalments, you're likely to get better claims service from the insurance company because a bigger commission than on an individual account is at stake.

Today in history

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 12, the 346th day of 1973. There are 19 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1642, the Dutch navigator Abel Tasman discovered New Zealand.

On this date—

In 1792, in Vienna, 22-year-old Ludwig van Beethoven paid 19 cents for his first music lesson—from Franz Joseph Haydn.

In 1804, Spain declared war on Britain. In 1894, Japanese troops invaded Korea.

In 1937, the U.S. gunboat Panay was sunk by the Japanese in the Yangtze River in China.

In 1944, Tokyo was partially evacuated because of firebombing by American Superfortresses.

In 1964, Kenya became an independent republic within the British Commonwealth.

Ten years ago: Frank Sinatra Jr., who had been kidnapped at a Lake Tahoe gambling casino, was released in Los Angeles after his father had paid $240,000 in ransom.

Five years ago: An American jetliner exploded and plunged into the Caribbean off Venezuela, killing 51 persons.

One year ago: Sixty-five Haitian refugees stumbled ashore on a Florida beach after three weeks aboard a sailboat, including five days without food and water.

Today's birthday: Frank Sinatra is 58 years old.

Thought for today: It is impossible, in our condition of society, not to be sometimes a snob—W.M. Thackeray, English Writer, 1811-1863.

Boy wounds himself in foot

Injured was David A. Yonke, son of Mrs. Karen Yonke, 5540 W. Broadway Drive.

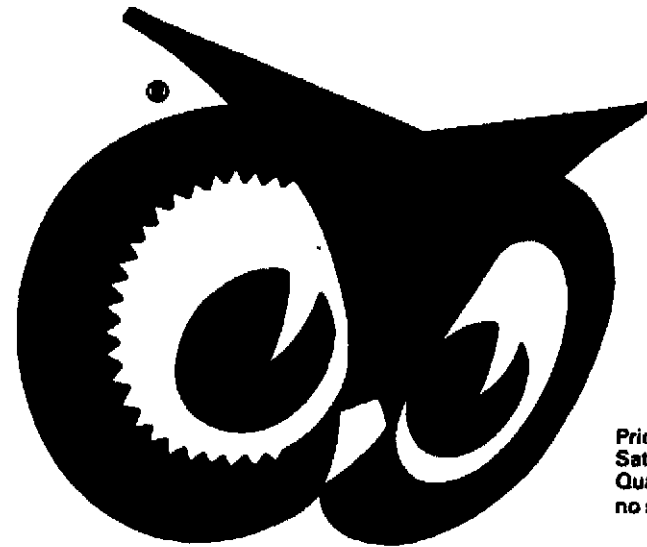

Police said the boy was home alone. He was lounging on a sofa and playing with a single-shot, .22-caliber rifle when the weapon discharged. The bullet entered his right foot just below the ankle and came out the bottom of his foot near his toes.

The boy attempted to control the bleeding and then called a neighbor for help. She summoned an ambulance.

Correction

VANDEN BROEK—The net tax rate on property within the Little Chute school district of the Town of Vandenberg will be $20.70, not $20.30 as reported Monday in The Post-Crescent.

Election reform loses again

The tacking on of the public financing of election campaigns to the debt limit extension bill was another example of how Congress is not supposed to work. But there remains an opportunity to pick up some of the pieces for the 1974 congressional elections.

Strategy of the Senate supporters of public campaign financing was to force a House vote on the proposal by adding it as an amendment to the debt ceiling bill which had to be passed. In the House, the powers of a committee chairman as exercised by Rep. Wayne Hays, chairman of the Administration Committee, have kept the proposal bottled up in committee. Further, the idea was that, since the debt ceiling bill had to be signed, President Nixon could not veto the campaign financing plan.

But the result was an old-fashioned filibuster by Sen. James Allen of Alabama which kept the Senate in session over a weekend, stole the thunder from the election reformers and caused a lot of worries about the nation being able to meet its financial obligations. It was inevitable, then, that the debt extension deadline had to be met and that the wrong vehicle had been chosen for getting public financing of campaigns into law.

The whole affair may turn out to have been counterproductive. The strategy of force clashes with the characterization of reformers. A lot more educational work, like that which can come from the Senate Watergate Committee, remains to be done before voters will be convinced the use of public money is the only way to clean up election campaigns. The disappointing response to the 1973 income tax checkoff established that, and the Senate bill would have increased this source of unproved funds.

Public financing of campaigns should stand before Congress on its own merits. Before giving in to the filibuster, Senate supporters of the plan won a promise to get it back before the Senate in February.

In the meantime, the House should break the hold of Hays. Another Senate bill establishing an independent commission to oversee federal elections, to require better public reports of contributors and to outlaw major contributions and spending in cash which leaves no records is waiting for a House vote. That would be a good first step.

The value of day care centers

One of the federal retrenchment areas during the Nixon Administration has concerned the development and support of day care centers for children. Whatever may be the financial basis for the cutbacks, the philosophical justifications are tenuous at best. A new study tends to dispute them.

A team of University of Kentucky psychologists has been conducting a study into the effect of such centers upon young children. It has compared these children, all of whom were studied only after they had spent at least nine months in a day care center program, with youngsters who stayed at home with their mothers. Basically the study showed that so far there is no social or mental difference between the two groups.

Dr. Richard Winett, director of the study, has pointed to the difficulties of making general conclusions from the research thus far. In the first place, the majority of the children at the centers came from white, middle income families. Those who kept their children at home tended to be more conservative but whether this was cause or effect is impossible to determine. Obviously the stability of the home in all cases is important. Dr. Winett has stressed that long term studies must continue to be made.

There is another interesting side effect of child care centers, the team discovered. Fathers whose children spend time in the centers are more likely to devote time to the children during their hours at home than the fathers whose wives had the children all day long. This may indeed be an unconscious feeling on the part of the fathers that the child is suffering some amount of parental neglect by going to centers. Or it may merely indicate that fathers in families that do not oppose center care are more likely anyway to spend time with their children. They may be less likely to pigeonhole child care in the female category. The study found that increased participation of the father did not have any appreciable effect upon the child's development at this stage of the research.

The early years of a child's life are being considered more and more important in his future development. The security of close association with a few people — mother, father, grandparent, nanny, social worker, the relationship is unimportant — is generally accepted as very important. It also seems essential that that association not be abruptly terminated if at all possible. Such concern is being considered more by courts in taking children from natural or foster parents or at least many child psychiatrists believe it should be.

What the Nixon Administration appears to fail to realize is that emotional and financial situations impel some mothers or both parents to work outside the home. Children not in day care centers or in poor ones are being neglected. Refusal of the federal government to give aid to the centers and make possible a considerable growth in the number of such centers is dooming a lot of youngsters to impoverished lives on the emotional level. It is particularly harsh upon the financially poor. We need more, rather than less, concern for the care of young children of all economic and social levels.

Protecting rural scenery

The town government officers of Wisconsin, who have more opportunity to observe the blighting of national scenery than most others, have offered a constructive suggestion to the legislature for the protection of the environment.

There ought to be a law, the Wisconsin Towns Association resolved at its recent convention, requiring candidates for political office and campaign workers functioning for them, to remove their photographic likenesses and other campaign posters from utility poles, buildings, trees, fences and other places within 30 days after an election.

The idea is entitled to a cordial boost by everyone who regards the natural landscape as worthy of preservation. Put to a referendum, we would suggest that the Wisconsin electorate would approve removal within five days, and possibly, a prohibition of such indignities altogether.

Election reform draws poor crowd

MADISON — The state Senate committee hearings on reforms of the state election campaign expenditure control laws were at once encouraging and discouraging.

That a man of the seniority and rank of Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek, one of the leading figures in the Republican controlled Senate, should make such an energetic effort to invite public expression on the long neglected issue may be taken as a promising sign.

But the indifferent response of the public and especially the political community to the widely advertised hearing schedule is a disappointing sign of public indifference toward what may be called without exaggeration one of the most serious of the problems confronting representative government in this state and in America.

Attendance is scant

As the series of public hearings began in Madison, Lorge arranged for the use of the commodious Assembly chamber rather than his own more modest hearing room in the Capitol, obviously because he expected a substantial attendance. But the attendance was scant. A committee discussion on a califhood vaccination proposal or any one of the legislative proposals of the animal protective leagues would have brought more response and far more attendance.

Members of the committee of both parties, nevertheless, are entitled to credit for some concern about improvements in the law. If the witnesses who turned up to testify on behalf of the body politic repeated mostly familiar material, that is the price that must be paid for reform.

The first lesson a politician learns when he comes to the legislature or takes a seat in other levels of government is the need for patience. The first lesson the reporter learns when assigned to public affairs is that patience and tireless repetition accompany progressive change in law and public policy.

As could have been predicted, the star witness at the first of the Lorge hearings was the University of Wisconsin teacher who is perhaps more expertly informed on campaign funding practices than anyone in the country.

David Adamany as a witness was reasonable, persuasive and enviably fluent as he discussed some of the dark sides of American political morality and the loopholes in the ostensible statutory controls on the use of money in politics that would long since have become the cause of popular revolt in any other context, as in the family law code, for example.

The reality is that control of the use of money to win public office and political power in this state — and perhaps to a greater degree elsewhere in the country — is substantially illusory. The fact is that even good men who flinch as they learn about the loopholes and the general disregard for the objective of the law are compelled to defy the spirit of that law as the price of competing for public place.

Public accountability is a fiction. The politicians' expense statement gets no official auditing whatever. The laborer's income tax return, by contrast, is checked.

As Prof. Adamany put it so succinctly, even the man of highest principles is compelled to "dance on the edge of legality" if he is serious about political involvement through public office.

All this is not to denigrate the members of the Lorge committee, notably Sens. Babilitch, Stevens Point Democrat, and Roger Murphy, Waukesha Republican. Both had questions that suggested not only professional political sophistication but an earnest concern with assuring honest politics and truly representative government.

There was a tone of fatalism, however, in the Lorge suggestion that the committee wrap up in one bill all statutory revisions that are generally acceptable and incorporate in another the more candid and drastic ideas for change. The proposition has a reasonable sound. Actually, it almost surely foretells the defeat of true reform. That dog won't hunt, as the fellow said.

Books not to give kids for Christmas

When I was a lad, and used to devour sports books, they were all fashioned on the Frank Merriwell form—all simple black-and-white, with heroes and villains, obstacles overcome, virtue triumphant in the end, and no doubt about the purity of the contest or the meaning of the moral: clean living and honest dealing pay off.

In the last decade, I have noticed a perceptible change in the books being written about athletic endeavors, in consonance with the growing cynicism of the country as a whole. If we are losing our ideals, as some insist, nowhere do we seem to be losing them faster than in the realm of sports.

Disaffected baseball players, disgruntled football players, and all their assorted ilk, have been penning vitriolic and disillusioning diatribes against the Machiavellism of the playing-fields. They indict politics, cold commercialism, legal trickery, the chattel system, the players' unions, the doping of contestants, the sham of amateurism, and the brutal pragmatics of professionalism.

Except for the technical manuals, and a few hagiographies of such enshrined figures as Vince Lombardi, it is hard to find a book to give a youngster today that does not debunk the whole sporting ethos of the past.

Latest in this list is a volume called "The 50-Meter Jungle: How Olympic Gold Medal Swimmers are Made," by Sherman Chavoor with Bill Davidson, and a preface by Mark Spitz. Chavoor has twice been the coach of the U.S. women's Olympic swimming team, and is the man Spitz credits for his seven gold medals.

Here is how the book is trumpeted ("Major advertising and promotion") by its publisher:

"The phony amateurism of the Olympic Committee, the pain of the endurance training, the bitter rivalry among parents, the exclusionary practices of the WASP-dominated country clubs (that Spitz was the first Jew to be a champion, and that no blacks compete for the U.S. In this sport is no accident), the destructive squabbles of the NCAA and the AAU—these are some aspects of the '50-meter jungle' Chavoor exposes."

In addition, "He reveals the hypocrisy of a sport in which a little money on the side is okay, but too much is sure grounds for disqualification. There are harsh words for parents who push their kids too hard and for those who interfere unnecessarily. Chavoor says swimming is so cutthroat that a child of eight has to learn to defend himself against a psych-out from a competitor's parent."

A fine, inspiring book to give your kid for Christmas. Along with those piranhas he's always wanted.

Beast reconstructed

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — The Bucharest Natural History Museum has on display the only complete reconstructed Deinotherium Gigantissimum, Latin for "Gigantic, terrible wild beast."

This ancient relative of the elephant was 18 feet tall and had huge upcurving tusks. It was a scourge of southeast Europe during the Pliocene Age.

The skeleton was found at the turn of the century in the Romanian province of Moldavia by Prof. Grigoriu Stefanescu of Bucharest University.

Is Kohoutek Nixon comet?

Richard Nixon has enough troubles without Comet 1973-f, better known as Kohoutek. Historically speaking, comets have been bad medicine for world leaders, and astrological types are predicting that the winter 1973-1974 visit of the giant comet Kohoutek augurs poorly for Mr. Nixon.

Maybe so. Although William Shakespeare hardly qualifies as a political scientist, he dramatized the concept of comets as messengers of political upheaval and doom:

When beggars die there are no comets seen;
The heavens themselves blaze forth the death of princes.

Historians have linked comets to the rise and fall of countless kings and rulers — Hannibal, Mithridates, Alexander the Great, Caesar, Herod, Jesus Christ, Mohammed, Attila the Hun, William the Conqueror, Genghis Khan and Napoleon.

Political phenomena

The ancient Romans took comets quite seriously as political phenomena. Pliny the Elder said: "A fearful star is a comet, and not easily appeased, as appeared in the late civil troubles when Octavius was consul; a second time by the intestine war of Pompey and Caesar; and in our own time, when Claudius Caesar having been poisoned, the Empire was left to Domitian, in whose reign there appeared a blazing comet."

Halley's comet, one of the most famous, was visible over Palestine in 7 B.C., and a Roman oracle told King Herod that the comet foretold the birth of a boy destined to be greater than himself. Herod killed his own sons, and then (according to Matthew, Chapter 2) ordered the massacre of every male infant born in Judea under the sign of the comet. As the comet blazed ever more brightly, Herod tried to commit suicide and soon died of the infections from his wounds.

The other examples make an extraordinary list. In 43 B.C., a brilliant comet was visible in broad daylight at the death of Julius Caesar. The comets of 451 and 455 were linked by contemporary historians to the deaths of Attila the Hun and Valentinian, Emperor of the West, and thus to the downfall of the Roman Empire. A comet appeared in 1066 as William the Conqueror invaded England, killing the Saxon King in battle and establishing Norman overlordship. Yet another comet appeared over France and the Island of St. Helena the night before the death of Napoleon.

Scientists have also linked the chronology of comets to natural phenomena — earthquakes, plagues, fires and floods. Sir John Herschel, the astronomer who discovered the planet Uranus (1781), argued in his time that "history abounds with coincidences of epidemics, wars, overthrow of kingdoms and their rulers, pestilence, famine and earthquakes with the appearances of great comets." Most of the scientific and quasi-scientific explanations rely on the idea that movement of the heavenly bodies affects life on earth (demonstrably true, for example, with respect to the influence of lunar phases on ocean tides — and possibly even on human activity).

Brightest in centuries

Expected to be one of the brightest comets in centuries, Kohoutek appeared from behind the sun on Sept. 23, 1973, and its visibility increased during October and November. On December 28, the comet will pass within 13 million miles of the sun and then begin heading back to outer space. During January and February, Kohoutek will be easily visible in the western sky after sunset. Late March observers will need binoculars or a telescope. And by then, perhaps we will know what, if any, great historical events, deaths or collapsing governments will be associated with the appearance of Kohoutek.

Looking back New way to remove feather beds

100 YEARS AGO
Appleton Crescent, Dec. 13, 1873.

Messrs. Seamans & Hopkins are in town for the purpose of renovating feather beds and pillows by the new steam process which has attracted such attention recently.

We must confess that when the subject was first presented to us, we were in somewhat incredulous about the method. We must confess, however, the result far exceeded what ever has been claimed for it by the proprietors.

Beds that have been used for years in the house, and the feathers becoming lumpy and lifeless, are purified and made as light and nice as when new. We can assure our readers they need have no fears but the process will well pay the small investment required to entirely renew their beds.

The gentlemen proprietors desire ladies and gentlemen to call at their place of business on the Avenue, a few doors west of Edgerton House (site of the present Masonic Temple) and witness the manner in which the work is done.

Congressman Richard M. Nixon was chairman of the House Un-American Activities committee investigating former State Department official Alger Hiss on spy charges and the testimony of self-confessed former Communist courier Whittaker Chambers.

Jack Hoblewitz was president that year of the Menasha High School Printers Club. George Zielinske was vice president and Kenneth Reinke secretary-treasurer.

David Fulton was elected worshipful master of Waverly Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons.

John E. Wissman, employee of First National Bank for 47 years, was to retire at the end of December in the position of an assistant vice president. Treasurer of the Fox Cities Foxes baseball club since its inception in 1939, he was planning to travel and keep up his interest in baseball.

Guthrie cancels five-state tour

The Guthrie Theater of Minneapolis has announced that, because of the uncertainties and restrictions caused by the energy crisis, it has postponed a 10-week tour of five states that was to have included five performances in the Fox Cities.

Two performances of Moliere's "Tartuffe (The Hypocrite)" were scheduled for Jan. 28 and 29 in Stansbury Theatre at Lawrence University, and three, including two matinees for high school students, were scheduled Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 at the Pickard Civic Auditorium in Neenah. Those are now cancelled.

Guthrie artistic director Michael Langham said that the decision to postpone the tour "is a major disappointment to all of us at the Guthrie. For some weeks we have been watching with great concern the developing situation and its attendant uncertainties. It now seems clear that there will be a fuel shortage which will affect transportation, heating and school schedules. After consultation with selected sponsors in the region, we have reached the conclusion that to proceed with plans for the tour could place us all in a dangerous financial situation which could affect plans for future touring operations."

Surveys conducted after the Guthrie's production of "Of Mice and Men" which toured the five-state area during the first three months of 1973, showed that one-third of the adult audiences traveled more than 25 miles to see the production and that students at student matinees traveled an average of 65 miles each way. This year the number of student matinees had been increased to 24 and it was expected that adult audiences would also increase. It was felt by the Guthrie and the sponsors involved in making the decision to postpone that both adult and student attendance figures could be substantially affected by fuel shortages.

According to Guthrie management, the Theater hopes to develop plans for a "mini-tour" to travel in the Upper Midwest this fall.

"A Christmas Carol" brings to life miserly Scrooge, played by Rick Lynaugh of the Lawrence Drama department staff, as well as the Cratchit family, headed by Tom Stadler and Liz Davies. Through the supernatural work of three Christmas ghosts — Ray Zagorski, Eric Dancy and Kevin Laing — Scrooge returns to scenes of his childhood, views his own death, and changes heart about "keeping Christmas well." The 24-member cast is under the co-direction of Joe Hopfensperger and Mark Malinauskas. Sets have been designed by Les Christoffel.

The Greek legend of "Pandora" becomes a holiday message of hope, danced by the Makaroff Children's Ballet Theatre. Pandora, danced by Victoria Bracker, is given a beautiful box by Quicksilver, Kathy Brenner, and she is warned not to open it. Overcome with curiosity, Pandora opens the box, though her friend, Epimetheus, danced by Rick Huss, tries to prevent her. As the story goes, when the magic box is opened, a host of Troubles escape into the world, but Hope, danced by Barbara Hohlner, also escapes to light the world. Choreography for "Pandora" was

Bureaucrats battle over energy authority

WASHINGTON—Within two days of his appointment as new energy czar, Deputy Secretary of the Treasury William Simon was the target of a humiliating and massive put-down by Roy Ash, fast-rising and highly controversial head of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB).

Ash, skilled as an enemy-picker and bureaucratic infighter both within the administration and on Capitol Hill, told Simon that he, Ash, and his OMB staff would "run" the energy program—and that Simon would handle "policy" matters.

Moreover, one inside operative told us that Ash's OMB men had pulled the energy-crisis files accumulated during five-month tour in the hostile White House, at least temporarily denying the files to Simon.

Secretary Schultz referee But Simon is no one's patsy. When told to his face by Ash that his duties would begin and end with "policy," he replied with two old and honorable Anglo-Saxon words: "Bull —." The power struggle, one of an unlimited number of lesser struggles by which Ash has managed to elevate his power, then went to President Nixon.

But Mr. Nixon, preoccupied by self-preservation and notoriously uninformed about the energy crisis, won't have to settle it. That will be done by Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz.

Shultz, who was instrumental in having his deputy, Simon, put in charge of the energy crisis, has no intention of permitting Ash to interfere with Simon's operations. The word in the White House late this week was that Shultz will cut the mighty Ash down to size.

He'll have plenty of help both inside the administration and in Congress. When Ash testified before the Senate Government Operations Committee Thursday, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a key energy expert, tried to make him squirm.

Was it not true, he asked Ash, that the White House had impounded some $40 million last summer that the Democratic Congress had appropriated in a vain effort to force the administration to step up research and development on new fuels? Well, Ash replied, the money was "reserved," not "impounded."

Jackson and other congressional energy experts blame Ash for underestimating former White House energy czar James Akins (now ambassador in Saudi Arabia) and Love. Ash's personal lobbying in Congress against Jackson's Alaska pipeline bill amendment (to restore investigatory powers to the Federal Trade Commission) angered congressional leaders. They accuse Ash of trying to persuade Mr. Nixon to veto the pipeline bill in the interest of big business's fear of the Jackson amendment.

Within the administration, Ash's OMB infuriated the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and its hard-pressed boss, Russell Train. OMB slipped a White House position paper to Congress seeking more delay on automobile clean-air emission standards without first clearing it with EPA.

But in taking on the redoubtable Simon, whose neat hair-part and trim Wall Street appearance conceal a toughness of total self-confidence, Ash may have stuck his neck out too far.

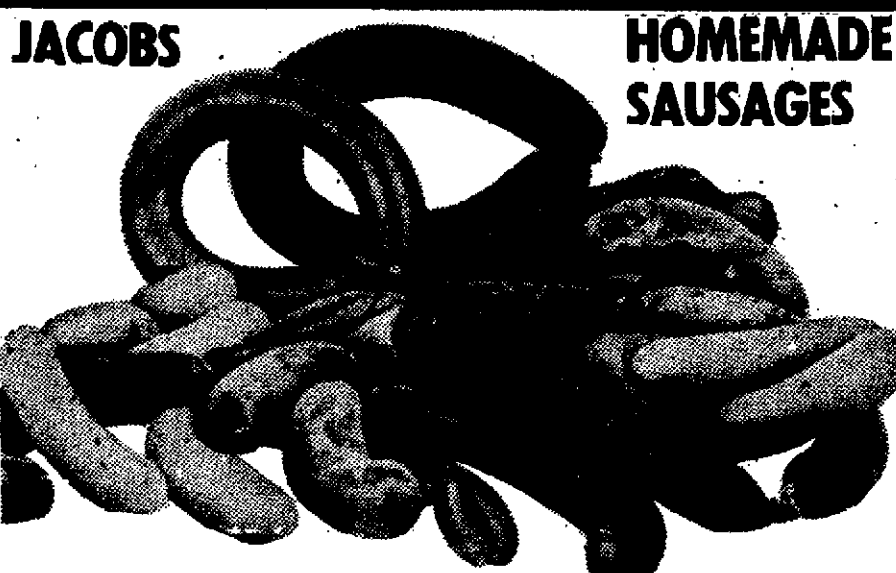

A serious proposal that former Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson consider moving his official residence next door to New Hampshire from the ancestral home in Boston, and run for the Senate next year, has been made by pro-Richardson

New Hampshire Republicans.

Richardson was non-committal when one leading New Hampshire Republican broached the idea soon after Richardson was victimized by the White House in the Saturday Night Massacre of Oct. 20.

A frequent, long-time New Hampshire skier and summer visitor, Richardson would run for the seat of retiring Republican Sen. Norris Cotton. Two of the state's most prominent Republicans are eyeing Cotton's seat: Rep. Louis Wyman will definitely run; former Gov. Wesley Powell is considering running. Some Cotton intimates think he might wind up running himself.

A Senate seat for Richardson would give the former Secretary of Defense, Health, Education and Welfare, and Attorney General a public showcase, Republican friends say, in case he wants to run for President in 1978.

Courts

James L. Satorious, 24, 72 Schaefer Court, was sentenced Monday to 90 days in the county jail after he was found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Satorious admitted to creating a disturbance at Adam & Jo's Bar, 1200 E. Wisconsin Ave., last Saturday, and swearing and kicking at two arresting officers. Satorious' guilty plea was accepted by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Schaefer granted the defendant Huber Law privileges.

Ricky J. Cornell, 19, route 5, Green Bay, was found guilty Monday on four counts of indecent exposure.

Cornell pleaded no contest to the charges, which stemmed from incidents in the towns of Freedom, Oneida and Grand Chute between Oct. 2 and Nov. 7, when he appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

A battery charge against Ronald Herman, 29, Shiocton, was dismissed Monday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Herman had been accused of beating his wife on Sept. 30 after the two had been drinking at several taverns in the Shiocton and Seymour areas. She reportedly received multiple bruises in the incident.

The prosecution requested the dismissal after no further difficulties developed between the couple during a two-month period.

Leo H. Immel, 22, no permanent address, Monday was fined $100 for disorderly conduct.

The charge had stemmed from an Oct. 13 incident at the Andrea Pompa residence, 2038 W. Second St., in which the man reportedly broke a lamp and struck the woman.

The fine was ordered by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, before whom Immel had pleaded guilty on Nov. 28.

Sentencing has been set for Friday for Daniel P. Rocky, 22, 230 State 76, Greenville, for marijuana possession. Rocky pleaded guilty to the charge Monday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. Rocky was arrested at his former residence, 500 1/2 N. Richmond St., Appleton, after police said they saw three marijuana plants growing in a box on a second floor window sill.

Service offers guarantees in older house sales

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE
WASHINGTON — A flourishing new type of service is beginning to ease some of the pain felt by persons in the throes of trying to buy an older house without having unexpected repairs add to the problems of high prices and interest charges.
The service was described by John J. Heyn at a Senate hearing called to consider a proposed "Truth-in-Housing" law. Heyn is president of National Home Inspection Service Inc., a firm that offers a one-year guarantee worth as much as $25,000 for a one-time fee.

service to nearly 40 cities from coast to coast and expects to complete 20,000 inspections by next fall.
Under the usual arrangement, NHIS contracts with a real estate firm or association to provide inspections and guarantees for $85 per house. Buyers who don't deal with such firms under contract with NHIS pay $100. In some cases, the sellers themselves pay the fee.
The guarantee covers everything that costs over $100. NHIS promises to repair or replace any of those items up to a total of $25,000, but with the homeowner paying the first $100.
Elements of a house that do not pass inspection are excluded from coverage, and the reason is described in detail along with an estimate of repair or replacement costs. Bruce Grewell, executive vice president of NHIS, says about 70 per cent of houses can be completely guaranteed.
The major elements inspected include central heating, central cooling, plumbing, electrical system, roof, foundation, walls and floor. These are the same types of items that would have to be disclosed under the proposed "Truth-in-Housing" law (S. 2028).
The company uses experienced building engineers who are able to spot problems that may be missed by even the most careful amateur. For example, the professional engineer is able to recognize signs of a wet basement on a dry day.
In his testimony, Heyn noted the tendency of real estate salesmen to gloss over the true condition of a building. He said he made a survey of 1,200 multiple listing cards in Baltimore last spring and found 86 per cent described as in "perfect" or "excellent" condition.

Only one house was admitted to be in "poor" condition. Yet, said Heyn, his own inspection showed many "superb" homes in poor shape. He said such a situation is not uncommon around the country.
NHIS is located at 10111 Colesville Rd., Silver Spring, Md., 20901. Persons in areas not served by the firm or who prefer to hire a local inspector may be able to find a satisfactory one in the Yellow Pages under either "Building Inspection" or "Home Inspection."
Sakharov and his wife in Moscow hospital.
MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident physicist Andrei D. Sakharov and his wife, who have been under pressure from the secret police, entered a Moscow hospital for medical treatment, dissident sources reported.
They said Monday the 51-year-old scientist was being treated for high blood pressure. His wife, who submitted to five secret police interrogations recently but refused to go back for more, had an eye ailment, the sources said.
The couple was expected to stay in the hospital for two weeks. Friends said they were not worried.

Bucks extend streak to 10

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is scoring less these days, but his Milwaukee Bucks teammates are winning as impressively as ever.

The 7-foot-2 center, National Basketball Association scoring leader twice, managed only 16 points Tuesday night for a total of 41 in his last three games. But Lucius Allen came through with 28 and Bob Dandridge with 20 as the Bucks buried the Seattle SuperSonics 130-91.

Allen scored 14 points in the first quarter as Milwaukee took command at 30-21, while Dandridge fired in 16 the next period for a 65-40 halftime lead. Milwaukee led by as many as 40 late in the third quarter en route to its 10th consecutive victory.

The romp sets up the first meeting of the season here Thursday night between the Bucks and Chicago Bulls, who trail Milwaukee by 2½ games in the Midwest Division.

"The Bucks played good defense and that big guy (Abdul-Jabbar) takes a lot of things away from you," Sonics' Coach Bill Russell said. "He did things far more important than scoring, like closing up the middle for them."

"It was a combination. The Bucks were very good and some of our people didn't play well," said Russell, who praised only Don "Slick" Watts, the rookie guard with the shaved head, among the Sonics.

"Lucius had a great game, even though Slick was working him good," Russell said. "Lucius just had one of those super nights when no one could stop him. He's a great player."

Allen sank 13 of 20 shots and has scored 40 points in two starts since recovering from an ankle injury. His total Tuesday night was four points under his career high.

"I really don't keep track of those things, although I believe my wife does," said Allen, cheerfully snipping thick winds of tape from the tander ankle.

"Really, a lot of those were layups. Man, I like those layups," he said. "I might have had even more, but a lot of times in a game like this you lose your concentration and throw it away. Don't get me wrong. I like this kind of game much, much better than those real tight ones."

"The big thing was Kareem," Allen said. "He didn't shoot much, but he really played some defense. He always seems to do a job on Spencer Haywood. We were wary of this game. Seattle had been playing well, but they don't seem to play up to their capabilities here."

Haywood, spotting Abdul-Jabbar half a foot in height, hit only four of 17 shots for 10 points, 13.8 below his average.

Haywood's frustration typified the Sonics' problems, which mystify most NBA followers. Seattle is believed to have the league's highest payroll for its cast of former college superstars.

But Russell, the Sonics' third coach in less than a season and a half, has no illusions.

"There are some guys we can beat, but I don't think I can win with the team I have," he said.

"Talent is not necessarily purely a physical thing," he said. "Like Slick Watts and Pete Rose in baseball, hustle is a talent. Intelligence to play the game is a talent. You can see a guy and his physical dimensions, but you have to look inside of him."

"I've never seen a great athlete without intelligence, and we are not intelligent as a ball club even though I have some players whose physical attributes are awesome," he said.

Cedeno to appear in court on shooting death

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (AP) — Cesar Cedeno, the Houston Astros' star center fielder and one of the most talented young players in major league baseball, was to appear before a judge today following the shooting death of a 19-year-old woman in a hotel room.

District Attorney Maximo Henriquez Saladin said Tuesday Cedeno was to appear before a judge to learn if charges of "voluntary homicide" would be lodged against him or dismissed.

Although exonerated of any wrongdoing in the incident, a spokesman said Cedeno still had to appear in court under Latin American law.

Police said Altagracia de La Cruz died of gunshot wounds in the head, apparently from a .38-caliber pistol owned by Cedeno. Police said he did not have a gun permit but that he had been given "Special authorization" for the weapon.

Cedeno, police said, called the front desk of the hotel at 2 a.m., EST, and told the counter clerk the woman was dead. He left in his car but appeared at police headquarters at 8 a.m., accompanied by his father, and was jailed after declining to talk to newsmen.

Police said Cedeno, 22, said he was with the victim at the hotel and was attempting to put away the revolver

Cubs acquire Frailing as part of Santo deal

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Santo, longtime third-base star for the Chicago Cubs who became the first player in baseball to invoke the veterans' rule, Tuesday was traded to the Chicago White Sox.

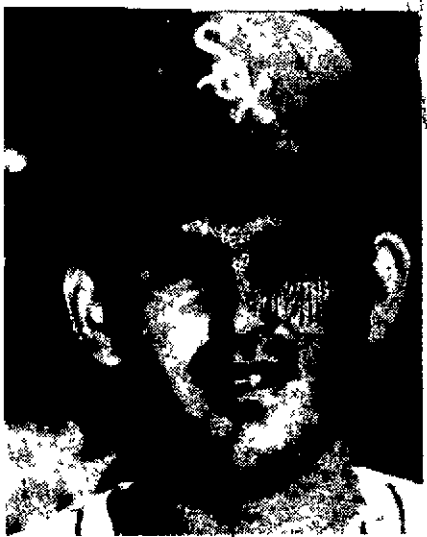

Last week at the winter meetings in Houston, the Cubs tried to deal Santo to the California Angels. But the 33-year-old veteran, after 14 years with the Cubs, killed the deal by refusing to go to the Angels.

Because he is a 10-year veteran with five years with one club, Santo could veto any deal not to his liking.

"I didn't want to leave Chicago," said Santo. "When I learned the Cubs wanted to trade me, I decided the only club I would go to was the White Sox."

"I think because of my loyalty to the Cubs, Mr. Wrigley (P.K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs) consented to my wishes. My family, my roots, my business are in Chicago and this is where I want to stay."

Santo was swapped to the Sox for pitchers Steve Stone and Ken Frailing; minor league catcher Steve Swisher, and a player to be named later.

Ellis looks ahead to '74

By LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Ken Ellis was manifestly relieved.

The Packers' gifted right cornerback, relaxing at his West Side apartment Tuesday afternoon, was quick to affirm, "It's a big load off my mind."

Said "load" had been lifted earlier in the day when Coach Dan Devine, doubling as General Manager Dan Devine, announced Ellis had been signed to a two-year contract, assuring his professional services will belong to the Packers through the 1975 season.

The matter had been a concern, Ken admitted, for some time. It's been on my mind, to an extent, ever since contract talks began," he said. "That was back in March of April — some time last spring."

Had this made it difficult for him to concentrate on football?

"At first it wasn't hard," replied Ellis, who had announced in October that he was playing out his option. "But the further the season got along with no contract, it started to bother me."

He declined, however, to use the situation as an alibi for his 1973 performance.

Asked if he felt it had affected his play, Ellis said, "To an extent, maybe. But the way I played as an individual and the way things have gone for us as a team, I'm not going to put my performance on the fact that I didn't have a signed contract."

"I've just had one of those years. It can't happen to anybody. If you stay in this business long enough, you're going to have 'em."

"I will be the first to admit I've had a bad year, by far the worst I've ever

It marked the fourth trade since the end of the season by the Cubs which involved a key player.

Earlier they traded pitcher Ferguson Jenkins to the Texas Rangers for infielders Bill Madlock and Vic Harris.

Then they sent second baseman Glenn Beckert to San Diego for outfielder Jerry Morales and last week they traded catchers with Minnesota sending away Randy Hundley for George Mitterwald.

The Santo deal was believed the first direct trade involving the two Chicago teams who seem to have had a policy of not dealing with each other.

Santo batted .267 with 20 home runs and 77 runs batted in last season. He has a .280 lifetime average with 337 home runs and 1,280 runs batted in.

Stone, 26, was 6-11 with the Sox. Frailing, 25, of Marion, Wis., had no record with a 1.96 earned run average in 18 innings and Swisher, 22, was the Sox No. 1 draft choice. He batted .211 at Knoxville and .286 at Iowa.

"I was concerned," said Santo after he had rejected the trade to the Angels. "It really didn't hit me until a couple of days later. I realized the Cubs didn't want me and I couldn't possibly play for them again."

"The only course was to play for the White Sox," said Santo. "I feel like a kid again. This is a new lease on life. I've never had contract problems and don't anticipate any with the Sox. Yes, I make more than $100,000 but I'm not saying how much more."

"I plan to do my best for the Sox. I don't think there will be any problems between me and Bill Melton. I just hope to be an asset to the club."

With the acquisition of Santo, an All-Star National League third baseman, the Sox now have two All-Stars at the same position. Melton has been their regular at the third base spot.

"As far as I'm concerned," said Sox Manager Chuck Tanner in a long-distance phone call from his New Castle, Pa., home, "this is an early Christmas present."

had. But, at this stage of the season, I've just got to try to play over that."

"In other words, what's happened has happened. We've got to get ourselves together and win this game with the Bears this week so we can leave with a good taste in our mouths and come back next year and put it all together."

Ellis, who would have become a free agent May 1, left little doubt that he is happy to remain a Packer.

"I stated before that I have become very fond of this city and the people," he said. "I have a lot of friends here, as well as on the team. I think it would really be hard for me to play somewhere else now. I could probably make the adjustment but I'm sure it would be hard."

"I didn't have any intentions of leaving here from the beginning. As I said, I have a lot of friends here and I enjoy it in Green Bay, other than the weather."

The fact that he had signed for two years suggested he also is happy with his contract, it was ventured.

"That's very true," Ellis said. "I am satisfied with it. As far as I'm concerned, I don't have anything against anybody. I'm just here to try to do a job and play football."

Devine also was satisfied.

"I'm happy that Kenny's signed," he said. "He's a fine athlete and a fine person. I'd like to see him finish this year with a good game and come back next year and have a great season."

What, Ellis was asked, did he think had happened in 1973 to '72's NFC Central champions?

HORTONVILLE — Rob Reader sizzled the nets with 34 points and hauled down 25 rebounds in pacing Hortonville to a crucial 77-63 non-conference victory over Freedom Tuesday.

Reader, a 6-2 center, got scoring help from Randy Schwarz who banged in 15 points and from brother Mike Reader who posted a season high 14.

The victory hikes the Polar Bear record to 5-1, while Freedom suffered its second defeat in seven outings.

The win was important because the two teams could face

No retirement for Bob Brown

By LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent news service

GREEN BAY — A wistful expression adorned the cherubic features of Bob Brown, in a reflective mood on a day of leisure.

"It's hard to believe," the huge Packer defensive tackle said sadly, "that just one year ago this week we had clinched the Central Division championship and were looking forward to playing Washington in the playoffs."

"In fact, if anybody would have told me then, or even in training camp this year, that we would be 4-7-2 at this time this year, it would have been a complete joke to me. In training camp, you know, we weren't far from being 6-0."

"At this time last year, I thought we had the makings of one of the finest teams in the National Football League. Of course, our team is relatively young."

"I think we've had a lot of things go against us," said Brown, who along with his teammates now has only a meaningless finale against the Bears Sunday remaining on the 1973 agenda. "I've got to think every good football team has to have a certain number of good breaks to be a winner, and I don't think we've had a lot of breaks this year."

"On the other hand," the eight year veteran admitted, "a good football team makes some of its breaks, and we haven't come up with many big plays."

"I thought, in spots, speaking defensively, that we played real well. But one guy would have a great game one week and another guy would have one the next. But we never put it together, except for the New Orleans game a week ago, when our defense played like it did at the end of last season."

"Of course, losing Willie Buchanon half way through the season didn't help any. To me, he's tops. But, defensively, we weren't consistently good like we were last year."

This decline, Brown indicated, is not easily explained. "There are some great athletes here," he said. "There's no doubt the whole football team should be playing better than it is."

The ebony colossus subsequently accepted a portion of the responsibility for the untoward turnabout.

"I don't think I've had any kind of a year like I had last year," said the amiable Arkansan, a Pro Bowl selection last January. "I made a lot of big plays last year, but I don't feel I've made a whole lot of them this year."

"I don't have any particular explanation for it. In the first part of the year, I wasn't aware I wasn't making the big plays. After you take a second look at yourself, by watching the films, I could see that a lot of things I was doing last year I wasn't doing this year."

Brown said he didn't feel being awarded the Pro Bowl honor had made him complacent.

"I didn't have the feeling that I wasn't hungry because of being picked," he said. "I suppose there is the possibility a thing like that could leak into a football player's mind subconsciously."

"I want to do as good a job as I can. I'm a player who made it on sheer drive," added Brown, who twice was cut by the 49ers and had a tour of duty in the Continental League before finally making the NFL grade with the Packers in 1966.

"In fact, although I don't know for sure, I may be the only free agent on the Packer roster right now. I'm a guy who came up the hard way, stuck in there and did a job."

Although he appears less svelte than he did a year ago, Arkansas A. M. & N's most illustrious alumnus insists conditioning has not been a factor.

"I'm in good shape," he said. "In fact, I'm in better shape right now than I've ever been in my life. Maybe the first of the year I wasn't in top shape, but I'm now."

Though he will turn 34 March 1, Brown assured that retirement is not in his present plans.

"I've got some football left in me. I'm not going to hang up my cleats, by any means. I'm going to have some more good years because I know what it takes to have a good year. And I feel that, physically, I'm capable because I've got great strength and I don't feel that I've lost any of that."

"If Charlie Krueger (of the 49ers) can play while he's 38, certainly I can play until I'm 36."

Notre Dame outmuscles Indiana '5'

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Notre Dame's immovable object met Indiana's irresistible force Tuesday night — and something had to give. Indiana did.

"They're physical and we're physical, but we just stayed with it," said Notre Dame Coach Dick Phelps after his sixth-ranked team whipped No. 3 Indiana 73-67.

The college basketball giants slugged it out before Notre Dame made Indiana back down with plain, brute strength.

"Our rebounding was the most important factor," said Phelps. "We were able to get the key rebound."

More specifically, John Shumate and Adrian Dantley were able to get the key rebounds — 13 apiece.

"We just didn't take charge," Indiana Coach Bob Knight said after the game, played before a record crowd of 17,463 at the Hoosiers' Assembly Hall. "They played very well. Notre Dame deserved to win from the first minute to the last minute."

John Lucas and Tom McMillen each scored 23 points and Len Elmore had 22 in Maryland's victory over outgunned Georgetown. It was Maryland's third highest point total in history.

Vanderbilt defeated Memphis State in a battle of unbeaten as Joe Ford came through with five free throws in the final 42 seconds.

Tony Byers scored 20 points to help Wake Forest upset Penn. The winners checked Penn's highly-touted forwards Ron Haigler and John Engles.

Long Beach State broke open a close game with 22 straight points in the second half and ran away from Los Angeles Loyola. Clifton Ponder of Long Beach State led all scorers with 20 points.

Coniel Norman poured in 23 points and Al Fleming had 21, leading Arizona over San Diego State. Led by Danny Beard's 22 points, Kansas State hit 62 per cent from the field and routed Iowa.

First loss for Truckers

CLINTONVILLE — Failure to connect from close range on several occasions throughout the game led to the first loss for the Clintonville Truckers, 64-61, at the hands of defending Bay Conference champion, Oconto, here Tuesday night.

Coach Carl Bruggink's Truckers are now 4-1 in league play, while Oconto upped its record to 3-2.

The Truckers were down, 43-32, with 6:42 left in the third period, but battled back to score 10 straight points. Randy Wedde made eight baskets and Tom Peterson converted one during that span.

Terry Flanagan scored a basket with :47 left to provide the Clints with a 61-60 lead, but Oconto counted a basket and two free throws in the time left to ice the verdict.

Statistics showed Clintonville converting 30 field goals in 66 tries for 45 per cent from the floor. The winners converted 25 of 54 for 46 per cent.

Clintonville had only one chance at the free line during the entire contest.

Oconto's Rory Lindgren led all scorers with 28 points, while Jim Sherman hit 18 and Ron Daul tossed in 11.

For the Truckers, Wedde meshed 20 on 10 baskets, while Flanagan and Bob Dennison contributed 10 apiece.

Kunzman injured critically

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Race driver Lee Kunzman remained unconscious in critical condition today with head injuries suffered when an Indianapolis-type car he was driving careened into a wall at 190 miles an hour at Ontario Motor Speedway, officials said.

Kunzman, 29, of Guttenberg, Iowa, was listed as stable under intensive care at San Antonio Hospital in nearby Upland where he was taken in a coma following the crash during tire tests Tuesday.

Jim Cook, general manager of the 2.5-mile oval raceway, said Kunzman "just lost it" in the second turn and his car hit the wall, spun around and hit the wall again before sliding down the track.

There was no fire, Cook said.

"He must have banged his head on the roll bar and suffered a tremendously severe concussion," said Cook.

Cook said the hospital told him Kunzman's "vital signs were okay. X rays showed no skull fracture."

Kunzman, vice president of a family-owned automobile dealership in Iowa, is one of the top USAC sprint drivers and finished second this year in the national sprint standings.

Driving the Eagle-Offenhauser that crashed during the tire tests for Firestone, Kunzman finished 11th in USAC Indy-type racing in 1973. His best finish was third at the Texas Twin 200 Oct. 26.

It was a night that Minnesota's Bill Goldsworthy won't forget in a hurry.

"I can't remember scoring three goals that fast before," said Goldsworthy, who got his hat trick in a 7½-minute span of the first period Tuesday during the Minnesota North Stars 6-3 National Hockey League victory over the Los Angeles Kings.

Goldsworthy now has 19 goals and 14 assists.

O. J. again wins AP honor

BUFFALO (AP) — With the kind of season that O.J. Simpson is having, he doesn't get any peace and quiet.

"Deluged by newsmen across the country for interviews, the Buffalo Bills' star took a five-minute break Tuesday learn of his selection for the third time this season as The Associated Press' NFL Offensive Player of the Week."

It all came about with his 219 rushing yards, including a 71-yard sprint, in Buffalo's 37-13 victory over the New England Patriots Sunday.

The output raised his season yardage total to 1,803 yards and he needs only 61 Sunday to break Jimmy Brown's single-season record of 1,863 yards. Simpson, who has carried 298 times, could break Browns' totting mark with eight more carries.

"Sometimes nothing goes right," Simpson said in acknowledging his three-time honor. "Everything this year is right. I'm elated. I just keep working and everything works out."

Following the New England game, Simpson said he would not try to think about the Jets and breaking Browns' record.

"But so far I've been asked 50 times a

The New York Islanders snapped a four-game losing streak as Bill Harris knocked in the winning goal at 5:22 of the third period. The game-winner came after Eddie Westfall had moved New York into a 3-3 tie with a second-period goal.

Vancouver's Paulin Bordeleau scored his first NHL goal with less than three minutes remaining to give his team a tie. Brothers Frank and Pete Mahovlich each scored for Montreal in the second period, before Bob Schmautz closed the gap with a goal early in the final period.

Saints 5, Cougars 3

The WHA Saints won what their coach Harry Neale called "a victory we had to have, coming off that 10-1 loss to Toronto Sunday." The loss was Chicago's seventh in a row, while the Fighting Saints broke a four-game losing streak. Mike Antonovich scored his fifth and sixth goals of the year to pace Minnesota.

Cazzie scores 49 points

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

At the beginning of the National Basketball Association season, Cazzie Russell was slated to be sixth man on the Golden State Warrior team.

Russell, however, was first in the hearts of the Warrior fans Tuesday as he scored 49 points to lead Golden State to a 114-107 victory over the Houston Rockets.

It was the second big scoring night recently for a Warrior forward. Rick Barry scored 50 points against Los Angeles Saturday.

It was the most points ever for the former Michigan star who got a chance to start this year when Clyde Lee was hurt.

In other NBA games, New York beat Phoenix 105-97, Chicago beat Kansas City-Omaha 105-104, Milwaukee smashed Seattle 130-91, Buffalo beat Atlanta in overtime 132-127, Capital beat Portland 87-82 and Cleveland beat Los Angeles in overtime 101-100.

Braves 122, Hawks 127
Ernie DiGregorio scored eight points in overtime to complete a Buffalo comeback which began when Jim McMillan of the Braves was fouled with nine seconds remaining. Bob McAdoo scored 37 points for Buffalo.

Kings 106, Bulls 104
Cliff Ray and Jerry Sloan connected for eight points in the final 90 seconds to help the Bulls win their fifth in a row and 23rd in 30 tries. The Bulls had blown an 11-point lead and were forced to play the final period with Ray and Sloan each hampered by five fouls.

Knicks 106, Suns 87
Dave DeBusschere scored 28 points but it was Phil Jackson who provided a decisive five points late in the game. Dick Van Arsdale, who had only five points in the first half, finished with 23 for the Suns who cut an 18-point margin to 96-91 with 13 consecutive points.

Enid Kruse slams 634 set

Enid Kruse slammed a 634 national honor count in Hit 'N Miss action at the 41 Bowl Tuesday night.

Enid started off with a 230 and followed with games of 220 and 184.

It marked the fifth national honor series for Enid, who bowls once a week. Two years ago, she fired her highest series ever—a 662. She's been bowling for 12 years.

"After hitting the 230 and 220, I figured I only needed a 150 to get the honor series," she said. "And I figured I could do it."

In all, Enid notched 19 strikes during the three games and had two blows.

Other high bowlers in the Hit 'N Miss League were Dee Kasperik 212-573, Fran LaBonte 210-544 and Sandy Gitter 541.

Marion Pluss ripped a 210-549 in Queen Bee competition at the Super Bowl.

Avita Kramer notched a 541 and Fran Woehler ripped a 247-542 in the Tag-A-Long League at the 41 Bowl.

A 211-545 was rolled by Barb Bobber in the Alley Cats League at Jerry's Lanes, Kimberly.

Other leading scores included:

Pick Bryant top defender

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Bryant was unhappy about the one that got away. He didn't mention the three he got.

They were passes thrown by Green Bay quarterbacks. The Minnesota cornerback intercepted three of them, running one back 46 yards for a touchdown and setting up a field goal with another to pave the way to the Vikings' 31-7 romp over the Packers last Saturday.

For his performance, Bryant was selected today as The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

"Bobby Bryant again proved that he has the knack for making the big play," Minnesota Coach Bud Grant said after the Vikings had rebounded from their disastrous showing a week earlier, when they were pummeled 27-0 by Cincinnati.

"The big thing we proved," Bryant said, "is that we can win and win big against a good team. I'm sure everybody was embarrassed by our play last week."

But the one that bugged him was the one that got away—a 17-yard touchdown pass from Jim Del Gaudio to Smith with less than two minutes to play.

Hortonville schools to keep holiday recess

HORTONVILLE — The school district has lowered the temperatures in most classrooms and is trying to save electricity during the fuel shortage, the board of education was told this week, but the Christmas recess schedule will remain unchanged.

Supt. Marvin Oby said that Wisconsin Gas Co. has informed the school that they have adequate fuel supplies for the winter, and don't anticipate any problems serving customers unless the government takes some of their supply for other areas of the country.

Oby told the school board that rooms for grades 4-12 are being kept at 69 degrees, while the lower elementary grades are being kept at 71 or 72 degrees. He said the activities of younger classes, where they are often seated on the floor, warrant the warmer temperatures there.

He also said the staff is helping to conserve energy by turning off lights when rooms are not in use.

The Christmas vacation schedule will remain the same, he added, with schools being dismissed at 1:45 p.m. Dec. 21 and reconvening Jan. 3.

In other business, the board didn't act on a request that a part-time instructor be hired to help ease class loads in the instrumental music area. The two instructors presently teach a total of 341 students, including 64 beginners, and share directing duties for four bands. Periodic visits are also made to area parochial schools.

The two instructors requested the additional staff member, and said that each of the 341 students also receives individual instructions.

The crowded music schedule now requires instructors to hold individual lessons before school and some evenings.

Oby said he wasn't able to find a teaching intern through state colleges, but will continue to investigate solutions.

The board also heard reports from Principal Eugene Riedl on his national conference on grading in Boston, and from Jeanne Wall and one of her students on a trip 12 drama students took to the western part of the state to see a renovated theater in Menominee, the Guthrie Theater in Minneapolis, and other points of theatrical interest.

Fall on icy sidewalk gets Hortonville a man $17,500 settlement

A 59-year-old Hortonville man, who had brought a $50,000 lawsuit after he was injured in a fall outside an Appleton drive-in restaurant was granted a $17,500 out-of-court settlement in the case, which was to have gone to trial Tuesday in Circuit Court.

DeMaine K. Brandow, employed in Appleton, claimed that he had sustained a fractured leg and ankle after falling on an icy sidewalk at the front door of Henry's Drive-In, 432 W. Wisconsin Ave., on Feb. 11, 1971. The incident took place about 5:15 p.m. Brandow was later hospitalized for treatment of the injuries.

The settlement was reached between attorneys for Brandow and Henry's. The drive-in, now out of business, had at that time been franchised by Henry's to Sutton, Inc.

Courts

David C. Krueger, 24, route 3, Appleton, was fined $175 and ordered to attend group dynamics traffic safety school, after he was found guilty Tuesday of driving while intoxicated.

Krueger was arrested on Outagamie County Trunk J.J., one-half mile east of McCarthy Road, Town of Grand Chute, the evening of Dec. 2. He pleaded no contest to the charge before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

A second charge relating to the arrest, for inattentive driving, was dismissed.

Nancy Pope, 20, Pine River, was fined $50 after she was found guilty Tuesday of shoplifting two children's garments valued at $3.16 from K mart on Nov. 11.

She pleaded guilty before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Judith H. Walker, 31, 326 West St., New London, was fined $175 and ordered to attend group dynamics traffic safety school, after she was found guilty Tuesday of driving while intoxicated.

She was arrested at State 47 and Brusewitz Road, just north of Black Creek, early Dec. 3. She pleaded guilty before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The case of a 40-year-old Bear Creek man, charged with reckless use of a weapon, has been continued to Dec. 20.

The continuance was granted Tuesday in the case of James R. Farmer by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Farmer was arrested Saturday evening at a Bear Creek tavern after he reportedly entered the tavern with a loaded shotgun and threatened to take the life of another man he had quarreled with there a short time before.

The other man had since left the tavern, and no shots were fired.

Robert L. Miller, 26, 3701 N. Casaloma Drive, was fined $175 and ordered to attend group dynamics traffic safety school after he was found guilty Tuesday of driving while intoxicated.

Miller pleaded guilty before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. The defendant was arrested at U.S. 10 and 41, Town of Grand Chute, the evening of Dec. 1.

Thomas J. Plach, 18, 256 Manley Road, Hortonville, was fined $50, placed on the Volunteers in Probation program for one year and ordered to spend the first 90 days of that probation in the county jail, when he appeared for sentencing Tuesday on three charges.

The $50 fine covered two traffic charges, for non-registration and lack of proper headlights, and stemmed from an Oct. 24 arrest in the 1200 block of N. Gillett Street in Appleton.

The probation and jail term were for marijuana possession in Appleton on Sept. 15.

The sentence was ordered by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

A Hortonville grocery store proprietor was charged with a standards violation Tuesday, relating to a Nov. 5 inspection of his premises by a state Bureau of Standards agent.

The case of James Huss, operator of the Lakeside Food Store, was continued to Feb. 11 by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The agent charged that Huss' store offered for sale several items with inadequate pricing information. Included were cucumbers, muskmelons and cantaloupes. In addition, the store reportedly was selling concord grapes in two-quart containers, while only one-quart containers are to be used.

Ex-tax commissioner fined in tax case

MILWAUKEE (AP) — George W. Corning, 50, former commissioner of revenue for Wisconsin, Monday pleaded no contest to one charge of failure to file employment tax returns.

U.S. District Court Judge Myron Gordon fined Corning $2,000 and placed him on probation for one year.

Corning was state revenue commissioner in 1963.

The charge involved $53,000 of employment tax returns which a Madison firm did not file for one quarter of 1968. Corning was secretary-treasurer of the firm.

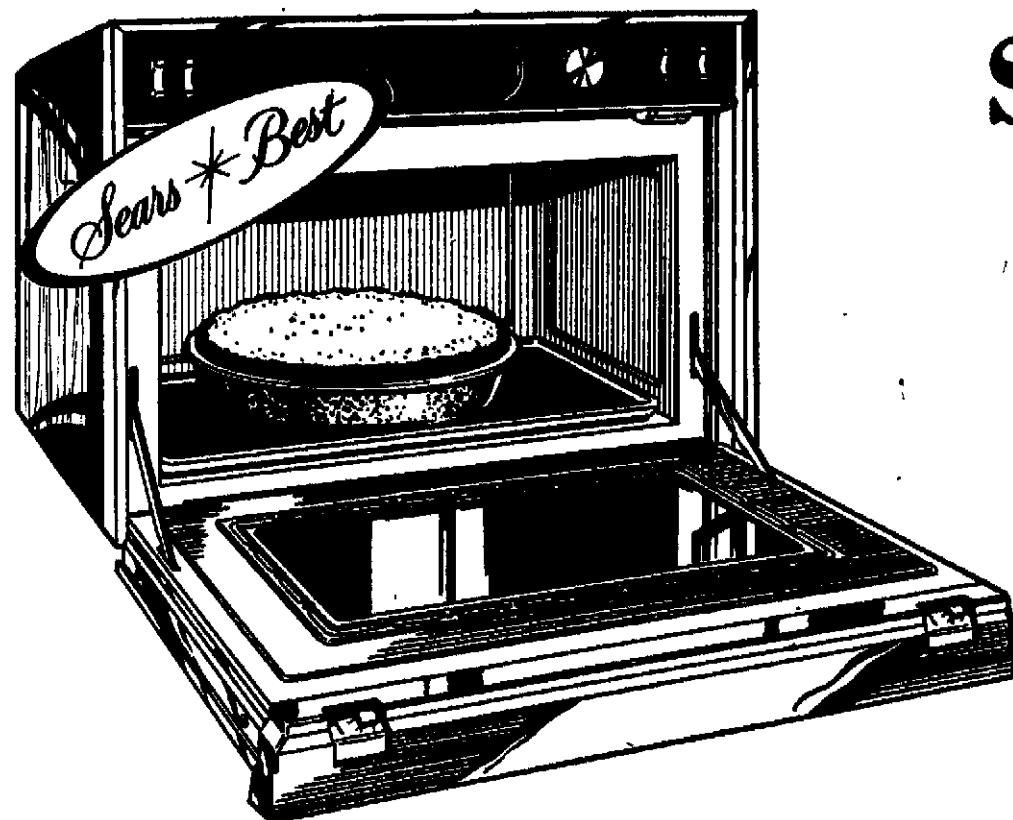

Two other counts against Corning, for failure to file employment tax returns during two other quarters of 1968, were dismissed at the request of the U.S. attorney.

HELP-MATE

HELP-MATE is a reader-action service to help all persons with consumer problems similar to those published in the column.

It is designed as a last resort for people who have exhausted other available means to obtain suitable action or information.

Letters of potentially broad interest are selected and edited from those received by this newspaper and other sources.

If you need information or assistance involving a widely used product or service, write to HELP-MATE, in care of The Post-Crescent.

The Post-Crescent will forward the letters to Consumer News, Inc., Washington, D. C. which will attempt to secure an answer to the problem.

Please provide all pertinent information, including COPIES (not originals) of key documents such as sales slips, warranties and letters.

HELP-MATE cannot return any material submitted, so please do not include stamps or return envelopes. But each letter will be considered in determining topics for investigation and action.

ORGAN MAKER CHANGES TUNE

In 1968 I bought a Lowrey electronic organ so that my wife could practice playing church music at home. Shortly after we bought it, we had some friends in, and when one of them tried it she found she could not get the proper balance with the manuals. Also, there seemed to be a short circuit in it.

After house calls, the dealer took the organ back to the store, where it stayed five months. Company technicians fixed some of the faults, but the instrument, which cost me close to $3,000, still doesn't work properly. I wrote to the company at the suggestion of the dealer, but so far all I've received is more promises.

J.F. Larry Thomas, national service manager for Lowrey Electronics Co., says arrangements have been made to pick up the organ and return it to the factory for a complete examination. It should be back in six weeks. Mr. Thomas says organs of this type have been "very" trouble-free, and that the intermittent character of the problem in yours is the main reason it has not been fixed.

HELP FOR COMPUSAMPLERS

In June I sent 10 orders for Panel-Pak samples of household products to Compusamp in Hauppauge, N.Y. I included the required $1.50 each woman had paid me. So far, four women have never received their Panel-Paks, and I have written five letters trying to get this straightened out.

G.H. HELP-MATE has received a steady flow of letters about Compusamp Inc. Margot Telek, president of Telek Associates Ltd., the public relations firm for Compusamp, says company management has changed twice in nine months and that back orders such as you describe should be cleared up in a month or so. She acknowledged problems in the company's complaint handling section. Your complaint has been sent to her at 37 E. 64th St., New York, N.Y., 10021. She promises to resolve it promptly.

The Wall Street Journal reports that Compusamp is investigating allegations that $200,000 in cash was improperly recorded as revenue last year. As a result of the allegations, the Compusamp's accounting firm reportedly withdrew certification of the 1972 financial report, which showed a $73,902 loss on revenues of $6.5 million.

Compusamp provides marketing testing for large firms through sample kits such as you and your friends ordered.

SEWING MACHINE REPAIR

I have been trying to have my sewing machine repaired for three years. It was purchased from Aldens in Chicago, and the only name on it is "Aldens." The parts book does not list the address where parts may be obtained. I have called several Aldens stores and written to the main office, but no one seems to know anything about sewing machine repairs. Any help will be appreciated.

A.P. Aldens apologizes for the inconvenience caused you and reports that its machines are made by Modern Sewing Machine Co., 441 N. Kilbourne St., Chicago, Ill. Aldens promised you will get action.

HIDE NAMES OF OIL SUPPLIERS

Who manufactures the store brand motor oil for Sears, Montgomery Ward and Jewel Companies? I have asked this question at their retail stores, and have never received an answer.

J.H. The stores won't tell. A Sears spokesman says it is company policy not to release the names of manufacturers of any store brands. The oil "could come from numerous sources," so identification, he says, would be difficult in any case.

Montgomery Ward says most of its products are made to its specifications, and confidentiality is part of contractual agreements with Ward suppliers.

Jewel did not respond to a letter and phone call.

An independent expert on oil says such companies buy top quality oil on specifications from one or more major refineries. He said motor oil from a store thus can cost much less than buying it at service stations.

ORDER FOR BANJO STRUNG OUT

On March 1, I sent a cashier's check for $450.50 to Warehouse Music Sales Co., in Fort Worth, Texas, for a Gibson five-string banjo. Shortly, I received a bill saying the price had gone up $25. I sent another check. In June, I was told the price had gone up again by $26.50. By that time, I had also paid $50.14 for some accessories, or a total of $591.64. So I refused to pay any more. I could keep on sending money and not know if I will ever receive the merchandise. I called the manager and he said the banjo was still on order.

D.K. Warehouse Music Sales has agreed to guarantee that the price will not go beyond the $532 you have already paid for the instrument. James Dorris, general manager, promises that you will have the banjo sometime in December.

Rick Grigsby, director of customer service for Chicago Musical Instrument Co., which owns Gibson Co., said Warehouse was not one of its 3,000 authorized dealers but apparently buys banjos through authorized dealers for its mail-order customers. He said the regular price for such a banjo is $760 plus $89 for the case. He added that some people must wait 8 or 9 months for banjos, even through Gibson dealers.

Dorris acknowledged that his firm is not an authorized dealer, but he says the latest catalog makes that clear to customers.

TIRE DEALERS TAKE HIM FOR RIDE

In June we were on our vacation and all four tires on our Mazda went bad. We stopped at a Chevron station in Texas. An attendant called a Mazda dealer and was told new tires would be about $40 each, but that none of our size (165 R13) was in stock. After several calls the attendant located our size at a Dayton dealer, and the tires arrived in a few minutes. We were told, however, that the regular price was $63.85 each. I had to pay it. But when we got to a Dayton tire dealer, we were told the retail price for the two-ply rayon belted radials was only $42.85 a piece. I feel we were taken advantage of. If you can help us, we will appreciate it very much.

F.R. J. W. Wilkinson, Chevron's retail sales manager, says the Dayton price list shows your size tire at $72.75 each, and the dealer feels he gave you a fair break by knocking $30 off the list price.

A large independent tire dealer consulted by HELP-MATE says, however, you probably paid too much for the tires. He and two Federal Trade Commission officials say the price lists provided by manufacturers are virtually meaningless and that your only protection is to shop around. They say tire prices are governed by competitive conditions, not by company price lists.

STOVE GOBBLES TURKEY, PAN

In 1968 we bought a Westinghouse Range with a self-cleaning oven, and just before the one-year warranty was up, we began having trouble with it. The oven door began leaking from the top, with moisture running down the door in five places. The serviceman tightened the hinges, replaced the seal on the door and finally replaced the whole door. But the problem persists.

Shortly after the warranty was off, the thermostat was replaced after the oven went into extreme heating, burning up a 12-pound turkey, and the pan, in one and a half hours. Today, the oven did it again, consuming a ham and pan in one hour and filling the house with smoke.

We have talked to the dealer, and the company, but have gotten only promises of action. Help! Help!

J.R. Westinghouse is giving you a $309 refund, and your range is being returned to the factory for tests. H. E. Dillmore, manager of customer service, says Westinghouse knows of no other occurrence of extreme heating such as you described. There have been instances, however, of ovens being inadvertently put into the "self-clean" temperature.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has no reports of cases such as yours. We are forwarding a copy of your letter to the Commission at 5401 Westbard Ave., Bethesda, Md., 20011.

AUTO RUST CURED BY FORD

I bought a new 1968 Ford Fairlane, and after about 10 months I noticed pin holes in the paint on the trunk, hood and roof. The dealer said a factory representative would look at it. Over a year after the purchase, two factory representatives checked the paint, and reported I had a problem that might occur in one in a million cars. Moisture or dust may have settled while the car sat in the baking oven between shifts.

Ford did nothing about it, however, even though I got a letter early this year saying I would be contacted. Now there is a rust rash all over the car. I would like the car to be stripped and painted right.

D.C. Ford has agreed to give a $100 allowance toward a new $139 paint job, and the work is being done. The dealer said the cause of the corrosion was not known.

IT'S TIME FOR NEW WATCH

In April, 1972, I had occasion to send my malfunctioning Waltham Watch to the company for repairs. I received instructions concerning the amount to send for repairs, $3.25, and I sent it.

I have receipts to show they got the watch and the money order, which was cashed. I have written several letters, but no watch. I paid almost $40 for it, and it was scarcely a year old when it began to malfunction. I'll appreciate whatever response you can get from the company.

M.M. Waltham says it is difficult to determine what happened to your watch because of the length of time involved and the departure of the employee who handled the matter. Company records indicate the watch was lost in the production department during a period when two service centers were being merged. A new watch was sent at the time the loss was noted, but since you evidently did not get it, Waltham is sending another, along with regrets for the inconvenience.

Viaduct widening

Work continues at the viaduct on W. College Avenue, where the roadway is being widened to four lanes. Steel rods pictured here will be used to reinforce the concrete pillars being put in place this week. (Post-Crescent photo)

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Leg and back aches may be 'functional'

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you explain what "functional" means? I had a problem with leg and back aches. A specialist thought it was something functional. Blood tests showed nothing abnormal. What can I do to relieve the problem? —D.T.

Functional means "not organic." For example, a person may have heart disease, or some ailment of liver or kidneys or whatever. If there is something wrong with the organ, then it's "organic disease." But when organs are normal, that is, not diseased, but still seem to misbehave, we use the term "functional," meaning there's nothing wrong with the organ itself, except it doesn't function normally.

For example, in youngsters many heart murmurs are functional — the hearts are perfectly healthy but happen to produce the sound we call a "murmur."

Without knowing more about you than I do, I would suggest for a start that you may be a tense sort of individual and your leg and back aches may be muscle spasms caused by tension, with nothing organically wrong.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a checkup and my doctor was in doubt and called in another doctor. He said, "You are an unusual person. Did you ever have any babies?" I said yes, two. Why? He said, "Well, you have two uteruses."

Now a friend of mine says he doesn't know what he is talking about — a person has only one uterus. Is he right or wrong? —Mrs. J.J.S.

Your friend is correct in that most women have only one uterus. But as the doctor said, you are unusual. Occasionally a woman will have a double uterus — just as occasionally a person will have six fingers, or some such anomaly.

With a double uterus, it is likely that neither uterus will be adequate and there will be no children. So you are even more unusual: You were able to have children.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a four-month-old baby and have tried for three months to stop him from sucking his thumb. I have put sacks on his hands and he sucks through. His father smacks his hand when he puts his thumb in his mouth but it seems to make him suck it more. What should I do now? —Mrs. S.D.C.

Start by ignoring the thumb sucking.

It comes natural to a baby. It's a form of security to him. And smacking his hands at this age just makes him want that much more security from his thumb.

Just let him do it as much as he wants. When he is older, he'll probably outgrow it. Most babies do. If he doesn't stop in a couple of years, that will be time enough to do something about it. By then he'll be old enough to understand, at least somewhat, about it. Now he can't.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has a low sperm count (he is taking treatment) and I desperately want to be pregnant. He thinks if I do exercise and swimming I will not get pregnant.

So I am afraid to exercise, although I need it to keep my figure.

Please comment. —Mrs. J.V.

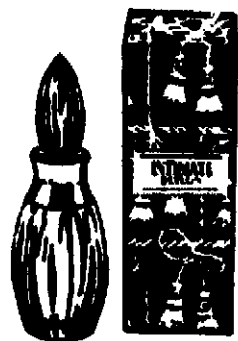

Your exercises and swimming have nothing to do with your not getting pregnant. Your husband's notion is wrong. Assuming that you are in good health, I suggest you go on with your exercises.

Low blood sugar — a puzzler until correctly identified — is often the cause of faintness, headaches, visual and emotional disturbances. To learn how it can be identified and brought under control, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of his booklet, "Help for Hypoglycemia," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use Zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller steps down from the podium Tuesday as Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson assumes his place. Rockefeller had just announced he will resign as governor and that Wilson will take over the position. (AP Wirephoto)

4th try expected of Rockefeller

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — With three tries for the presidency behind him, politicians read Nelson A. Rockefeller's gubernatorial resignation as the first step toward a fourth and final presidential bid.

Rockefeller announced at a news conference Tuesday he would step down in a week from the New York governor's office he was first elected to in 1958. He said he would spend his time working with two bipartisan national commissions which he heads.

"My only regret is that my undertaking these tasks has been interpreted as a political maneuver to seek the presidency or for any other political office," he said as he quit the office he has held for 15 years. "Whether I will become a candidate in the future, I do not know. I should like to keep my options open."

Rockefeller said he would not "face those options" until late in 1975. "This is not a gimmick. This is not a political trick," he said.

Nevertheless, in widely scattered political quarters, the move was seen as a step toward the presidency. And to some Republicans it carried more hope of success than when Rockefeller, once considered the Eastern establishment GOP liberal, ran in 1960, 1964 and 1968.

"I think he has to be considered as a candidate," said Republican state Chairman Clifford L. Jones of Pennsylvania. "It's unquestionably a move in that direction."

A presidential bid by Rockefeller this time would come after he has taken widely publicized actions aimed at stemming welfare chiseling, stiffening terms for drug pushers and improving ties with more conservative elements of the Republican party.

The commissions to which he will devote his time — the National Commission on Critical Choices for America and the National Commission on Water Quality — would give him a platform from which to continue speaking on national issues.

Whatever the decision, 1976 almost certainly would be the 65-year-old Rockefeller's last chance at the presidency. If he won, at inauguration he would be five months older than William Henry Harrison, the age record-holder, was when sworn in at 68 in 1841. Dwight D. Eisenhower, oldest president on leaving the office, was 70 when John F. Kennedy was sworn in in 1961.

A number of Republicans across the country said Rockefeller's chances would be better now than in previous years.

"His recent record is considerably

One-fourth less gasoline planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration today proposed a 25 per cent reduction in gasoline production with priority delivery to emergency services, fuel production, public transportation and agriculture.

Under fuel allocation regulations proposed to take effect Dec. 27, business — including nonprofit and government organizations — would get the same amount of gasoline they did one year earlier.

Other distributors would get whatever was left over, but in no case would receive more than 90 per cent of what they received a year earlier.

The regulations would govern bulk distribution of gasoline but will affect individual consumers by sharply curtailing supplies available at the retail level.

Energy czar William E. Simon, in proposing the regulations, also revised an earlier proposal for allocation of home heating oil and diesel and jet fuel.

Under the new proposal, these fuels would go first to a top priority category of users, including fuel production activities and public transportation which would get all of their fuel needs, subject to a ceiling on increases.

Vital community services and medical, dental and nursing services would get 10 per cent more fuel than one year earlier.

Users of fuel for space heating would be required to reduce indoor temperatures by six degrees fahrenheit in homes and by 10 degrees fahrenheit in other buildings.

Industrial and manufacturing users, food producers and processors and cargo, freight and mail haulers would also get 10 per cent more of the middle distillate fuels than one year ago.

All others would be entitled to as much middle distillate oil as in 1972, to the extent it was available.

The regulations would also impose controls on distribution of crude oil among refineries for the first time.

Each refinery would be limited to production based on a ratio between the total crude oil supply and the nation's total refinery capacity.

Refiners receiving more than their share according to that ratio would have to offer their excess supplies for sale and those operating below the ratio could purchase crude oil to increase their production.

Also brought under allocation was residual oil, a heavy oil used mainly in electric power plants and industries.

The proposed regulations would assign top priority for residual oil to those who use it for fuel production, food production, essential community service, marine shipping and heating for health services. These users would get all the fuel they need.

Other space-heating users of residual oil would have to reduce indoor temperatures by six or 10 degrees.

Electric utilities would be allocated residual oil on the basis of a computation by the Federal Energy Office, aimed at equalizing any cutbacks in electrical generation.

Industrial users and all others would get as much residual oil as they need up to the amount they used in 1973.

The proposed regulations would allocate feed stocks of petroleum products to petrochemical plants up to 20 per cent more than the 1972 levels.

Any excess feed stocks would first be allocated to current purchasers in proportion to past purchases and if any feed stocks are left over they could be sold freely.

The proposed regulations would also assign priorities to users of propane gas, propane, butane and propane-butane mixtures.

Priority customers would get either a percentage of past purchases or all of their current needs, while non-priority customers would share the rest.

Aviation fuels would be in a separate category, with top priority assigned to emergency and mercy flights. Up to 150 per cent of the 1972 fuel used for such flights would be available under the proposed regulations.

Major domestic airlines would get five per cent less fuel than in 1972 until next Jan. 7, when the cutback would increase to 15 per cent below 1972.

Crude oil prices soar skyward

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The price of Iranian crude oil went out of sight. Venezuela became a new force in the oil war. And informed sources said the United States planned to reduce gasoline production by 20 per cent.

That was Tuesday's agenda on the oil crisis calendar. In addition, there were predictions of more unemployment and of a sharp increase in the American cost of living, including such things as a 30-cent-per-gallon increase in the cost of gasoline.

The Iranian sale of crude oil set a world price record whose impact could play havoc with the economies of nations, industry surges in New York said.

The effect of such global maneuverings, they said, eventually would trickle to the bottom of the oil barrel — the consumer.

The Iranian government announced it contracted to sell a relatively small consignment of 80 million barrels of crude oil for $16 to $17.40 a barrel to unidentified American, European and Japanese bidders. It previously had sold barrels at about $3.30.

Venezuela's apparent new president, Carlos Andres Perez, warned that, like the Arabs, he would use oil as a weapon. He said he wanted economic benefits for his country.

The Nixon administration, according to informed sources, planned to cut production of gasoline by about 20 per cent in efforts to control distribution of crude oil and petroleum products.

It also set up a special unit in the federal energy office to deal with the oil shortage's economic impact, which is being felt more keenly with each day's escalating events.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said fuel price increases could raise the cost of living in the United States by $27 billion next year — nearly three per cent.

In other energy-related developments Tuesday:

—The New England Power Pool said severe power shortages may result this winter because New England utilities will get 34 per cent less oil than they need.

—The nation's airlines will be forced by Nixon's allocation program to cancel

2,600 daily departures and lay off more than 25,000 employees, the Air Transport Association says.

—Phillips Petroleum Co. said it was cutting back its refinery output because the Arab embargo is crimping its supply of crude oil.

—And a Nixon cabinet member, Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar, denied the shortage was an oil industry gimmick to raise prices.

"The shortage is honest-to-God real," Brinegar told a Senate Public Works subcommittee. "I wish it were a conspiracy, but it's not." He insisted that information the government is getting is accurate. The administration relies on the oil industry for data relating to the shortage.

The prices for Iranian crude were announced following an auction by the Iranian National Oil company of 80 million barrels for delivery the first half of 1974.

The auctioned oil represents part of the payment to Iran by the consortium of Western oil companies that operate as marketing agents in that country.

"There are very few places in the world today where independent companies can get crude oil," one oil expert observed. "People are grabbing to buy crude anywhere they can," said another.

President Perez, the unofficial winner in Sunday's elections, said his country's untapped petroleum reserves would be exploited in accordance with a policy of Venezuelan nationalism.

Venezuela produces approximately 3.3 million barrels of crude oil and refined products a day and is the second largest supplier of the United States, which consumes some 17 million barrels daily.

Economic adviser Stein told a congressional committee he based his $27 billion cost-of-living-increase estimate on an expected 50 per cent increase in fuel prices.

He predicted that balancing supply and demand would require a 30-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline prices. He said no decision had been made on rationing or taxes to deal with the crisis, but he said higher consumer prices are certain to be a result.

Pressure seen in tax ruling on Nader group

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge says the inference of White House political intervention has been raised in Internal Revenue Service handling of the tax status of a public interest research group.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey said the IRS "did not have clean hands in their dealings" with the group, the Center on Corporate Responsibility Inc.

He ordered on Tuesday that the center be considered an organization exempt from federal income taxes and qualified to receive deductible charitable contributions.

The group, founded by former researchers for consumer advocate Ralph Nader, "was singled out for selective treatment for political, ideological and other improper reasons," Richey said in a 31-page memorandum accompanying his order.

The center was disbanded in July when its contributions dried up.

"A looming issue in this case has been whether political interference or intrusion has played a role in the Internal Revenue Service's consideration of the plaintiff's exemption application," the judge said.

"...The inference of political intervention has been unmistakably raised," he said.

However, Richey said he was unable to make an informed evaluation of the center's claims that White House political pressure resulted in the adverse ruling because the IRS failed to supply all the materials he ordered produced. These included "all White House files plus the Treasury and IRS files regarding tax-exempt organization since Jan. 20, 1969, and certain tape recordings" now before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

The center was incorporated as a nonprofit corporation in February 1970 and, in September that year, asked exemption from federal income laws. It listed its purpose as the promotion of increased responsibility on the part of corporations.

When there was no IRS ruling by last May 2, the center filed suit. Two weeks later, on May 16, the IRS ruled the group was not exempt from taxes nor qualified to receive deductible charitable contributions.

Richey said that in the IRS files was found a seven-page handwritten note by IRS official Richard Cox with the notation "perhaps White House pressure."

The judge said the files also disclosed "certain unusual procedures" in the final processing of the application.

For instance, the judge noted that internal memorandums all showed approval of the application and not until Deputy Chief Counsel Roger V. Barth turned over the file to a Mrs. June Norris was there any draft of an adverse ruling.

The judge referred to Barth as a political appointee and to Mrs. Norris as having "neither direct nor indirect responsibility to the chief counsel nor any prior involvement regarding the application."

He said the White House submitted only four documents as falling within the scope of the court's order and that the defendants said a further search of all Treasury and IRS files "would be burdensome."

Weicker says Nixon missed date for tax break

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he gave $570,000 worth of pre-presidential papers to the National Archives in time to claim them as an income tax deduction. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., says an exhaustive investigation shows Nixon is wrong.

Weicker's 11-page legal memorandum turned over to the Internal Revenue Service on Tuesday with 26 supporting documents raises new questions concerning the deduction, which the White House detailed in an extraordinary disclosure of the President's finances last weekend.

The documents clearly indicate the defense of the deduction the White House is making now is not the one intended by the presidential lawyers who handled the transaction and tax return in 1969. Weicker said neither defense can stand the tests required by federal tax laws.

The Weicker memorandum points out there were two ways the gift could have been made in order to have met the legal requirements for claiming it as an income tax deduction.

Because Congress in December 1969

abolished the deduction for the appraised value of such papers made after July 25, 1969, the President would have had to have met either requirement by the deadline, Weicker said.

Nixon's two choices were:

—To deed the papers to the National Archives with a legally authorized agent, delivery of the deed to the archives with a legally sufficient description of the gift and acceptance of the deed by the archivist.

—Actual delivery of the gift. The senator said this would require that the papers be physically turned over to the archives, that they be specifically identified and accepted as a gift with the President surrendering "dominion and control" of the documents to the recipient.

The White House financial statement on Saturday said, "President Nixon was and is advised by his attorneys that the gift met the deductibility requirements of the law" because the papers were delivered, identified and surrendered before the July 25, 1969, deadline.

Weicker disputed that statement, charging that the papers were delivered as part of a much larger shipment and were not selected, identified and separated from other documents until December 1969, five months after the deadline. And Nixon did not give up dominion and control until at least April 10, 1970, Weicker said.

The documents show that the attorneys working on the gift and deduction in 1969, deputy White House counsel Edward L. Morgan and Los Angeles lawyer Frank DeMarco Jr., sought to meet the deed requirements.

Morgan signed a "Chattel Deed from Richard M. Nixon to the United States of America." The deed bears the date March 27, 1969, the day the bulk shipment was delivered to the archives.

Nixon had signed a similar deed for a 1968 gift three months earlier but did not sign the 1969 document. Instead, Morgan attached an affidavit in which he swore he was Nixon's legal agent, and DeMarco notarized it, ostensibly on April 21, 1969.

The affidavit says the materials covered by the deed are "specifically set forth in Schedule A attached hereto."

Schedule A, designating 1,176 boxes covered by the deed, was not written, however, until the following year, after Chicago appraiser Ralph G. Newman picked out which of Nixon's voluminous files were to be included in the 1969 gift.

And an archives consultant's status report on May 27, 1969 — two months after the deed reportedly was written — said the papers involved "are not yet deeded to the United States."

In his memorandum, Weicker concluded: "The March 27, 1969, deed fails on all counts."

Nixon has said he would permit the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation to review the gift and would pay the back taxes if the House-Senate panel finds the deduction unauthorized.

The congressional committee has agreed to review the transaction, but Weicker said he turned his material over to the IRS because it is the "one agency responsible for enforcement of tax laws in this country."

"If any of us has problems," the senator added, "we don't get congressional hearings. There is only one authority ... and that's IRS."

Indians attack Social Services

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

ONEIDA — Some Indians here aren't too fond of the Outagamie County Department of Social Services.

It is, they complain, stingy and discriminatory. It's where they get a lot of double talk and run-around and not enough money.

Oneidas living in Brown County have it a lot better, they insist.

Purcell Powless, Oneida tribal chairman, said it's been that way for years and it's not getting any better.

But Outagamie Welfare Director James E. Stamp, who weathered a hail of criticism here Tuesday, unveiled a plan that could improve relations and services.

Conceding that it is often a major inconvenience for needy Indians to travel 20 miles to his department for help, Stamp offered to bring part of his department to the Indians — if it meets with their approval next week.

If that doesn't work, Powless said, Indians might start their own welfare department of sorts. They've already talked seriously about it.

Years of broken promises for better services had, Powless explained, driven the tribal business committee to schedule the Tuesday meeting with a dozen representatives from the community, the Brown and Outagamie county welfare departments, the state Department of Social Services, the Social Security Administration and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

It was a last resort, Powless said. His people were having trouble getting Indian relief money, Powless told delegates. Indian relief is a state funded program similar to the system of general or emergency relief administered by towns, villages and cities.

When an Indian living on tax-free land faces the sudden need for help in getting such things as food, shelter, clothing, medical care and fuel oil, he applies for Indian relief through his county welfare department.

He also has access to the same, longer term aid programs available to non-Indians, such as medical assistance, disabled aid, food stamps and the full range of ADC.

The 2,700 Oneidas living in this area are about equally divided between Brown and Outagamie counties, Powless said, but the last fiscal year Brown County granted $31,900 in Indian relief and averaged 20 cases per month while Outagamie paid $6,000 and averaged 5.5 cases per month.

The imbalance itself indicates something is wrong, the Oneidas believe.

Powless, Anna John and Sandra Ninham told about Oneidas who weren't satisfied with the service from the Outagamie agency.

Powless said he had a bad experience. "I don't know if it was because I was an Indian or what," he told officials.

"Indian people have a certain amount of pride," Powless said. "They tend to suffer rather than go through harassment."

Powless said he went to his county supervisor, the welfare board and even to County Executive Alvin Woehler. They all said there wouldn't be any more problems, he recalled.

Oneidas can't get help from their towns (Oneida and Hobart) either, Powless complained. "We get excuses and get downgraded."

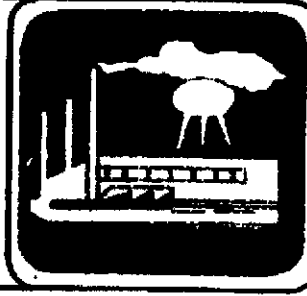

About three months ago the tribal business committee unanimously agreed to explore the

School cost estimates up sharply

By JOHN LEE
Post-Crescent staff writer

NEW LONDON — Large increases in estimated costs for four proposed building plans drew the concern of school board members Monday. They postponed action on the plans.

The updated cost estimates were submitted by Stubenrauch and Associates, the firm which had drawn up various proposals for the board about two years ago.

A plan calling for new lockers, a new commons, and about nine classrooms west of the present structure now would cost about $816,000 to $900,000, the architects estimated. Last April, those costs were listed from $680,000 to $750,000.

A plan calling for a new gym, new lockers, and converting the present gym into a classroom and commons area would cost about $834,000 to $920,000, up from earlier estimates of $695,000 to $767,000.

Providing new lockers and four classrooms north of the present school would cost about $513,000 to $566,000, they estimated, up from $428,000 to $472,000.

A fourth plan, calling just for the construction of new lockers north of the building, would cost from $167,000 to $185,000, up from earlier estimates that placed the figure from $139,000 to $154,000.

The estimates were for the first quarter of 1974, the architects said, pointing out that "at this particular time construction pricing is as volatile and dramatic as everything else."

In other business, the board voted to buy three bus chassis from Volz Chevrolet for $5,662 each from the 1974-75 budget. Supt. H. J. Ramsdell was authorized to purchase the most serviceable bodies from the companies bidding. The Volz bid was the lower of two received.

The board deferred action on a proposal to establish salaries, for board members presently receive no compensation.

In a unified district, state law allows a maximum of $10 a meeting and up to $15 a day for expenses when the board members are out of the district on school business.

The board also agreed to buy a vehicle for transporting handicapped children. Under a state law, the district must transport the children if parents request it. Some parents have said they will no longer transport the children under the parent contract. Others have asked for higher travel rates.

X-ray action sought

An appearance of state highway officials before the Outagamie County Board on Jan. 8 will be sought by the county in an attempt to at least partially resolve the fate of the Tri-County Expressway.

Supervisors representing communities along the proposed route of the expressway voiced dissatisfaction Tuesday over the speed at which the project was progressing.

A resolution asking communities to preserve the proposed right-of-way by placing it on their official maps was laid over until after a meeting with the state at the request of Supv. Edward Spierings of Little Chute.

Spierings, one of the most vocal critics of the lack of progress, said the communities could not keep denying people building permits on the land. In effect, Spierings said the right-of-way should either be purchased or the people should be allowed to build on the land.

County Highway Commissioner Clarence Brownson said the major hold-up was the determination of who will have jurisdiction over the road. There would be no problem, he indicated, if the county was satisfied to pay the entire cost itself. If state or federal funds are involved, he indicated, no right-of-way can be purchased until all of the state and federally required public hearings are held to determine if the proposed route is the proper one.

Brownson said a two-year regional planning study is now completed and the analyzed information should be available in a couple of months.

"We've studied for two years," Spierings responded. "I want action."

The commissioner presented his annual report to the board and again drew fire from Supv. Ted LaPin over the amount of money in the highway fund. LaPin again argued that highway programs should be financed as the money is needed, rather than providing the entire anticipated year's spending at the beginning of the year.

LaPin noted that over the past few years there has always been a considerable balance in the fund because of the department not being able to complete all of its work.

He said he felt the cash requirements of the highway department "could be materially lessened" by knowing when the projects would be completed.

Brownson said much of the balance is monies appropriated for purchase of the expressway right-of-way, but not used because of the current jurisdictional study.

"I think there is a gap between my questions and your answers," LaPin said.

Brownson answered that "I feel the gap will be less than you think when the final report comes out." Noting that his annual report covered only the first 10 months of the year, Brownson said "we did a tremendous amount of work the last two months."

Post-Crescent correspondent

STOCKBRIDGE — "It is a tremendous honor to be recognized by people of your home community. I am sure you people know how much I appreciate it," said Otto Meyer as he accepted the Chamber of Commerce "outstanding citizen of the year" award Tuesday night.

The presentation was made at the group's annual dinner meeting by, Charles Vanden Boom, president of the chamber.

Meyer, a former high school principal here, refers to Stockbridge as "the dimple of Wisconsin." The white-haired man came to this country as a boy in 1913 from Czechoslovakia. He attended grade and high schools at Wausaukee, and was graduated from Milwaukee Normal School in 1926.

Meyer taught in rural schools and was principal of state graded schools in Washington County until 1939 when he returned to Milwaukee Teacher's College and received a bachelor of science degree in education. He then accepted a position as principal of an elementary school in Milwaukee.

In 1943 he joined the faculty at Stockbridge High School and became principal the following year, a position he held until 1959. Because of health reasons, Meyer asked to be relieved of his administrative duties, but continued to teach until his retirement in 1969.

When he retired, the community honored him at a testimonial dinner attended by 240 of his former students and friends. The Stockbridge Alumni Association presented him with a purse to be used for his return to his native land.

Meyer has taught American history, world geography, sociology, economics, civics, junior business, physics, science, biology, English and agriculture. He also coached basketball for one year. While he was forensics coach, his team won two Kettle Moraine Conference Championships.

Among his achievements was "helping" to retain the local high school. In the early 1950s, he was instrumental in the reorganization

Waupaca approves $1.56 million budget; little change in taxes

WAUPACA — The city council Tuesday approved a 1974 budget of $1.56 million and set a net tax rate of $19.14 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Spending categories for the new year include city expenditures of $894,645; Waupaca Unified School District tax, $484,196; vocational school tax, $35,201; county taxes, $146,173, and state taxes of $7,505. The council exercises control over spending only in the first category.

The city purposes portion of the budget shows a 3 per cent increase over the 1973 budget; no new services will be offered, but the increase reflects higher costs of salaries, wages and materials.

For most taxpayers, tax bills will show little change from the previous year. Real estate and class B personal property is now assessed at 100 per cent of market value, the first year for assessment at full value. The owner of a $20,000 house can expect a tax bill of about $380.

The gross rate adopted was $23.70, reduced by a state tax credit of $4.56 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

Not one taxpayer attended the public hearing on the budget and, in the special council meeting after the 40 minute hearing, aldermen had few questions to ask before passing the budget which calls for a total tax levy of $966,858.

The picture may not be all that bright, it is pointed out by some city officials, since it is still not known if the city will receive the $117,000 due in state revenue sharing, and an increase in water rates is almost certain in 1974 to make the water and sewer utilities self supporting. The $996,858 tax levy is apportioned to provide $323,783 for municipal purposes; $484,196 for the Waupaca Unified School District; $35,201 for FVTI Vocational District 12; $146,173 for county taxes and $7,505 for state taxes.

The 1974 city tax is based on the new assessed valuation of $42,052,600 and other taxes are based on the state's equalized valuation of $37,523,800.

During 1974, the city will spend $81,074 for general government; $167,784 for protection of persons and property; $6,730 for health and social services; $57,560 for public works; $6,165 for education and recreation; $500 for conservation and development; Employee benefits are budgeted at $83,000; debt service at $135,750, and capital outlays at $185,889.

Revenues will total $599,613. Capital outlays include a new fire truck for $35,572; street resurfacing and traffic controls at the corner of Royalton and Churchill streets to handle the rerouting of truck traffic around the city and the purchase of new street machinery.

The budget includes a 5½ per cent pay increase for all city employees and a $28,000 contingency fund.

Health services director sought

By DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

A new search will start for a program director under the unified mental health services board, this time within the existing salary structure of Outagamie County.

John Wiley, chairman of the unified board, told the county board Tuesday that he did not think a qualified person could be hired within the given salary range, but said he was willing to try.

The county board approved a pay grade of 26 for the program director which has a range from $16,500 to $20,016 a year. Unanswered was whether the unified board could hire anywhere within that range or if it had to hire at the starting base.

The county has a policy that all new employees must start at the lowest step of the pay range.

Approval came after an argument over the resolution directing the personnel committee to readvertise for the position in cooperation with the personnel committee of the unified board.

Supv. Ted LaPin, a member of the unified board, successfully argued that the resolution language no longer represented the feeling of the unified board and got the wording changed to give the unified board's personnel committee the primary responsibility for the hiring.

The resolution also sets the pay grades for the four program coordinators, but Wiley said the only person to be hired now is the program director. "If that ever happens," Wiley said, "we will then make a decision on what else we need."

Supv. Fred Rehfeldt said the county "shouldn't quibble about a few thousand dollars" and let the unified board hire whoever it wants. The unified board had previously wanted to hire a director at $23,000.

Supv. Marvin Babbitt, chairman of the county board's personnel committee, retorted that "the same people who wanted to cut the unified board from 15 to 9 members now want to give them a free hand."

Funds to pay the director will be taken from "settling up" account of the health center. In doing so, the board amended an earlier resolution that would have set aside $500,000 from that fund to cover program and personnel adjustments from the unified board and also a countywide health department.

That resolution had been tabled in November and one effort Tuesday morning to take it off the table failed.

A second effort in the afternoon succeeded and the resolution was then amended to eliminate mention of a countywide health department and the dollar amount was taken out.

Another effort to table the resolution until the legality of using the money was determined failed on a tie vote.

Supv. Richard Jahnke, who led the movement to act on the resolution, charged the opponents with being afraid to vote on the issue. "The resolution is clear," he said. Any excuse for not acting on it "is only a delaying tactic."

The board also approved increasing the pay grades for all nursing positions at the health center on the warning that there soon would be no nurses at the facility.

Babbitt said the center "is down to three nurses because of the salaries and we can't hire new ones at the present pay grades."

The grade changes affect 12 full-time

Marion kindergarten classes will switch to full-day program

MARION — The school district will revise its kindergarten program in January as a means of saving gasoline needed for bus transportation. Other fuel-saving readjustments are being considered by the school board, which approved the new plan at its regular meeting Monday.

Beginning Jan. 3, the kindergarten schedule will shift from half days to alternating full days. Each child will attend school three days a week one week and two days the next on an alternating basis.

This will eliminate the need for special kindergarten buses as the children will be able to ride the regularly scheduled buses to and from school. It is estimated that this will save approximately 600 gallons of gasoline and about $1,400 per month in operating costs.

Those children who do not live within walking distance of the school will either have to bring a sack lunch or participate in the hot lunch program. Free lunches are available to children from those families which qualify.

Fund drive begins for ex-drug-user facility

"New Life, Inc.," Manawa, a re-establishment and training center for young people who have been on drugs, began a fund drive this week to raise $30,000 to help pay for the facility. The drive is for the general public at this time, according to the six ministers who began the center. Any donations may be sent to either the Farmers State Bank, Manawa, or New Life Inc., Box 297, Hortonville, 54944.

The donations will not be used for operating expenses, but for the mortgage on the property. The operating expenses are met through other means. Some of the residents work and pay room and board, it was explained.

There are currently nine people taking advantage of the program. The capacity is 70.

The center handles any youths who have been on any types of drugs, but have received the medical treatment necessary after they have gone off the drug.

That is necessary because neither the center nor the personnel are equipped or competent to handle the medical problems.

The residents are accepted from many and almost any sources — via references from other agencies or other ministers, as well as those who simply walk in off the street.

Michael G. Krueger, 19, route 1, forfeited $59 for driving without a valid driver's license.

Speeding 23 m.p.h. in excess of the 25 m.p.h. limit resulted in a fine for Thomas A. Osman, 21, route 3.

Cited for hit and run involving property adjacent to the highway, at Shearer and Van St., Roger J. Lind, 27, route 1, paid $59.

A speeding citation, traveling 49 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. zone, drew a forfeiture of $69 from Roberto Turrubiates, 24, 703 Larson St.

Bob Austin scored 30 points in Waupaca Recreation's win over

Some of the other means of saving fuel that are being considered include revising of bus routes to eliminate duplication; limiting athletic practice sessions to regular school days; and urging students who regularly drive autos to school to ride the school buses.

In other action, the board approved full membership and equal opportunities for female members of the Future Farmers of America (FFA) to permit them to participate in the annual early summer trip to Canada.

It was reported that Nathan Tribby has been hired as a part-time maintenance man at the high school. A full-time employee is being sought to replace Vilas Siedenkrantz, who resigned earlier this year.

A representative of Morning Glory Dairy presented a request for an increase in the price of milk. Morning Glory is under contract to the district to supply the milk for its regular milk program. The increase requested would cost the school district about $1,600 as the board will not change the price paid by the children. Action was put off until the January meeting.

Rev. Richard Brunner, Church of the Nazarene; the Rev. Robert Murphy, Wesleyan Church; the Rev. Daniel Spina, First Assembly of God; the Rev. David Swanson, Fox River Baptist, all of Appleton, plus the Rev. Arthur Gregg, Evangel Community Church, Menasha, and the Rev. Ross Pace, Community Baptist Church, Hortonville.

The group purchased the old Waupaca County Home, which had been vacant for a year, located about three miles north of Royalton and about 10 miles northwest of New London.

According to Brunner, the purpose of the center is twofold: to provide a training ground under controlled circumstance, and to help build character.

Indians complain of county treatment

possibility of taking over their own Indian relief. "Eventually we hope to administer all our own affairs," Powless said. "We're becoming more capable of taking care of our own business," he later told a reporter.

Duane Campbell of the state Department of Health and Social Services, which the tribal committee had contacted with its proposal, believed a one-year, pilot program could be devised. His agency, Campbell said, probably could contract with the Bureau of Indian Affairs which would subcontract with the tribe.

Powless said that proposal won't be forgotten, but in the meantime the tribal business committee, on Monday, will vote on Stamp's offer to send two of his people to Oneida at least a half day each week to provide the complete system of financial services now available to the Indians at the Appleton office.

He's doing it to make things more convenient for the Oneidas, Stamp said, and to quiet some of their criticism. The tribe will have to supply an office and telephones, he said. He will not have to add to his staff. He could start soon after Jan. 1,

Stamp explained.

Powless thought it sounded like a good plan, but he hoped it was "not another broken promise."

Mrs. Ninham worried that it was "just an attempt to pacify us."

Stamp said he would consider widening the range of programs offered at the Oneida satellite office later.

Powless said a big part of the problem now was with the attitude of some social workers toward Indians. Mrs. John wondered if hiring an Indian social worker might improve conditions.

Oneidas have not applied for jobs in his department, Stamp explained, and even if they do, the state gives him the names of eligible candidates.

Stamp later told a reporter that while he can't know how his people feel toward Indians or other minorities, he is sure there is no outward discrimination shown the Oneidas by his staff.

He hasn't been able to come to grips with the problems caused by Indian relief, Stamp said. "I've been taking a tremendous amount of criticism the past two years."

Simply comparing caseloads and relief grants by Brown and Outagamie counties is not sufficient to draw conclusions, Stamp said, but it appeared the Indian relief program in Brown County is more liberal.

His department has traditionally been conservative in what it gives to meet essential emergency needs, Stamp admitted. It's the way he wants it and it's the way it will stay, he indicated.

He proposed that the state monitor the Indian relief cases in both counties to determine who's right and who's wrong. "I'll live with the results," Stamp said.

His philosophy on granting Indian relief, Stamp explained, was not to deny requests on technical grounds but to make sure applicants met eligibility requirements.

Part of the problem, he said, lies with the state which has not provided clear guidelines to assure Indian relief will be handled uniformly between different counties. State officials at Tuesday's meeting admitted it was a problem and added that changes are planned.

Schools keep within November fuel share

CLINTONVILLE — The school district operated within its allotment of fuel oil for November, Supt. V. J. Wadleigh informed the board of education at its meeting Monday night at the Long-fellow School.

Wadleigh's letter to Stanley York, Gov. Patrick Lucey's energy director, indicated that it was not necessary to secure an advance on the district's December allotment of fuel oil.

A letter was received from Standard Oil in regard to the price change effective Dec. 18 when the district will be paying 18.77 cents per gallon for No. 2 fuel oil. This is a four-cent-per-gallon increase over the price of 14.77 cents paid in June. On Oct. 15, the price was 15.07 cents; and on Nov. 17, 16.67 cents per gallon.

Copy of a letter sent to the Bear Creek Village Board and parents of pupils riding the express bus to Clintonville High School was discussed. It was in

Commerce group slates two events

CLINTONVILLE — The Association of Commerce has announced the dates for two of its annual events.

The annual dinner meeting will be at 7 p.m. Jan. 28 at Bennett's Supper Club and the farm institute will be March 1 at the senior high school.

Camille Haney, consumer affairs coordinator of the Wisconsin Department of Justice, will speak. She was appointed to the state post by state Atty. Gen. Robert Warren in 1970. Mrs. Haney is the author of a weekly newspaper column on consumer affairs and appears at legislative hearings at state and national levels.

Preliminary plans for the farm institute were discussed at a recent breakfast meeting. Programs are being planned for both men and women. Speakers include Art Kurtz, Donald Steege, Chilton, of the Wisconsin Holstein Service; and Prof. Richard Powell of the University of Wisconsin.

Babbitt said all the nurses are now in pay grade 18. The new pay grades will range up to grade 21. The entire package will cost the county an additional $17,000 in salaries, Babbitt said.

He blamed the recent John Doe investigation for the situation. Babbitt said the county was forced to lower the salaries of the nurses who were being paid higher than the authorized grade. "We had to bring them back into step," he said. Without naming River-view General Hospital, he said the other county institution has not had the problem "because they are still hiring out of grade."

Consideration of remodeling River-view was held off for another month to give the committees involved time to review a state inspection report.

Supv. George Schroeder, chairman of the human resources committee, one of the two committees involved, said the report became available last week and his committee has not had a chance to get together with the finance committee and the trustees.

The resolution to provide $60,000 for the project was amended so that the $31,000 remaining in the provision for structural improvements fund would be earmarked for that project and that the remaining $29,000 would be taken from the health center settling up account.

Rehfeldt opposed the earmarking of the $31,000, shouting "we don't want any tainted money at River-view."

Supv. Joseph DeBruin noted that the proposed State 55 expressway right-of-way goes through the old wing of River-view and suggested the committees consider that in their remodeling study.

A resolution to spend $200,000 remodeling bathrooms at the health center to permit the various wards to be used for both men and women was laid over for the fourth time.

This time, on the motion of Supv. Merritt Kavanaugh, "until the state defines PMT" — public medical institution.

Weyauwega okays sale of east side land

WEYAUWEGA — The City Council approved the sale of a 20 x 142 foot strip of land at the east side of the new Mill Street parking lot to Ronald Brach and Lloyd Coppersmith for $3,1450.00.

New ordinances were accepted to rezone land from residence district B to commercial district. An area lying south and east of the Waupaca River from residence district A to residence district B. A section of an ordinance was amended to read 1,000 square feet per family for multipurpose home.

Monthly salaries for city employees, beginning Jan. 1, 1974, will include William Bachman, $506; Charles Willer, $502; Lee Xonton, $546; Charles Sherburne, $536; Robert Perry, $521; Lawrence Schmeis, $571 and Cal Cheek, $555.

Gordon Baehman appeared before the council to gain permission for a release of easement on four feet of property west of the Kadolph building on Main Street. Baehman recently purchased the building and intends to use the site for an addition to his supermarket. His attorney and the city attorney will check the legal procedure after the former is completed reviewing the abstract of the former Kadolph property.

The Weyauwega Jaycees were granted a license to sell fermented malt beverages, in paper cups only, at the Waupaca County Fairgrounds on Dec. 15-16.

Free guitar classes for beginners to be started at Hilbert

HILBERT — A beginning guitar class has been formed at the high school, to meet at 10 a.m. every Saturday in the band room.

The course is structured on a class participation basis rather than on individual private lessons, according to John Hinkley, band director.

Parents who might consider buying a guitar for their son or daughter for Christmas might want to consider the lessons. There is no cost for the lessons except the initial price of the materials.

Questions about the course should be directed to Hinkley.

Petri has eyes on possible '74 race for Nelson's seat in Senate

BY FRANK CHURCH

State Sen. Thomas Petri, R-Fond du Lac, has an aide exploring the possibilities for a campaign for the U.S. Senate in 1974.

Rumors of a possible Petri candidacy against U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson have been circulating for months, but the senator's own move to get an aide out on the trail shows more than passing interest.

"Yes, I guess you could say I'm seriously interested," said the first term Republican from the state's Second Senate District.

Petri said he has already received "encouraging reactions" from four of the state's nine district party chairmen. He plans to make up his mind on a candidacy after the party's special state convention in January.

"Someone is going to have to end up running against Gaylord Nelson next year," said Petri.

Nelson, elected convincingly in 1962 and 1968, is considered a strong contender for re-election. Financial and other troubles in the state Republican party, and national GOP woes caused by Watergate, could add up to more problems for a Republican candidate.

Petri himself admits it is "very improbable" that Nelson can be defeated in 1974, but the Watergate scandal and other troubles at the federal level make him feel that a newcomer might benefit from the fallout as much as a Democrat incumbent.

"I sense there is a general spirit of unhappiness, not just about Watergate, but with inflation and unemployment, increasing taxes and big government in general," said Petri.

Republican candidates might suffer from Watergate in 1974, he said, but there might be the "same kind of guilt by association for long-term, experienced politicians who are wise in the ways of Washington, like Gaylord Nelson."

At 33, Petri is one of the youngest members of the state Senate. He is among several possible GOP Senate candidates, including State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek.

His new aide is Van Hefflin Schwartz, a graduate in sculpture and government from Harvard who joins Petri on a volunteer basis after running a small newspaper in Iowa for two years.

Schwartz will be out looking for reactions to a Petri candidacy in the weeks ahead.

Petri won over four other Republicans in the 1972 primary for the Second District seat before winning the general election. He is considered by fellow Republicans to have a bright future in politics.

Petri himself said it "makes sense" for the GOP to run a young candidate against Nelson in 1974. The exposure would help him in the future, even if he does lose to the strong Democrat in 1974.

'Looking Glass' slated for Clintonville program

CLINTONVILLE — The Kaleidoscope Players of the State Theater of New Mexico will present "Other Sides of the Looking Glass" Friday during the annual all grade school assembly program in the junior high school auditorium.

There will be three separate performances to accommodate the 1,383 pupils who are expected to attend.

The annual assembly program for the five public and three parochial schools in the district was started by the local branch of the American Association of University Women several years ago. The public schools now assume the leadership in continuing to bring high quality children's theater here.

The performance will be a panorama of the worlds of Lewis Carroll. The one-act edition of "Other Sides of the Looking Glass" will feature Rene Handren and Bill Poorbaugh, Kaleidoscope actors, in a potpourri of scenes from "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass."

The show is devoted to such topics as early and school years, mathematics, holidays at the seashore and syllogisms with enactment of such scenes as "The Mad Tea Party," "The Gryphon and the Mock Turtle," "Humpty Dumpty" and "The Jabberwocky."

"Other Sides of the Looking Glass" was commissioned by the Kaleidoscope Players and written by David Novak, a New York author and playwright.

SBA loan approval linked to business deal

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The former Wisconsin director of the Small Business Administration (SBA) recommended approval of a loan to a firm whose major stockholder later joined him in purchasing a bank, the Milwaukee Sentinel reported today.

Richard D. Murray resigned the SBA position June 21, and is now president of the Bank of Fort Atkinson.

A $380,000 loan to Johnson Hill Oshkosh, Inc., was approved June 7 by SBA officials in Washington.

Jonathan G. Pellegrin of Fort Atkinson is a major incorporate of Johnson Hill Oshkosh. He, Murray and four other persons purchased the Fort Atkinson bank June 21.

The loan was used to purchase a department store business in Oshkosh from Johnson Hill, Inc., a Wisconsin Rapids firm.

Murray could not be reached this morning for comment on the Sentinel story. He said last week, the Sentinel reported, that no conflict of interest existed between the loan and his association with Pellegrin in purchasing the bank. He said he had always been very careful to avoid special favours and potential conflicts.

Murray, the Sentinel reported, said he sent the loan request to the Chicago SBA office although the Madison district office had authority to approve it.

The newspaper said Murray told it he did this to avoid a possible conflict of interest, noting that at the time he lived across the street from Pellegrin in Fort Atkinson.

Robert A. Dwyer, regional SBA director in Chicago, said Murray had recommended "a number of times" in telephone conversations that the loan be approved, the Sentinel reported. Dwyer said Murray had not mentioned that he was Pellegrin's neighbor or say anything about the Bank of Fort Atkinson.

The Sentinel quoted Murray as saying he did not mention the bank purchase to Dwyer because he did not know about it at the time the loan was being reviewed.

In April, Dwyer said, he refused to approve the loan because of what he called "credit considerations." He said he "also had in mind possible conflict of interest."

"In my judgment, at that moment it was a clear case of conflict of interest,"

Dwyer told the Sentinel. He said SBA regulations prevented him from discussing the nature of the conflict.

Dwyer said the Washington SBA office at first went along with the decision not to approve the loan, then agreed to reconsider.

The loan approval was signed by Anthony Stasio, acting associate director for finance and investments. He said that he had talked to Murray about the loan, but that SBA regulations barred him from saying whether Murray recommended approval. Stasio said there did not appear to be a conflict of interest.

Madison man killed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A one-car Dane County accident put the 1973 Wisconsin traffic fatality toll at 1,060 today, compared with 1,114 on this date in record 1972.

William Zindars, 42, of Madison was killed Tuesday afternoon when his car crashed through a guardrail in Interstate 90 near Madison, and went down an embankment.

Pellegrin said he went to Chicago and Washington to discuss the loan with SBA officials, and that Murray had not assisted during the appeal process.

"Rick and I had an understanding that he wouldn't act on the loan," he said.

Murray, 35, was an unsuccessful Republican candidate for Congress from the 2nd District in 1968. He was appointed Wisconsin SBA director in October, 1970. He resigned in August, 1972, to work for the Committee to Re-elect the President, returning to the SBA job in November.
